IN THE NEWS THIS WEEK...

From Spectator Area News Sources

Smith Again President Of Groveport Council

Frank Smith was elected to his third consecutive term as president when Groveport Council held its organizational meeting this week. He will also continue to serve as chairman of the finance committee.

Roger Higgins was appointed by Mayor Bob Baer to head the street committee and Bob Degenhart and Pete Franks respectively, will again serve as safety and development committee chairmen.

Although legislation is still incomplete, Baer wants two new standing committees—that of cemetery and of parks and recreation.

When proper ordinances have been prepared, he indicated he would appoint Wayne Boyer to head the former and Mickey McGuire the latter.

Establishment of the cemetery committee will put the local cemetery under the direct supervision of council. Up to this time its affairs have been administered by three trustees.

Council approved the resolution prepared by the Board of Public Affairs naming John Wyatt as water superintendent. This is a part-time, $100 a month job. Until June, Wyatt will work under the supervision of Paul Raver, former superintendent.

With passing of the appropriation measure, special care was taken to budget the anticipated $6,500 that will be realized from the two-mill street levy. (Through a goof last year, the village lost the first year's income from the five year levy). Baer believes that this money with other dollars available from the street fund and possibly the reserve of the defunct sewer system, a complete resurfacing program can be carried out this summer.

Businessmen Join To Help Groveport Go

The Groveport Businessmen's Association held its first meeting since 1958 this week and with 13 of the 16 men present "New blood," pro-tem officers believe it's back on its feet.

Kermit Alspaugh and Louis Haines are serving as president and secretary respectively until the annual meeting, as prescribed by charter, is held in March.

Regular meetings will be held in the Town Hall at Main and Front on the third Monday of each month with the next meeting set for Monday, Jan. 17.

With the goal of serving the entire village as well as the business community, the organization will be supported by initiation fees, annual dues and the proceeds from proposed projects.

Although plans are tentative, a community auction is under consideration. (This has proved a highly successful money-making project for The Canal Winchester Lions Club)

The organization which was set up in 1955 had three productive years before it fell apart in 1958.

Looking back, Haines recalled that the association was responsible for bringing the bank to Groveport, (the first since the local institution failed to reopen after the bank holidays of the thirties), that it purchased the village's first police cruiser and for three years was the sole sponsor of Little League.

Despite insistence of powerful local voices that all's well in this city, a multitude of problems exist that demand attention. A rising crime rate, social injustices, property deterioration, racketeer-parasites hitting the pocketbooks of hundreds of local citizens. Hiding them with a veil of would-be respectability is not the answer. Beginning next week, The Spectator will take a long, hard look at the ills of this metropolis in a series entitled "Columbus In Crisis."

THE FORTUNE SELLERS

By TOM SESLAR
Spectator Staff Writer

Fortune-telling may be a big money-making racket in Columbus today but, as long as they operate within the law, vice squadsmen can do little about it. Read this Spectator Special on the sisters of fortune.

The house is like all of the old duplexes that line thousands of miles of slum streets throughout the country. But this house is in Columbus, and the people who live there are not typical.

The old woman and the teenage girl undoubtedly collect thousands of dollars annually from unsuspecting persons who believe they are receiving physical and spiritual help.

During recent weeks, Spectator reporters visited the homes of nine local women who call themselves fortune tellers, mind readers, spiritual guides or mediums. The reporters did not identify themselves as newsmen until after the performances had been completed.

Most of the Columbus fortune tellers depend on sideshow techniques for emptying the purses of those who "believe."

When I knocked, an aged eye peeked out at me through a hole in the curtains at the door. The old, olive-skinned woman opened the door, and in a heavy accent she requested that I wait there for a minute.

As the minute was coming to an end, the door opened and a middle-aged woman in a fur coat brushed past me, her eyes cautiously avoiding mine.

"What do you want?" asked the old woman inside the doorway.

"Are you Sister B?" I asked.

The woman turned to look at the teenage girl behind her for just an instant too long.

"No, she is Sister B," the woman said, pointing to the girl. I had the feeling that the old woman would have been Sister B if I were an older person. (This theory was confirmed later when an older reporter visited the house.)

The girl invited me to come into the living room and to sit at a table with a circular top. Then she and the older woman went into another room. I could hear them talking in hushed tones.

The only light in the room comes from a naked bulb hanging from the center of the ceiling and from a row of candles on top of a television.

Although the upholstery of the couch and chairs once was deep red, it has been dusted with the grayness of old age.

Williams Wins Five-Year Contract

FROM MADISON LOCAL SCHOOL BOARD

Phil Williams, superintendent of the Madison Local School system, was given a rather overwhelming vote of confidence this week when he was offered a five-year contract by the new school board.

Williams, whose employment in 1962 coincided with the beginning of the brush-fire growth of the district, has had the responsibility of developing enlarged facilities and staff to cope with the student population which has doubled during his tenure.

Charles Dean, hired to fill the vacancy created by Clerk Al Knodel's resignation last year, was given a two-year contract. Other personnel matters included the reassignment of Joseph Gerlack, sixth grade Groveport Elementary teacher to the teaching principalship at Brice after the resignation of Ivan Sommer, effective Jan. 3, Sommer gave illness as the reason for his resignation.

With the resolution necessary to place an $1,180,000 construction bond issue on the May ballot due, the board spelled out the proposed use of the money. It includes construction of two elementaries (Dunlow and Herderick site), site acquisition and construction of a gymnasium at the junior high. (This facility was slashed from current construction plans when it was seen funds from the last bond issue would not cover it.)

Wayne Wilson and Tom Chappell were re-elected president and vice-president respectively at the Monday organizational meeting and the temporary appropriation measure involving $1,864,582 ($1,491,227 is earmarked for the general fund) was passed.

Williams explained this is an increase of about $400,000 over the budget of last year and the greatest part will be spent for the enlarged faculty. (Twenty-four more teachers are on the staff now than last year and another 21 will be needed by next fall.)

Although no decision has been reached the use of the unused portion of the new junior high school kitchen as central office space is under consideration. This proposal is possible as only half the kitchen area is [illegible] until the building is converted to a senior high.

Other business included approval for application of a $7,100 application for teaching materials of which half the cost will be borne by the federal government, the employment of Mrs. Sara A. Schwartz of Carroll to replace Mrs. Jacqueline DeJong as school nurse and the hiring of James Tyo of Groveport as custodian in the Groveport cafeteria.

Although regular meeting night remains the second Monday of each month the January meeting was set for the 17th.

Ever Been Stuck At McKinley [illegible]rossing?

Columbus Public Utilities Director William H. Brooks is taking steps this week to eliminate lengthly train tie-ups at various city intersections, particularly at McKinley-av.

Brooks says he believes an old city ordinance limiting a train to five-minutes at any intersection with a city street is "ineffective."

The ordinance, passed in 1955, says that "No person or conductor of a train or railroad car or other agent of a railroad company shall obstruct unnecessarily a public road or highway of this city by permitting a railroad car or locomotive to remain upon or across it for longer than five minutes."

Brooks says he feels the word "unnecessarily" cancels out any effectiveness the ordinance may have had. He also says the ordinance does not contain any penalty clause, making it practically unenforceable.

Brooks is reportedly going to discuss the matter with Safety Director Fred Simon. They plan to write letters to Pennsylvania and New York Central railroad officials asking cooperation in complying with the ordinance.

"I have a grave concern in this matter," Brooks said. "I personally feel that long delays — particularly at the McKinley-av crossing — are costing the city millions of dollars."

Besides the McKinley-av tie-up, Brooks says he has heard a "number of complaints" about delays at Lockbourne and Refugee-rds.

He added he feels certain that the five-minute limit is being abused, with trains blocking a city street for up to 25 minutes at a time.

Panther-Viking Tilt Should Focus SSL

By BOB WHITMAN

If the Pleasant View-Teays Valley game follows the script of previous meetings, both a hectic basketball contest and an indication of the South Suburban League pecking order will blossom forth on the Teays Valley floor tomorrow night.

Both Bo Brickel's defensive-minded Panthers and Russ Gregg's balanced-scoring Vikings have been in the same situation before.

TWO YEARS AGO, Teays bounced Pleasant View, 51-50 at home and fell 50-35 on the Panthers' court in non-league battles. Last season, the first season for the SSL, P-V took a 67-57 win in the Panther den but fell at the Viking castle 54-52. The Panthers later won the first SSL basketball crown when Hamilton upset Teays Valley.

Brickels looks for no such help this season from Hamilton or Franklin Heights. "If we want an outright title, we will have to do it ourselves," he said.

"The biggest thing we have going for us is desire," he added. "Our kids really want this one."

A COUPLE of tangible items Pleasant View also has going for them are Carl Salyers and Jim Geddes, a pair of tough veterans who have been around for a couple of defeats at Teays Valley.

Salyers carries a 153 point total (19.1) and Geddes brings with him a 13.1 clip. Geddes had his confidence boosted during the DeSales Holiday tournament by earning the MVP trophy of the two-day affair.

STARTING P-V center, Jeff Coe, will be out of action due to an automobile accident injury last week. Coe's absence will take some rebounding fuel from the P-V tank.

Brickel's plans to replace him with 6-2 Rick Hunger.

The P-V mentor respects the shooting ability of the Vikings and says that he doesn't even look at their 4-4 record when considering them.

BOTH SQUADS have faced a like opponent in Bishop Hartley with P-V taking the Hawks ,74-63, while Teays Valley had a tougher time, winning 59-54. That victory was secured with a late run at the foul line.

The balanced scoring of Teays Valley is headed by the 114 mark of Butch Kinsell, 105 points by Rod Teets and Gerald Green's 96 points for a 12.0 average.

Viking mentor Russ Gregg looks for a smooth moving Pleasant View combine which is very disciplined.

"They don't make the silly mistakes," Gregg said.

GAME PLANS CALL for the regular, scrappy man-to-man Viking defense that has been against some pretty powerful teams thus far this season.

It also calls for some attention to be shown Salyers and Geddes' way as Gregg indicated respect for those two Panthers.

The center jump circle may not hold both the Panther with sharpened claws and the Viking with a sharp spear at the outset of the game and certainly by the final bell and expected full house will know that a battle has taken place — an important battle that may either decorate the SSL throne room in green and white or black and gold.

Hamilton suffered a 88-70 earlier this season at the hands of the 6-1 Winchester bunch.

Charlie Hart is leading the Rangers (now 0-5 on the season) with a 10.3 average. He is followed closely by John Gorczyca with a 10.1 points per game log.

CANAL WINCHESTER was paced by a 22-point effort from Vic Argobright in their 64-61 win over Carroll last week.

CARROLL'S 1965-66 VARSITY BASKETBALL SQUAD

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Conjecture is described by Mr. Webster in his book of words as "a prediction based on guesswork."

But the word has a more practical definition as "research done by a sportswriter during the holiday break."

CONJECTURE from this corner is based on the developing Franklin County League cage race which resumes warfare on some fronts tomorrow night.

Pinpointing the speculation of a wild FCL finish is the fact of life that Reynoldsburg and New Albany — current co-leaders at 2-0—will never cross paths this season.

That little quirk in the schedule is particularly interesting at this point to St. Mary (1-0) and Canal Winchester (0-1), both considered more than likely to battle the above pair to a finish which should see the demise of reigning FCL champ University (0-2).

THE "WHY" of the absence of New Albany on Reynoldsburg's schedule (despite a spoken agreement that each FCL club would play all others) is a matter of fence-part, according to the Reynoldsburg athletic director Harry Wolford.

The Eagles, who have been in and out of the FCL several times in the past couple of seasons, "simply refuse to play us anyway," Wolford adds.

By this time NA had decided it was back in the FCL saddle again Reynoldsburg had scheduled Ready for the date (Jan. 7) set aside for the Eagles. Wolford refused to cancel his contract with the West Side parochial school on the tardy whims of New Albany.

THE CONJECTURE pops into sight again if you imagine that both the Eagles and the Raiders finish with five remaining league wins apiece.

That would set up co-champions, a finish guaranteed impossible by FCL scheduling — except in this instance. (According to Wolford, there would be no chance for a playoff).

Making the brew even more tasty, however, is the situation facing St. Mary.

BUT THE Rams could be holding the trump card up their own sleeve.

For what now seems a disadvantage could be reversed since the Rams can do it themselves and not have to rely on outside help as Reynoldsburg and New Albany must for a clear title.

Reynoldsburg has remaining home games with St. Mary and Academy, traveling to Rosary, University and Canal Winchester.

NEW ALBANY plays at West Jefferson and St. Mary and hosts Winchester, Rosary and Dublin.

St. Mary entertains University, Dublin, New Albany and Rosary while visiting Academy, West Jefferson and Reynoldsburg.

Rosy Outlook For Blue Plan

It is nothing new to say that the Greater Columbus area is entering the New Year "on the grow." This has been true for a number of years.

But 1966 could be the year that the area grows with an emerging purpose and plan. It could be the year that the "Blue Plan" — the Comprehensive Regional Plan for Franklin County — comes to maturity.

For too many years, area industrial, economic and population growth has been a matter of heterogeneous developments. And the course of least resistence has been the developer's rule of thumb.

A new and better formula for total community growth can and must be put into operation. The Blue Plan concept will do the job if properly formulated and supported. Its potential for success will be tested this spring when 300 to 500 community leaders will be invited to participate in a series of Citizen Seminars.

The "Comprehensive Regional Plan" means just what its name denotes; planning in all areas of importance to the community, and throughout Franklin County. In one of its most basic forms, the Blue Plan concept deals with establishing of "highest land use" values.

But the by-products of pre-planned area-wide development are the ultimate and most important goals. These "by-products" include higher standards of educational excellence, a healthy and stable economy, elimination of housing ghettos, communication between and among the different parts of the region and full use of human resources and the social, economic and cultural assets of the total community.

Such noble goals are not obtained simply because they are worthy. There remains much discussion of the tentative goals and refinement of the total plan between the hope and the reality.

But the prognosis on the Blue Plan's future is excellent. It must succeed because it is important to every resident of Franklin County. It will succeed if community leaders will continue to give it the time, effort and support it merits.

Wouldn't It Be Lover-ly?

The Daily Standard, a hard-hitting Celina, O., newspaper, took a fanciful look recently at Gov. James A. Rhodes' efforts to keep Ohioans using Ohio-made products.

Shrimp was served at a water problems meeting there when the Governor remarked "there are no shrimp boats on the Ohio River." The statement irked Standard Editor Parker Snyder.

Snyder wondered, in an editorial, if the statement meant that Ohioans should refrain from shrimp or find a way to bring the seafood in by pipeline to qualify as a bona-fide Buckeye product.

"There are other problems, too," the Daily Standard said. "One may concern the governor's 'Wonderful World of Ohio' tours. These wonderful tours, regularly enabling our wonderful governor to tour every inch of his wonderful state, generally employ wonderful Greyhound buses with wonderful streamers attached to them advising all wonderful onlookers of the wonderful governor's wonderful mission. The problem, though, is that we don't know where these wonderful buses are manufactured.

"It is possible, in other words, that the wonderful governor has been riding around his wonderful state in wonderful buses that were not produced in wonderful Ohio. This, if true, obviously amounts to high treason.

"Rhodes, if convicted on this charge, would face the stiffest possible penalty — he could be sentenced to sit in a brightly-lit room reading and rereading his own speeches, press releases and other public statements for a period of not more than three hundred and sixty-seven years. He could also be required to eat a tomato every three and one-half minutes for the entire length of the sentence."

The Standard's reference to the tomato evidentally stems from the fact that the Governor, while denouncing the shrimp, came out solidly for tomato juice — which is produced in Ohio in well-publicized quantities.

'March' Takes About Face

What happens when a crusade accomplishes its goal? That's the big problem facing the March of Dimes as they prepare their campaign this month.

The March of Dimes originally sought an answer to polio. That answer was found and the dreaded disease virtually eliminated.

Fortunately, the March of Dimes is not being abandoned. There's still another dreaded affliction awaiting elimination, too — birth defects.

This year's campaign, centered around the Mothers' March on Jan. 25-26, will benefit one out of every 16 babies born in Franklin County.

The birth defect problem is a growing one. The National Foundation of the March of Dimes is expanding its programs of research, education and medical care to get ahead of this menace.

It's comforting to know that "The March" is continuing — even if it is in a different direction.

Conformity?

From the Wall Street Journal:

"We're constantly amazed at those young things with their fancy hairdos and skin-tight pants.

"And the girls are even worse."

"He's A Nice Young Man, Luci. I'm Asking Only That He Change His Name To Lucky Boy Johnpatrick"

Calling Ohioans

By MICHAEL V. DiSALLE

Recife, Brazil, is a city of almost 1,500,000 people.

Some of our American naval and air force personnel of World War II remember it as a base for our African operations. It is the largest community in the northeast, an important industrial area of Brazil, but it still is about as remote and unknown as Viet Nam was just a few years ago. There is a quiet struggle being fought there by some isolated democratic units attempting to prove that democracy is possible and freedom can be maintained, that there is no need for dictatorship or the ultimate subjection of the individual to the state.

The cast of characters and the elements are the same as those existing where communism has made inroads in the past. Poverty is rampant, the slums are ugly, wages are low, illiteracy is high.

In an all-but-abandoned village just a few miles outside of Recife the best-maintained property is the village cemetery. Here, where the life expectancy is 27 years, it seems to indicate that the greatest effort goes to the place where the body will spend its greatest time on earth. It is not uncommon to see a procession of youngsters carrying the small casket of an infant to the well-groomed burial place. Every other child reaches this final resting place before reaching the first birthday. Means and methods to combat disease are limited. Sanitation is in short supply.

The Prize

Castro's agents, as well as other communist representatives, wait in the wings to take advantage of lack of hope and a surrender to helplessness. On the other side a new progressive government is joined with religious groups, American aid missions, the Alliance for Progress in attempting a dramatic, crisis ridden rescue operation.

Brazil, particularly in Recife and the State of Pernambuco, needs communications and transportation. Desperate farmers have walked off their lands, leaving what few earthly possessions that were left. Here the wisdom of Vic Donahey's farm-to-market roads program becomes quite evident as well as the much-attacked rural electrification and rural telephone programs of F.D.R. In Brazil one wonders what these farmers might find in the slums of the large city that they couldn't find on their farms. The answer they give: if they fall from hunger in the city, there is someone to pick them up.

In the slums you find Baptist and Catholic oblate missions working side by side—there is too much to be done to waste time in determining who will save the soul that has so little time to devote to its salvation.

The Oblate Fathers, working with some American businessmen, are framing the beginnings of a low-cost housing community financed in such a way as to give people an opportunity to buy their own homes. This means training programs in order to provide skills that will produce income. The major question is, will there be enough time? Will the hope kindled by the ability to see the possibility of a more decent living be enough to provide the inspiration and patience necessary to stem the tide?

In spite of many efforts, communism has been unable to engulf a large Western Hemisphere country. Brazil would be a great prize. Recife a good beginning.

With a good honest effort on the part of understanding people, freedom will be saved.

Our Man Lloyd Mallan

If there ever was a man who can be credited with keeping the Reds honest, he's got to be Lloyd Mallan, even if his story is generally suppressed by the big city presses.

One of the nation's top science writers, Mallan recently proved that the Soviet "walk in space" was another big hoax.

Mallan, examining the official Kremlin films, found that it was a double exposure, with Leonov superimposed on a background of the earth below. Black and white stills, under careful scrutiny, revealed that Leonov was floating in a tank of water suspended by fine wires to give the effect of weightlessness.

It's refreshing to know that the truth will out, even if the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for reasons of its own, has stubbornly refused to put Soviet claims to the acid test of scientific analysis.

Letters To The Editor

Too Little Too Late?

To the Editor:

The war in Viet Nam — as it is presently being prosecuted — is not a popular one.

There are too many who remember the retreat from the Yalu, Chosen Reservoir and the American Dunkirk off the beaches of North Korea. Perhaps this is what lies deep underneath the student demonstrations; a bitter protest (misunderstood) against the shedding of blood and loss of life for a victory that in the past has been only an illusion.

Secretary Rusk has chided those Western powers supposed to be our allies for lack of support — or, so the report goes. It is not top secret, exactly, that Nationalist China is champing at the bit for an opportunity to land its 500,000-man modern army on the mainland. Logistic support is all they would need to bring the conflict to a quick and successful conclusion.

There has been no public indication that Chiang Kai Shek has been approached or considered. If he has not been, why not?

There is not an American worthy of his salt, who would not sacrifice his all — including the ultimate — to permanently neutralize the threat of world-wide Communism.

If the administration now representing the attitude of the government (if not the will of the people) is going to continue on its futile course of "too little and too late" then we had better begin the construction of Fortress America.

The abundance on the tree of bitter fruit which former President Harry S. Truman planted, when he stopped General MacArthur short of complete victory, is now commencing to ripen. Who can deny it? Or, have we gone so far down the road of liberal abnegation of the truth that we are unable to recognize this virtue when we see it?

Marion A. Davis

Prosperity Bathed In Blood

To the Editor:

We now have another war, un-declared, that we are not fighting to win . . . a war that could have been won in a month's time if we would read our war histories and had bombed the source and not fought another so-called holding or containing action.

As a result, we now have strikes by unions, Civil Rights marches all over the land, sit-ins, lay-ins and waller-ins by all kinds of kids who are safe from the draft, due to educational deferments (Spectator report, Dec. 30, 1965).

Why does a government resort to war? As a rule it is due to pressure exerted on them by the pressure groups of the nation (such as union demands for guaranteed yearly incomes, etc.) while defying all laws that their leaders tell them should be ignored.

War has become a last resort of this nation, to find prosperity and full employment and total security.

But, in my book, any such prosperity that is bathed in human blood is a poor kind of prosperity and a poor example for a Christian nation.

Says Annex Inevitable

To the Editor:

I have lived in Lincoln Village 10 years and am convinced that annexation to Columbus is inevitable.

Lincoln Village is plagued by a transient population. There are only two families on my street that have lived here from the beginning as I have.

With a transient population like this, it will be difficult (practically impossible) to find leaders for self-government. For this reason, I prefer annexation.

Regarding New Rome: That community had great difficulty getting candidates for offices at the last election. To develop services would be costly. In joining New Rome, Lincoln Village would be no better off and would have many additional tax assessments.

I am willing to pay city income tax of one percent to have better police and fire protection. Many residents pay city income tax because they work in Columbus. They might as well benefit by the tax they pay.

Many of the people who planned and dreamed of a self-contained community for Lincoln Village have moved away or died. Annexation will provide leadership and stability we now do not have. It also will enable the Columbus Transit Co. to serve us with better bus service.

Glad to see you have added a new column on bowling. Being an enthusiast I read everything I can.

Would suggest that announcements be made of local tournaments before they have happened so we can enter.

THE COMEDIANS

by Ted Beardshear
Spectator Staff Writer

Cocktail party comedians these days are a dime a dozen.

At any decent gathering where the amber fluid is served one will find Shelley Berman with a crowd clustered in the corner; Jackie Gleason in all his profound rotundity holding court in the center of the room; and the other corners dappled with Red Skelton and Jerry Lewis and their admirers.

Ah, but in the last corner there is one of the vanishing species . . . the reserved person who prefers to sip his drink in dignified silence rather than be regaled with a series of guffaws. He is known as the Wall-Flor-A-Dora. His kind has been known to collar another of the species and talk business, politics, sex or the arts in an intelligent manner.

Beardshear

Meanwhile, the laugh-men measure success and social desirability quotients in the number and quality of chuckles they can get. It is no longer proper to say to one's wife after a party, "I had an interesting talk with the boss." It is now proper to say, "Did you see the old man? I had him rolling in the aisles."

Every inveterate cocktail party-goer seems to have his or her own bit. Some specialize in satire, others in insults, a third in the snappy comeback . . . even a self-composed skit is not out of order. Anything goes.

It is no longer stylish to be a pseudo-intellect. It is more stylish to be a pseudo-wit.

Once a cocktail party had a purpose suited for the gathering of people. It was a forum of ideas; a place to be convivial; a chance to probe past the surface veneer of a fellow. And last, but not least, a place for romance.

But now? Who can think of love while laughing?

In the parties of old, humor was not unknown. But it was the well-turned phrase, the light prod, a short and smooth monologue, a sharp comeback or a small improvisation. It was nothing to the full-length productions that one sees now.

These things in the parties of a few years ago were to avoid the embarrassing revelation or to parry a discussion of minor German poets of the 18th Century. They were legitimate little gambits that anyone could use.

The new wave of wits has robbed the old cocktail party of its warmth, its spontaneity, its soul-to-soul confrontation, its exchange of ideas, its chance for romance, its depth exchange of best-seller scanning.

And in its place we have an Ed Sullivan revue of major and minor comics. The social lubricant has turned to laughter. And old-style parties are but remembrances of things past.

Now the true odd ball is that creature who used to be more common. The man the hostess took special pains to see was matched with someone compatible. The man who really had something to say if only there was a way to get him to say it. Our old friend, the Wall-Flor-A-Dora.

Amidst the laughter and the raucous belly-guffaws, there is nostalgia. Nostalgia for the gathering where the measure of success was not a chortle but the nodding heads and the short "Ahh" of a point well-taken.

'FUNNY GIRL' OPENS JAN. 17

Tickets to "Funny Girl," the exciting and colorful musical biography of Fanny Brice, are on sale at the box office of the Hartman Theatre where the smash Broadway musical will run from Jan. 17 to 22.

"Funny Girl" comes to town with a glittering $400,000 production, a cast of more than 35 and a number of brilliant performers, among them Lillian Roth, Anthony George and, in the role of Fanny Brice, the young singing sensation Marilyn Michaels.

Lillian Roth, whose turbulent career was vividly brought to life in her best selling autobiography "I'll Cry Tomorrow," has another triumphal role in "Funny Girl."

Since the publication of the book, Miss Roth has been active in both television and night clubs. She has now decided to devote her efforts exclusively to her first love — the theatre.

In "Funny Girl," she plays Fanny Brice's mother. "I was always a great admirer of Fanny Brice," says Miss Roth. "In fact, I used to do an imitation of her singing 'My Man' in my night club act. I'm thrilled to be playing in the musical of her life. She was a wonderful woman."

IN CAST OF 'FUNNY GIRL'

GOOD NEWS FOR TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS. By an Act of Congress, the 10% Federal Excise Tax on your telephone service has been reduced to 3%. The new lower rate will be effective starting with your January, 1966 bill. It will be reduced another 1% each succeeding year until it is completely eliminated by January, 1969. The savings in a year's time will amount to almost the cost of a month's telephone service.

We are happy to report the reduction and eventual removal of this 'temporary luxury tax' which we have collected for so many years for the Government. With more people enjoying telephone service than ever before, this means a tax savings of about $24,000,000 in 1966 for Ohio Bell customers.

Local telephone rates have remained constant since 1959. Long distance rates have been reduced 20 times in the past 50 years. Now, with gradual disappearance of the excise tax, your telephone service becomes a bigger value than ever—and you can be sure that there will be no reduction in our efforts to continue giving you the best possible telephone service. Happy telephoning!

Lazarus West To Double In Size

Lazarus West, opened in the fall of 1962 at W. Broad-st and Georgesville-rd, will be expanded to more than twice its current size within the year, Robert Lazarus, chairman, and Charles Y. Lazarus, president, announced.

"We feel the time is right for adding the full range of upstairs store departments, similar to Northland, and a comparable number of basement departments," Charles Y. Lazarus, president, stated.

Additions to the merchandise assortments of the store will include furniture and other decorative home furnishings on the new second level, as well as a complete children's department. The new level will feature a full service restaurant large enough to seat 100 people at table and counter accommodations.

The main level of the present store, to be entirely redesigned, will be devoted to more complete selections of fashions for women and men, including such specialized Lazarus shops as the Young Junior Shop for teens.

The expanded Lazarus West will be ready for the late Fall and Christmas Season 1966, and will be about the same size of the projected Lazarus Eastland, planned to open in the Fall 1967, at Refugee-rd and Hamilton.

Lazarus West is currently an 80,022 square feet store. The expansion will take it up to 171,000 square feet. Construction is scheduled to begin in March.

"The number of full time associates at Lazarus West will jump from 250, currently employed, to about 450 as a result of the expansion, according to John Eckhardt, 4971 Hamden-wy, manager of Lazarus West.

During the past year, the number of associates jumped to 330 during the holiday season and the estimate for next Christmas is about 600.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Ferguson Is Candidate For State Auditor Job

Thomas E. Ferguson, 37, of 2315 Buckley-rd, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for state auditor.

Ferguson made the announcement in Akron, O., because his father, Joseph, announced his candidacy for the same office there 30 years ago. The elder Ferguson served 16 years as state auditor and four years as state treasurer.

The candidate is associated with the Ohio Company, a Columbus investment firm.

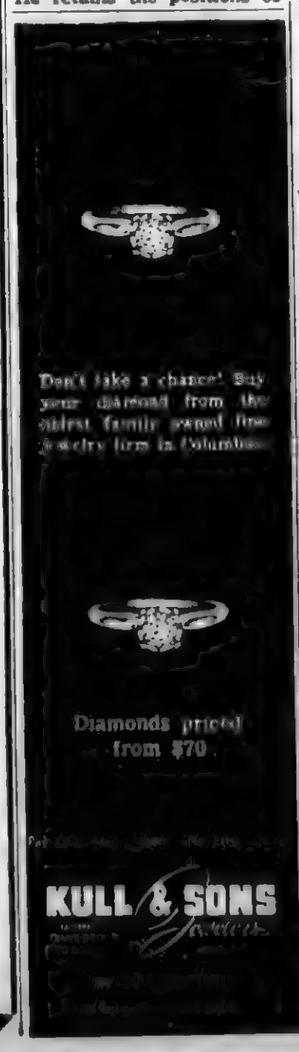
Local Minister Given Award

Rev. Leopold Bernhard, pastor of The First English Lutheran Church, has been awarded The Downtown Sertoma Club's "The Service to Mankind Award for 1965."

The club's highest award was recently presented by president Sam Calabretta for "outstanding service to his community and in a larger sense the City of Columbus and the nation."

A native of Berlin, Rev. Bernhard took over the leadership of The First English Lutheran Church, Main and 22nd-sts, in 1960. He began a constructive community organizational program and founded The East Central Citizens' Organization, Inc.

The ECCO group provides services, planned and directed by local citizens with the aid of specialists from other segments of Columbus and supply educational and social services to those who need them in their own community.



Legal services, family counselling, workshops, recreational activities, teenage improvement activities, planned parenthood meetings and senior citizens' activities are planned and directed by representatives from the groups who will use these services.

Re-appointed To Hospital Post

Edgar G. Planck, 2984 Crescent-dr, president of West Side Motors, was recently re-appointed by county commissioners to a six-year term on the Franklin County Hospital Commission. He retains the positions of vice-chairman and building committee chairman of the commission.

The 11-member body is made up of one representative from each hospital and three members-at-large. They work in conjunction with the Columbus Hospital Federation on expansion projects.

According to Planck, the current building program involves over $15 million in public and donated funds.

Is New Head

James T. Foley, 2873 Wellesley-rd, is the new chairman of the public relations committee for the 1966 Cancer Crusade in Franklin County.

Foley

Foley is director of operations for Nationwide Development Co.

According to Dr. Arthur James, crusade chairman, the first major task of the PR committee will be to encourage more volunteers to enlist in the 1966 campaign.

When the teenage girl came back into the room, she asked how I had heard of her.

"Someone put one of your advertising leaflets on my car window at the supermarket," I said truthfully.

Evidently she was satisfied that I was a good "mark" because she proceeded to tell me that I could have a complete reading — past, present and future — for five dollars. Or I could buy a "half-reading" for only two dollars.

The two-dollar deal would have to suffice, I told her.

She gave me that look many waitresses reserve for the man who orders a full-course dinner and then fails to leave a tip. But she did not try to barter.

"All right, now put the two dollars between your hands like you're praying," she whispered.

I assumed the position, and the "half-reading" began.

Next she told me that she would answer any question I wanted to ask.

"What business am I in?" I asked, laughing inwardly at what her reaction might be if she were to actually read my mind and find out that I am a reporter.

"Oh, I don't mean that kind of question," she said. "Ask me something about your luck or your future so that I can really help you."

Deciding to play her game, I asked about my luck. She quickly replied that it would improve in the future.

"But you are in serious danger," she said. "Somebody is jealous of you, and he is trying to cause trouble."

During the next ten minutes, Sister B. told me that I am a good worker, that I have high goals, that I would like to earn more money and that some "evil person" is trying to prevent me from reaching my goals.

"You're smart," she said. "I have no sympathy for people who know they need help but are too dumb to come to me."

She explained that she had a great desire to help me, but added that she could not do the job alone because she "helps" so many.

"I do all of my work through our God," she said. So, if you will help me by paying for candles, I will pray for you in the church."

She wanted $10 for 10 candles, but I said I could not afford this. Then she offered five candles for five dollars, and finally three candles for three dollars.

I handed her my two dollars for the "half reading" and walked out through the front door back into the 20th Century.

Sister B. is only one case. There are many. Some of the local fortune tellers sell their superstition within easy walking distance of the steel and glass skyscrapers downtown.

Their operations obviously are fakery, but the facts are not so clear to the person desperately seeking help or hope.

Unfortunately, there is almost nothing the police can do to stop them.

Capt. Herman Beck, head of the Columbus vice squad, said the laws about fortune tellers are vague. He added that most fortune tellers have precise knowledge of the laws and know how to circumvent them.

"Most of them are careful to avoid promising definite results, so we can't touch them," Beck said. "They also usually say they do their work through God, so we cannot interfere because they would say they were being denied the freedom of religion."

Victims of fraudulent fortune tellers do little to help correct the situation because they often are too embarrassed to contact the police, Beck said.

But today Sister B. or one of her counterparts might take money from someone who should be paying for psychiatric or medical treatment.

Sleep well, sisters.

Local Resolutions Are 'Unbreakable'

SUM AND SUBSTANCE: A Wrapup Of The Week's News

By CHUCK HARTLE

Among the New Year's resolutions made by the city were these:

"Resolved, the city will not be defaced by unsightly junk yards.

"Resolved, the nursing homes of Columbus will not be overcrowded."

Unlike many resolutions, however, these will not be broken with impunity. They are backed by new city laws taking effect Jan. 1.

Crimes committed on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day included 25 burglaries, three rapes, four assaults and an armed robbery. In all, 152 arrests were made.

The Columbus area also participated in the highway slaughter as two died in an accident near West Jefferson and 36 were injured in 21 other accidents.

For 17 years, Red Cross Nurse Velma Graves of 2586 Minerva Lake-rd, has been going inside the walls of Ohio Penitentiary every month to help take blood of inmate donors.

Last week, one of the 70 donors leaped out of line, grabbed Nurse Graves, and pressed a home-made knife to her throat. In spite of the possibility, at any moment, she might find herself 'giving' her own blood in large quantities and by unprofessional means, Nurse Graves remained calm.

As she reprimanded the prisoner about his language, he was jumped by Guard Robert Shoemaker and several inmates.

The knife-wielder, Raymond Farra, 30, was serving at one-to-20-year sentence for auto theft.

Last Friday was to have been the last day of business at Central Market. But, like the cat with nine lives or the condemned prisoner with a friend in the governor's mansion, the old place keeps eking out a little more existence.

In one of its last official acts, the 1965 City Council last week unanimously agreed to give the merchants another 30 days while the alternatives are studied further.

Even Special Delivery mail may have to take the long way around if a solution to the freeway access problem for the new Post Office isn't found. The facility now under construction next to the Spring-Sandusky interchange, will not have a direct entrance to the freeway according to present plans.

Postmaster Bodish is unsatisfied. He says the extra time and travel covering a 1½-mile "detour" will cost the taxpayers $10 million over 30 years.

Children with birth defects will benefit in proportion to the generosity of the people of Franklin County. Tuesday was the first day of the annual March of Dimes campaign. The 1966 goal is to exceed the $78,000 given last year in the county.

Not enough people cross the street at the corner of 18th-st and Leonard-av to warrant a traffic light, surveys prove. And, from now on, there will be one less person crossing there.

Six-year-old Pamela Brown of 999 Caldwell-pl was struck and killed by an automobile at that quiet corner last Thursday.

A traffic light has been ordered. City Hall has given it top priority.

Franklin County received the third-largest amount of welfare money from the state's Aid for Dependent Children program. The amount distributed here during the past six months was $3.5 million, according to State Auditor Roger Cloud.

Sections of the narrow old lane known as Karl-rd will be improved, now that the City of Columbus and Franklin County have agreed on how to pay for it. Cooperation is necessary as the city-county boundary line runs up the middle of the road in some places.

Franklin County will pay 10 percent or $30,000, whichever is less, for improvements between Elmore and Morse-rds.

Among the forces for 1966 arrayed against the algae that makes Columbus water taste and smell bad are Battelle Memorial Institute, Taft Sanitary Engineering Center, and the Housing and Home Finance Agency. Let's cheer the team to victory.

Three years ago, Lee A. Washburn, 3130 Fishinger rd, switched from an oil furnace to gas. He removed the oil tank, but never got around to taking out the oil fill-up pipe from his yard to the basement.

Last week, a fuel oil deliveryman made a slight error. He hooked on to the Washburn fill-up pipe and pumped 700 gallons of oil into the Washburn basement. No tank down there . . . just 700 gallons of oil.

Forty new garbage trucks, costing more than $11,000 each, are now on order for the City of Columbus.

Among the immediate projects scheduled as part of a master plan for Franklin County are replacement of the facilities of the County Home and the Alum Crest Hospital.

Applications for license plates with special numbers are in the mail. They go to 1,500 physicians, 5,500 radio and television operators and 100,000 others who have special letters or numbers. Everyone else will have to wait until March 1 to buy plates.

Jack Cannon's Flower Cart, 555 E. Broad-st, should be a case study for police detective bureau. They might come up with some interesting theories on why it is so inviting to burglars.

The shop has been broken into 17 times. In 1965 alone, it was robbed eight times.

IN THE NEWS THIS WEEK...

From Spectator Area News Sources

Penetrating Column Begins Next Week...

The famed political correspondent Marquis Childs becomes a weekly part of The Spectator next Thursday (Jan. 20) when his column "Washington Calling" debuts in these pages. In his four decades as a newspaperman, Childs has established a brilliant reputation as a specialist in covering the complex and often confusing news developments in national and international affairs. Certainly a crusader, Childs is a hard-hitter who fights fair and clean. He is an able writer and keen analyst with a quarter-century of experience as a fact-finding correspondent and student of economics and politics. He is the author of several best-sellers on political subjects . . . an author you will find rewarding to read. Watch for "Washington Calling" beginning Jan. 20 in The Spectator.

Police Department Set Up In Winchester

With the employment of Harvey Simons as a full-time officer, Canal Winchester took the first steps to establishing a full-fledged police department, and abolished the position of "marshal."

Simons, Canal Winchester, Rt. 1, who has previously been a security officer at the Great Southern Shopping Center, will presently be backed by Kenneth Griffiths on a part-time basis. (Griffiths has been the deputy marshal.) The organization of a regular police department is designed to cope with the step-up in police protection demanded in a growing community.

When Mayor Mike Miller previewed the needs of the village for the coming year, priority was given to the need to double the size of the local swimming pool.

With money from the general fund available and no voted levy necessary, Reno Robinette, Jack Hunter and Gilbert Guiler were appointed as a committee to draw up

Hamilton Film To Show Anti-Fluoridation View

Does the addition of sodium fluoride to water supplies present a physical threat to those dependent upon the water?

Does the evidence that fluoride leads to mottling of the teeth outweigh that indicating fluoride prevents tooth decay?

Is it within the powers of an administrative body to, in effect, prescribe mass medication, with or without public consent?

What are the specific effects of fluoridation upon persons with kidney or heart disease and upon the diabetic?

These are some of the questions that will be introduced when Dr. Jonathan Forman presents an anti-fluoridation program in the cafeteria of the Hamilton Local Township High School Tuesday, Jan. 18 at 8 p.m.

The program, sponsored by those concerned with the alleged dangers of fluoride poisoning, is being presented in view of the interest in

Bill Grabiel To Try For Ohio Legislature

William E. Grabiel has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for State Representative from the 60th Ohio House District. The District, created by the recent reapportionment legislation, includes five wards within the city and Truro, Hamilton and Madison Townships. Although this is Gabriel's first try for elective office, he has been active in Democratic circles, served as administrative assistant to the chief of the legal department with the Ohio Department of Highways during the DiSalle administration and in the attorney general's office.

A graduate of Hamilton Township High School, Grabiel attended Franklin University, is in insurance with the E. P. Tice Agency and lives with his wife and two daughters at 1207 Norman-dr. He is a member of the Whitehall F&AM Lodge 761, the Central Presbyterian Church, the Franklin County Fire Fighters Association, the Fraternal Order of Police Associates and national, state and city professional organizations for life underwriters.

DRAKE CALLS TRUSTEE ACTIONS 'SENILE'

Seeks Greater Student Voice In OSU Trustee Decisions

A former Columbus city clerk is taking issue with recent decisions by the Ohio State University's Board of Trustees, and is proposing a plan enabling students to have a greater voice in these decisions.

Russell Drake, 56, of 979 Doherty-rd (Prairie Township), served as clerk from 1958 to 1960. He is now a Democratic candidate for state representative from the 58th district.

He tells The Spectator he will actively work to sponsor legislation to give four Ohio State students a voice in the decisions now being made by nine university trustees.

Drake's proposal includes having the governor appoint a member of each class at the university to sit in on all board meetings, each student having one-fourth vote in all decisions.

"This," Drake claims, "will compensate for the apparent senility now existing in the quality of the board's recent decisions."

Drake is particularly irked at the denial by the trustees to permit use of the Ohio State stadium for a Billy Graham rally. He call-

Dawson Says Community Dollars Needed To Win Incinerator Fight

Opponents Optimistic After Court Order

Opponents to the proposed incinerator site in the Southeast made a fast comeback this week when Judge Henry Holden issued a restraining order replacing one rescinded last week.

This order prohibits county commissioners from purchasing any real estate or new options in certain parts of the Southeast, from exercising the rights of any options presently held, and from the establishment, location or construction of any garbage, refuse, landfill or incinerator facility or use in the area.

Dan Dawson, spokesman for area residents, believes "we can beat them now if," but the if involved is a critical one.

That is the matter of gaining financial support from the community to continue the legal fight.

To date attorney fees are well over $2,000.

Of this amount, $800 was spent for the briefs requested by Judge Reynolds after the hearing, but not reviewed before he rescinded the restraining order.

Reynolds dismissed the case on grounds that a taxpayer's suit was not in order until the county prosecutor had received and denied a request to initiate such a suit. (This procedure is now complete).

In as much as during the hearing the Judge had overruled the county's motion that the case be dismissed upon these grounds, the opponents feel the dismissal was inconsistent. (It is conceded, however, that although such action is amost without precedent, it is the legal prerogative of the presiding judge).

Legal representatives of the committee fighting incinerators and/or landfill operation in the area are confident that their pending litigation will make it impossible for the commissioners to sell revenue bonds until the matter is settled.

The latest legal maneuvering comes hard on the heels of a meeting of the Mayor's Council last week when local officials heard from County Engineer Vic Gamble, that only with the cooperation of almost all the municipalities within the county is the incinerator financing feasible. ("I won't say all communities are needed. For example, it doesn't matter much whether New Rome with its handful of residences is with us or against us.")

However, he implied that county-wide participation was eventually in the books with the promise from Public Health officials that once the incinerators are established, landfill operations will be banned.

Stressing an "advisory council" has not yet been definitely decided upon, Gamble reported that it was probable such a board consisting of six representatives (one each from the City of Columbus, Franklin County, the Mayor's Council, the Township Trustees, the Chamber

Progress Is Our Product

The Spectator will present its annual Progress Edition next Thursday (Jan. 20).

This year's effort will portray the amazing growth of Columbus from 1915 to 1965 in business and industry, as well as in area and population.

Columbus has grown from a "country town" to a huge metropolitan city. It's population has more than tripled. This city is now recognized as an important center of business and industry and the prospects for future expansion defy the imagination.

Vocational School Back On May Ballot

By The Spectator's
BETTY DAFT

Another effort will be made by the five eastern county school boards to provide a vocational education for high school students in their districts.

The bond issue to build, and an operating levy to support an area vocational high school, both failures in the December special election, will be re-submitted to voters in the May primary.

Decision to try again was based on recommendations of the five affected boards of education and advisory committees, who agreed that the need for vocational education was pressing in the area, and could be met only by the proposed, comprehensive program.

Participating in the venture are Whitehall, Reynoldsburg, Canal Winchester, Madison Local and Gahanna Schools.

There is also evidence that the plan's first-time failure could not be fully attributed to disapproval—the vote was extremely light, and many voters have expressed that they felt they were not fully informed.

An about face in financing the venture is called for.

Executive Sessions Highlight Hamilton Meeting

Jim Strouse was elected president of the Hamilton Local School Board when it held its organizational meeting this week and will serve with Hubert Gibbs as his vice president.

Although the meeting lasted until almost midnight, little news came out of the session as most discussion went on behind closed doors.

The board went into executive session three times during the evening. The first was "to discuss the problems of organization," the second was to discuss approval of the minutes of the December meeting (a question was raised concerning a leave of absence to begin Jan. 24 for Superintendent D'Alan Huff) and the final exit came after Gibbs moved to rescind the December motion to postpone action on re-employment of personnel until February.

Gibbs stated the particular item he wished discussed was Huff's contract, which expires this summer.

After an hour (a rather long hour for the audience which was growing restless after two earlier sessions of being left to cool his heels during the last exodus but was recognized shortly be-

Columbus Faces Urban Deterioration Problem

CENTRAL COLUMBUS DETERIORATES . . .
Money Is Moving To Suburbia

FIRST OF A SERIES

Columbus should soon face up to a critical problem it shares with most major U.S. cities.

The middle and upper classes are moving to the suburbs, and the areas near downtown consequently have been left to the poor, primarily the Negro.

According to the standards the federal government has set up for determining whether a family is poverty-stricken, 30 percent of the local Negro families are living in poverty. And most of that 30 percent is concentrated in substandard housing areas that almost completely encircle the business district. The city's low-income whites also are concentrated in these areas.

This situation is not a bright one. It has built a wall between two kinds of ghettos. One group is being trapped in the core of Columbus with its heritage of low socio-economic status. Likewise, the more wealthy, more educated majority is being trapped in its own ghetto.

The wall between the two societies inhibits the social contacts, business transactions and interchange of ideas that probably will be mandatory for the progressive city of tomorrow.

While the suburbs grow fat on their tax money, the expenses of the city continue to skyrocket. But the core of Columbus is being left to the low-income groups which cannot meet the city's financial needs.

The attraction of city-centered industry and the high reproduction rate of the low-income groups continually force the substandard core outward — increasingly closer to the city limits.

The decentralization of the Ever Hear Of 'Gina Clair'? Well, You Will

Virginia Clarridge disagrees with her mother's claim that even as a child she drew well.

She even denies she can draw well today.

But she is delighted that she has learned to make a brush "talk."

Three years ago Mrs. Clarridge stopped dreaming about painting and began serious study of a hobby that is rapidly becoming a profession, as testified by her paintings exhibited this month in the balcony of the Columbus Public Library on Grant-av.

Although she considers herself an amateur, her husband takes her a little more seriously.

When she broached the subject of a studio, he had a ready answer.

Who needs a carport?

Certainly not the Clarridges — when Virginia needed a place to paint.

His interest in her hobby has gone even further.

Artists (ego-crushing as it may be) realize that a frame helps to sell a picture, as fringe benefits do a job, but "Oh, the cost!"

Thanks to Granville, his wife's private "angel," this poses no problem as he can turn out a frame faster than she can paint — and each geared to the mood of the particular picture.

A housewife and part-time employe of the Retail Merchants' Association, Mrs. Clarridge lives to paint and is more than happy to tackle her palette as soon as the sun is up.

Though consistent in oil as her medium, she uses canvas, wood, masonite or "anything I can find" for her paintings. Her style varies from abstracts and evocatives to the more traditional still life and land and seascapes.

She attributes her intensive interest in water scenes to her childhood spent on the shores of Ohio and Canadian lakes. Although she paints well from memory, and her still life is intriguing, it is her abstract and evocative work (where the meaning lies within the viewer's mind — much as in a Rorschach ink blob) that leads one to believe that her talent is bigger than she realizes.

Her use of color is spectacular without being harsh and her reds are particularly pleasing.

Twelve years ago the Clarridges moved to Groveport, a move that possibly could put the village on the map.

If you doubt it, take a jaunt to the library sometime this month.

EVIDENCE OF THE VERSATILITY of Mrs. Granville Clarridge, 350 Clark-ct, Groveport, is shown in two of the canvases she is currently exhibiting at the Columbus Public Library. The seascape she is holding, is in vivid contrast with the evocative work to the right. Mrs. Clarridge, who signs her paintings as "Gina Clair," plans to teach adults the basic techniques of oil painting after further study at Capital.

Mrs. Leatherwood Named Ashville Clerk

Moments after Harold Flowers resigned as clerk-treasurer of Ashville, Mrs. Ann Leatherwood took the oath of office for the job.

Mrs. Leatherwood had been unsuccessful in November when she sought the position to which had been appointed after Dick Cook's resignation.

According to Mayor Charles Morrison, Flowers' resignation came after he reached the conclusion the job was a greater one than he had time for.

Ray Badger, the only remaining member of the retiring council, was elected president and named chairman of both the finance and the park committee. Tommy Rife will head up the safety committee and Harold Hartley the service committee.

Hartley was also appointed as council's representative to the local planning and zoning board.

Other business included the hiring of Dave Kraft as solicitor for another year and instructing him to prepare petitions to extend Rt. 316 from the foot of Long to Rt. 665 and to draw up the ordinances relevant to the proposed zoning regulations. A public hearing will be scheduled on the latter.

Federal funds totalling $1.4 million had been secured this year, to be matched by funds from the bond issue and operating levy. However, when the issues failed at the polls, the federal money returned to the state, to be allocated to other districts on the priority lists.

In order to again secure matching funds, voters in the Eastern Franklin County Vocational District must now indicate their interest by first approving the bond issue and operating levy.

And then, application will be made for matching federal assistance. Should approval be withheld the issues would not be implemented.

"More than $9 million will again be available to Ohio schools the first of July," Robert Crabbs, superintendent Whitehall Schools explained, "and we will apply for a portion.

"It is also barely possible," he added, "that by the end of June some of the $1.4 million originally allocated to us will be left and we may hope to have a little of that."

An increase of about $8 million on the tax duplicate the first of January will also provide a bonus return on the .6 mill bond issue to be placed on the ballot in May.

The 20-year issue will provide about $1,665,000 towards construction of the school.

And voters will also be asked again, to approve a 1.4 mill operating levy.

The school, to be built on a centrally located site still to be determined, will serve juniors and seniors in all five districts.

Vocational curriculum in five general areas would train students to be ready, upon graduation, for immediate employment in more than 70 such diversified fields as data processing, mechanics, beauticians, and horticulture.

Students would be transported by bus from their "home" high school for part of each day.

They would continue to participate in their own schools' athletic, music, dramatics and extra-curricular activities, and would be graduated from their own high school.

They would also be required to take subjects such as English and Democracy, and would be qualified to enter college should they choose.

specifications for bidding. Miller wants the project completed before Memorial Day.

Miller also feels that street improvement in the village is a vital issue and is determined that top attention be given to High-st between Waterloo and Mound. Waterloo between High and Trine is also high on the list for resurfacing.

Reno Robinette was re-elected president of council and when committee chairmen were appointed Harry Doan, retiring clerk, was named as chairman of the newly created "village beautification" committee. Among his responsibilities will be a town-wide flower planting program.

Other committee chairmen are Robinette, finance and recreation; Lloyd Stebelton, streets; Sam Allen, sewers; Jack Hunter, police and fire and firemen indemnity fund; Gilbert Guller, building and parks, and Ralph Phelps, power and light, tools and equipment and department of public safety.

water fluoridation in Hamilton Meadows. (Petitions have been recently circulated asking that fluorine be introduced to the privately-owned water system of the community).

Spokesmen explained that the matter is an especially critical one in an area which they claim is already subject to fluorine pollution from the fuels used by jet planes.

A question and answer period reputed to be of interest to laymen, doctors and dentists ande the legal profession will follow the showing of a 15-minute color film "A Scientific Demonstration of Tests for Poison in Body Tissues, Including Sodium Fluoride."

He was instructed to come up with something definite at the February meeting so consideration can be given to placing a half-mill recreation levy on the May ballot. (A like issue failed this last November.)

Other business included the consideration of renting the farm land owned on Rt. 665 adjoining Hamilton South, and acceptance of the resignation of three teachers because of pregnancy.

They are Mrs. Elizabeth Wagenknedt and Mrs. Barbara Ann Hoppin, teachers at South, and Mrs. Patrician Janusz, South's speech and hearing therapist.

The first two will be relist and the duties of Mrs. placed from the substitute Janusz, who was employed on a part-time basis, will be assumed by another therapist in the system.

An interesting note was heard when Mayor Sensenbrenner remarked "I'm glad to find that out!" when Gamble made it clear that charges for use of the proposed incinerator facilities would be the same per ton to the largest or the smallest user.

Divided They Fall

Although the Franklin County United Appeal campaign is long over, its memory is still lingering with a bad taste in the mouths of some local citizens.

Reports have it that many employes were forced to donate to UA. In many cases, the amount was designated and insisted upon. One woman tearfully told The Spectator, "We have eight children . . . they told my husband to give $50 or he would lose his job."

Similar instances give strong indication that the old hard sell was, indeed, put on during the last campaign. The saddest part, perhaps, is the fact that United Appeal administrators had nothing at all to do with the arm-twisting techniques.

The fault undoubtedly rests with over-zealous collectors on the local levels who couldn't stand to see their department, school, or company fall under the magic 100 percent mark.

Although the pressure surely gave United Appeal a fruitful year, it leads one to wonder just how badly the demanding techniques have hurt the campaign in future years.

There's no denying the worth of the United Appeal. There should be no questioning the integrity of UA management, either.

Perhaps UA administrators might take a second look to the grass-roots level the next time around, however, even though that next time around may come a little sooner than it takes to heal the wounds to local pocketbooks.

What's that line about one rotten apple . . .?

Big Brother Is Helping . . .

Since its founding in 1933 in Columbus, the Big Brother Association at 2104 Tuller-st has provided paternal companionship for thousands of fatherless boys.

The local group, in addition to the International Association of Big Brothers of America, is observing Jan. 9-16 as Big Brother Week. The movement, which includes affiliate groups in Canada, gives "individual boys personal attention, guidance, friendship, and aid."

Of the 409 men who have been active members of the association of Columbus for the past year, one has stated that nothing is more rewarding than giving time to youth.

The organization also operates a summer camp in the Hocking Hills, attended last year by 577 campers from Columbus and Franklin County.

The Big Brother Association of Columbus served 539 boys last year who lost their fathers. These men who give of themselves a few hours a week receive that reward that is reserved for those engaged in self-less giving..

'Caboose' In Sight?

Columbus Public Utilities Director William H. Brooks is "on the right track" to eliminate a serious problem that has plagued this city for some time.

Brooks is taking definite steps this week to negotiate with Norfolk and Western and New York Central railroad officials in efforts to eliminate lengthy tie-ups at intersections.

Major tie-ups occur consistently in Columbus at the Grandview-av crossing just north of McKinley-av. Other trouble spots include the crossings at Lockbourne and Refugee-rds, Fairwood-av (just north of Refugee-rd) and the switching of the N&W Railroad at the Lockbourne-rd crossing.

A dusty city ordinance (dating back to 1955) limits train tie-ups to five minutes. The ordinance is, however, sadly ineffective and contains no penalty clause.

Brooks has written to R. C. Harrison, superintendent of the New York Central Railroad, and Paul J. Koebel, assistant superintendent of the Norfolk and Western Railroad (Hocking Division).

"It resolves upon your railroad," Brooks writes, "to do something in regard to this matter which affects the general public by the creation of these terrific jams which have been occurring at the crossings."

Brooks adds:

"I realize that you have a difficult time in planning your operations so as to maintain your lines so that your traffic will continue on schedule; but at the same time the people of Metropolitan Columbus are also entitled to some consideration."

Brooks urged the railroads to plan their schedules so that switching operations will not take place at times of rush-hour traffic.

There's no denying the fact that overhead, or underpass, crossings are the ultimate solution. But, it's good to see that Brooks has decided to deal with a present situation — to work to alleviate the condition as it now exists.

Both Sides

"Federal aid to education dollars for Ohio's public elementary and secondary schools may reach an all-time high of about $61-million for the 1965-66 school year" — Donald W. Schaub, Education News Service.

"In our judgment, our community school board acted wisely in declining to ask for $25,000 federal aid funds . . . there is a lurking suspicion that when Uncle Sam gets into a school system, he insists on keeping his fingers in the pie. In other words, he dictates to the local authorities. This isn't desirable. We can run our own school systems better than can some politician or bureaucrat at Washington" — Storm Lake, Iowa, Pilot-Tribune.

Wing And A Prayer

Calling Ohioans

By MICHAEL V. DISALLE

It may be time for stockholders in some Ohio companies as well as investors to begin examining the capabilities of their management. I remember, as a small boy in Toledo, going to the surrounding countryside and making a few extra dollars picking tomatoes.

The growing of tomatoes and the canning and production of the by-products (which I understand is also used in spaghetti sauce) has been and continues to be a constantly increasing source of income for many Ohioans. New plants have been built, and migrant workers have been used in great numbers for many years.

Suddenly, during the past three years, free enterprise received a tremendous boost from government. The Governor began to promote tomato juice.

Not long ago he scolded a group for having a shrimp cocktail instead of a tomato juice cocktail. After all, he said, there were no shrimp boats on the Ohio River.

Having solemnly delivered this new piece of information, no doubt acquired on his recent trip abroad, he failed to relate how Ohioans were to get business and industry going at home without finding some outside markets for Ohio's products.

If Ohioans were to drink tomato juice until their perspiration turned red, they could not consume all the tomato by-products produced in Ohio.

Only the economic illiterate will maintain that Ohio and Ohioans are self-sufficient to the extent of not needing markets and consumers outside Ohio, as well as outside the United States.

Rubber, glass and steel are among the many basic Ohio industries that must rely on outside markets. Thousands of jobs are tied to the successful pursuit of customers outside Ohio.

How in the name of common sense can we go abroad to sell Ohio products while at the same time prosecuting a provincialism that discourages a healthy competition for markets within Ohio?

The recent so-called trade mission to Europe was termed a great success. No one has been able to report any tangible results.

The self-effacing Governor says that some of the benefits will not be felt for five years or more. It is purely coincidental that his thinking is timed to a period beyond his tenure of office.

There are some unverified stories of tremendous increases in business running into the millions of dollars that were directly attributable to the trip. If this is the case, stockholders and other investors should begin to question what wasn't done in years by their management that was possible in a few weeks of junketing across Europe.

Although the State Fair continues to lose money and the new magazine, "Wonderful World of Ohio," loses money, (in fact it now is hiring an outside concern to promote its sales) it does seem that the Governor is more successful in running everybody else's business than his own.

Perhaps everyone would be better off if the Governor would devote more time to the state's business, for which he is being paid, and let others such as Ohio's businessmen devote more time to running theirs.

Who's Minding The Store?

Weed Out Medicare Relic

There's a provision in the Medicare bill that elderly persons must meet in order to qualify for hospital benefits. It says:

To qualify, an elderly person must sign an oath that he or she "is not now and during the past 12 months has not been a member of any Communist front (or Communist suspected) organization required to register under the 1950 Internal Security Act."

There has been a good deal of opposition to the provision. Ohio Senator Stephen M. Young calls it "silly." He adds:

"Apparently few Senators know of this requirement. There was no debate for or against it, but early in the present Congressional session a resolution will be introduced to eliminate this relic of the Joe McCarthy witch-hunt era which most people look back on with wonder and disgust."

We agree with Senator Young. Why single out several million elderly people and require them to swear they are patriotic?

Letters To The Editor

Upholds Administration

To the Editor:

The Preamble to the Constitution states the General Welfare provision.

Present government is implementing this conception with action for the benefit of all citizens—black and white, rich and poor and young and old. This is the government that had a mandate in the 1964 election.

The sacred word of socialism, welfare state and Communism have been proven false. A selfish minority has used these epithets unsuccessfully in many political campaigns.

Intelligent citizens know that socialism consists of full ownership and control by government of all industry. It never will replace our free enterprise system which today, under general welfare government, is producing our greatest prosperity.

Constitutional justice is not taking rights and freedoms from anyone but rather giving them to millions of citizens who have too long been denied justice, equality and freedom in violation of our Constitution.

Applauds Editorial

To the Editor:

There will be a reaction to the current student revolt againt the draft.

It is my hope that that reaction will be tempered with sanity, for America's hopes of the future are on today's college campuses. These are not the peace marchers, the draft card burners, the bearded boys, or lads with hair as long as lassies.

No, the few students "rocking the boat" are those without ambition, without a career aim, and — sad to say — probably in the colleges of liberal arts. But they will bring down the wrath of the nation on all students if they don't tread just a little more softly.

America needs the young men and women to be doctors, sales engineers, space scientists, bio-chemists, farmers, and other trades and goals.

It would be tragic if the misfits caused Congress to demand a revision of draft laws to eliminate all student deferments.

In World War II, Congress cancelled the Army Specialized Training Program which could have given America 50,000 engineers to avoid the space and missile lag that cropped up in the 1950's.

Let's not make the same mistake again of cutting off our noses — eliminating all student deferments — to spite our faces (to punish the nogoodniks on campus.) If our manpower need is great, let's have selective elimination of student deferments, based on what the kids are studying, their grades, and the importance of their careers to the America of tomorrow.

'Keep The Library Downtown'

To the Editor:

The Ohio State Library is used daily by downtown working people, by high school and college students from all areas of town, by people who do not have cars, by retired persons who no longer drive cars, and by many housewives and others. It is within easy reach of everyone — people may come downtown to shop, attend to business matters, go to a movie, eat, etc. They may then go to the library before they board a bus for the trip home.

Few students and housewives have cars at their disposal and they would be unable to go to the fairgrounds because of its inconvenient location. Downtown working people would be unable to get to the library on their lunch hour, and they would be disinclined to go out to the fairgrounds after work — particularly if they live in an opposite direction.

Let's keep the Ohio State Library at its present location on the 11th floor of the State Office Building. We don't need another library on O.S.U. campus — they have several libraries up there — and we don't need the Ohio State Library in the Historical and Cultural Center which is proposed for the fairgrounds.

I urge every person who shares this view to write to the Governor and ask him to keep the Ohio State Library on the 11th floor of the State Office Building.

I previously sent this to both downtown papers, but they declined to publish it—for fear of displeasing the Governor?

THE BOHEMIAN

by Ted Beardshear
Spectator Staff Writer

Some 15 years ago, there was a denizen of Greenwich Village, New York, who talked with a Mid-Western twang. Other than that, he was indistinguishable from all the other inhabitants.

He claimed to be a poet, although he admitted in the last three months he had composed only one poem . . . and that inspired by a horrendous toot which landed him on the Bowery.

BEARDSHEAR

Interested in what made him tick, a carefully-planned sequence of free drinks and questions followed. Seems he had a typical middle-class background, his father being a salesman of some sort. He had joined the Cub Scouts and was a better than average student at school. All through high school, he was a member of Student Council and graduated to go on to college.

At college, he was known as a radical and original thinker . . . known more for his debating ability than depth of thought. But he was conformist enough to join one of the better fraternities.

His life followed the pattern of many of his contemporaries until he made the decision to go to a professional school. By that time, he had a fiancee. The decision for Bohemia came in the summer between college and professional school. In his own words:

"I looked at my life. There I was with college behind me and money enough to finance my first year of professional school. There was also this woman with whom I would probably spend the rest of my life. And I thought that most of life was a mystery to me . . . I hadn't answered the fundamental questions of being, and yet there I was, making plans to splash into it.

"Suddenly, the schooling, the planning, the woman . . . even where I lived seemed to be tinsel. There was no worth, no value in it without an examined appraisal. So I left. I left the woman, I left the home. I left the schooling. And all I do now is think and drink. Maybe someday I'll write. I don't know. But I do know what I'm doing is answering some great basic need in me."

The man then went on to tell of an Eastern Seaboard vagrancy . . . (this was before "On the Road" ever saw print), and of the occasional woman who came to live with him.

From an objective view, there was good talent going to seed. It was bearded, dirty and repugnant.

And yet, in another sense, here was a man grappling with the problem of existence by removing himself from the sea of activity that surrounds the work-a-day world. In that context, his quest was heroic.

Did he drift into alcoholism? Did he find what he was so earnestly seeking? Did he relent and go back to the pattern from which he had escaped?

Or did he, like others of the village, melt into a pattern of idle preoccupation and live in it for itself, abandoning forever the original goals that brought him to that condition?

Fifteen years later, I wonder.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

BROTHERS, HAWKINS ARE IIITS

The Rhodes Brothers — Eddie, Ruey, Tommy and Johnny — are four local boys who have hit the big time in show business. They are proving it, too, every night at the Martinique. In fact, after every show, they are forced to take several encores.

In the past two years, the Rhodes Brothers have played many of the major rooms of Vegas, New York and Miami. They are personable and exuberant showmen. The act is strong, well-paced with music and comedy and moves along like a rocket.

The Rhodes Brothers music is solid. They sing with enthusiasm and feeling, collectively and individually.

Much of their material consists of old standards, sprinkled with today's better music.

The brothers will be at the Martinique through Saturday.

The master was two hours late, but his subjects waited and were well rewarded. Coleman Hawkins opened at the Bowery Monday to an almost full house. His late arrival was due to a fouled airline schedule because of the transit strike.

Even though he was late, he marched on stage and got down to the serious business of playing the tenor sax. As the jazz buffs would say, he is "way out." He is strictly for the devotees of modern jazz.

Winner of many jazz polls, Hawkins has been a professional performer since 1922. For all these years, Coleman has retained his own familiar sound and style.

His music is creative, an artist with the reed. The up tunes swing, and the ballads are sweet and mellow.

Next Attraction At The Bowery

"Marilyn Maye sings so well she could give lessons," says Steve Allen. He further declared, "I do not see how it can be maintained that anyone around these days is singing any better than Marilyn."

Marilyn Maye, who recently broke all records at the Living Room in New York, will open at the Bowery, 1521 W. Fifth-av, on Jan. 17, for one week.

With many recording and television appearances to her credit, Marilyn brings a very professional, sophisticated show to Columbus. She is wise in her choice of material, mixing the old standards with the new for a perfect blend. Her sound and style render her easily distinguishable.

HANS CONRIED, star of stage, screen and television, appears in person in the Broadway comedy hit "The Absence of a Cello" at Mershon Auditorium Wednesday, Jan. 19, at 8 p.m.

At Capital February 3

Well-known recording artist Johnny Mathis will make a personal appearance in the Alumni Gym of Capital University Thursday, Feb. 3.

Backed by his own orchestra and a group of 10 singers and dancers called "Our Young Generation," Mathis has gained international fame through his recording, night club and concert appearances around the globe. He has received 18 gold record albums.

Reserved seat tickets for the performance may be purchased through the Office of Public Relations at the University, beginning the first week of February.

THE NORMANDY ROOM . . .
Will Be Open To Public

Normandy Room Facilities Include Sunken Bar, View

Columbus area diners will have a new, plush dining room which will open Saturday, Jan. 15, according to Roger McElroy, manager of Stoney Creek's Normandy Room.

The Normandy Room is carpeted in deep green, which is offset by wood-paneled walls and picture windows with a view of the golf course.

The chef, Herman Jones, is a veteran of fine establishments in the Charleston area and several local supper clubs. Menu choices run from seafoods to prime steaks and chops.

All legal beverages will be served. Diners may enjoy a pre-dinner cocktail in the beautiful sunken bar that adjoins the Normandy Room.

Winter Concert Sunday

The Columbus Symphony Youth Orchestra, conducted by George H. Wilson, will present its Winter Concert Sunday, Jan. 16, 7:30 p.m. at Hughes Hall, Ohio State University. Program will include works by Wagner, Walton, DeFalla and Dvorak.

CONCERT SCHEDULED

Battelle Music Club will present Carol Bode Marty, mezzo contralto, and Walter Cory, accompanist, in recital on Monday, Jan. 17, 8 p.m. in Battelle Memorial Institute auditorium.

TRYOUTS SCHEDULED

Director Charles Dodrill of the Otterbein College Theatre announced that tryouts for the annual theatre "town and gown" production will be Jan. 16 and 17, in Cowan Hall Auditorium.

The 1966 "town and gown" show will be the comedy by Jean Giraudoux. "The Madwoman of Chaillot," and will be presented Mar. 3-5.

All area residents are invited to participate. Rehearsals for the show will begin Jan. 27.

Curtain Players of Westerville will hold tryouts for Mary Chase's comedy play, "Harvey," on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 13 and 14 at State Savings Bank in Westerville, 8:30 p.m. Parts are available for six male and six female roles. For scripts call Mrs. Emmelene Link, TU. 5-7000.

Prefers Women Be 'Natural'

How does a girl act when she's out with a handsome leading man like Tony George, the star of the recent "Checkmate" series who is now playing Nick Arnstein in the national company of "Funny Girl?"

"More than anything, she'd be feminine," says the black-haired, dark-complexioned actor. "She wouldn't be brassy or pushy and she wouldn't be the clinging-vine type. I don't like either."

Tony also prefers his women to be natural and not over-dressed.

Some of the women Tony admires are Rosalind Russell, Merle Oberon, Anne Baxter and Angie Dickinson.

Tony George, appearing in "Funny Girl," comes to the Hartman Theatre for one week beginning Jan. 17. Performances will be at 8:30 p.m., with Wednesday and Saturday matinees at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the Hartman Theatre box-office, which is open daily.

Art Exhibit At Huntington

The lobby of the new Huntington Trust Building, Broad and Front-sts, is hosting an art exhibit through Feb. 3.

Featured are oil paintings and watercolors from the Ferdinand Howald collection and a sculpture by Prof. David E. Black of OSU.

The Black sculpture, which is called "White Interlock," is five feet by five feet and stands about seven feet high on the base. The work shows cantilevered construction, similar to the cantilevered nature of the Huntington Trust Building.

The arts works will be on display from noon to 5 p.m. daily.

Webb Pierce Is Award Winning 'Opry' Singer

Webb Pierce, one of the stars of the "Grand Ole Opry," which is coming to Veterans Memorial at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 29, has recorded a number of hits.

Pierce was the first entertainer to win the "Triple Crown Award" and presently owns four of them.

Another star in the show will be Red Sovine, who has been a regular on the "Grand Ole Opry" since 1954. Also appearing are Ray Price and the Cherokee Cowboys, Little Jimmy Dickens and Max Powell.

Tickets are on sale at Central Ticket Office (Richman's), 37 N. High-st and at Sears Northland and Town and Country.

Once-Beaten Indians, Vikings Face 'Must-Beat' Foes

By BOB WHITMAN

Canal Winchester, sporting a classy 7-1 record, entertains Academy Friday night in County League action.

The Indians have already dented the Viking armor with a 60-45 tomahawk earlier in the season. Then Canal was paced by the 19 point scoring of Jim Burke, the 15 point output of Dick Whitmer and sophomore Bill Miles' nine in his second starting performance of the year.

CANAL WINCHESTER is expected to be at full strength tomorrow with the only question mark being cast Whitmer's way. The spunky junior, currently averaging 13.3 points per game, missed the Hamilton bout last weekend because of illness.

Indian coach Bob Miller doesn't look for the Vikings to change much with the exception of a possible press.

"The only change they might make is to press on our small court," Miller said.

MILLER SHOWED concern over the possibility of not having Whitmer by summing up the past performance of the junior workhorse as "very valuable."

Leading Canal pointmaker thus far is Burke, a three year veteran, with a 15.8 mark. He is now being pressed by Viv Argobright, who built up his 13.3 average by picking up for the slumping Burke in the last few games.

The Vikings will carry a 3-4 record into the Friday game at Canal Winchester.

Teays will be trying to rebound from a 47-40 South Suburban League defeat at the hands of Pleasant View last week.

"They out-played us," Viking tutor Russ Gregg commented, "they had an exceptionally fine defense that harrassed us every minute."

GREGG FELT that his boys didn't quit as they fought back when virtually out of it. "That comeback is certainly worth something," he added.

Friday's opponent, Franklin Heights isn't "too tall" according to Gregg. The Falcons have been having troubles all year as they carry a 3-6 record into the game against the 4-6 mark of Teays Valley.

The Vikings' record is deceiving as TV has played opponents a shade better than Franklin's foes.

BUTCH KINSELL is currently at top of the balanced Viking scoring column with 140 points while Ray Malone's 13.4 average is the best among the Falcons.

In other area action: Groveport (0-9) at London, Canal Winchester at Amanda, Teays Valley at Fairfield Union, Cardington at Hamilton and Hamilton takes on PV.

TEAYS VALLEY'S CAGE STARTERS

Choicest Wrestling Plums Ripen At Westerville, F-H Invitationals

By JACK WITTENMEIER

The Columbus area's two top schoolboy wrestling shows of the week are crammed into Saturday with Westerville hosting an eight-team invitational and Franklin Heights squeezing in its annual Holiday Tourney — after the holidays.

After hosting a big quadrangular affair for the past two seasons, the Wildcats have upped the ante to eight this year with Whetstone, Hamilton Township, Linden, East, Brookhaven, DeSales and the Ohio School for the Blind joining the hosts.

AT FIRST glance, the Invitational looks like a battle between the defending District champion Stallions (DeSales) and Brookhaven defending Westerville champs.

Wildcat host coach Chuck Burner reports prelims scheduled for noon, semi-finals getting under way at 3 p.m. and finals beginning at 7 p.m.

Individual trophies will be presented to the 11 weight class winners with the winning team also carrying home a trophy.

TAB ON this one is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students — one admission good for all three sessions.

Falcon host coach Bob Twiss calls the outcome of his tourney "a tossup" with plenty of mat talent "speckled throughout the eight-team lineup" at F-H.

Twiss' Falcons, winners last year at the tourney, are early favorites although Arlington (3-1) and West shouldn't be rated too far behind.

OTHER participants will be: Grandview, Hilliard, Pleasant View, Jonathan Alder and University.

For the record, the Falcons led all the way last year, piling up 102 points to outdistance runnerup UA (61). P-V was a close third with 57 markers.

Biggest step up the ladder from last year is expected from John Butler's West squad — the Cowboys finishing seventh last time.

F-H'S DICK Grambo, back this year for the Falcons, was the tourney's "most outstanding wrestler" last season.

Prelims are set for 1 p.m. with semi's following and finals scheduled for 8 p.m.

TROPHIES go to 11 top individuals and the winning team while ribbons will be awarded to second through fifth-place finishers.

Here's the remainder of the schedule:

GROVEPORT-GRANVILLE PIN-WINS by Jim McConnaha (103), Don Miller (120), Jeff Nelle (133), Jerry Moore (145) and Jim Dill (165) set the pace last week as the Cruisers maintained a perfect '65-'66 record with their third straight mat win.

The closest Granville got to the lead was 5-3 after taking a decision at 112. But Groveport added up 13 points in the next three classes to open a wide lead.

Other Cruiser wins (decisions) were garnered by Skip Musselman (127) and Bill Marshall (175) while Tim Micheal (154) nabbed a draw.

Fearless Predictions

The first week of the new year didn't bring too many surprises as "the Fearless One" kept his record intact.

A few fooled him last week as the crystal ball showed a 27-11 record to make the overall Fearless mark 145-47.

(Fearless' predictions listed in bold face).

T-V Loop Meets

The Teays Valley Youth Baseball League will meet tonight at 7 at the Ashville Council House. Both men and women are needed to manage teams this year. Anyone who is interested is asked to attend this meeting.

You'll discover a "lip-smacking" variety of cookbooks at your Columbus Public Library.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

The year 1966 arrived with the usual loud noises and bright promise of a more exciting life in the next twelve months. A tired and yawning 1965 had been laid to rest without any magic answers appearing to solve our pollution - game shortage - litterbug problems.

Paugh

There was one significant first for last year, one of our erstwhile astronauts lost a glove upstairs and thereby became our first astro-litterbug. This opens the mind to far greater goals.

In five years or less, we may be throwing our beer cans on the moon.

WHILE JANUARY may seem at this point to be a bit boring, actually, it is a great month for many things. To the outdoor writer, it means conventions and shows to the point of saturation.

To the gardener, it is the month of the seed catalog. To the housewife, it is the month of runny noses and muddy feet. To the fisherman, it is the month of rod refinishing and reel cleaning.

To the hunter, it should mean the third quarter of an exciting game of chance. You should realize by now the winters are later each year and good hunting weather doesn't show up until January.

RABBIT SEASON is in until Jan. 29 and grouse season is with us until Feb. 26. I, for one, do not like to small game hunt in the warm weather.

Frost, fur and feathers are all bunched up in my mind and I can't separate them. I do not like to hunt in shirtsleeves all the while worrying whether my game will spoil before I get it home.

To me, grouse hunting without snow is like swimming without water—it just can't be done. I enjoy the sharp cold in my lungs and the pull of "new" muscles as I circle into the woodlots and pine groves.

I DELIGHT at the sight of fresh tracks left by the big buck I couldn't find last November and my smile grows broader as I take a raucous tongue-lashing from a pair of Jays, bothered at their morning meal of frozen berries.

When my quarry takes flight and salts me down with a fine spray of snow, I get what I came for even though I usually fire a good rod behind his tail feathers. I seem to gather strength from the crunch of the crusted snow underfoot and the stark beauty of bittersweet on a fencepost.

I nod back politely as the staghorn sumac bow to me in the slight wind-shift, each wearing a tiny cap of snow a la mode.

ON THE south slope, in the abandoned orchard, shreds of bark hang from an ancient apple tree giving testimony to the itch of some buck's antler. The next cold snap would bring seasonal baldness to the old boy and by April, new sprouts would be apparent.

Swollen snowbanks would lead you to believe that the stream has a severe case of the mumps. Crystal clear and giggling to itself, the eternal bubble fountain to every coon, fox and rabbit, soon to join other runs and form rivers to the ocean.

The ceiling is beamed by heavy, calico, sycamore boughs with last autumn's party favors still dangling.

THE ELDER statesman of the forest, a silver-barked beech stands its quiet place amongst the pip-squeak great - grandchildren. Its hand-carved surfaces give vivid proof of other people of past centuries.

"H. B. & V. T." — their marks remain long after their love has gone, "K N 1919" — proud to be alive and wanting to leave evidence of his existence. This gives us a feeling of just passing through the forests of life and starts one thinking.

We are, after all, only wardens of the land for a short while. Will each of us only take from the wonders of nature or will we — as keepers in our time — help preserve and replenish as best we can so future generations may enjoy this same day's hunt?

Life is thickly sown with thorns, and I know no other remedy than to pass quickly through them. The longer we dwell on our misfortunes, the greater is their power to harm us.—Voltaire.

OBETZ

And Hamilton Township

Ruth Borden
491-8141

A euchre party will be sponsored Jan. 15, at 8 p.m. by the Obetz PTO at the Obetz Elementary School on Chillicothe-av. There will be prizes, plus refreshments.

This Thursday, Jan. 13, the regular monthly meeting of Hamilton Township School Boosters will be at 8 p.m. in the high school.

Guests at the Calvin Borden residence last Thursday evening eating ice cream and cake with Sonnie in honor of her 19th birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Long, Barbara Macready, Rick Scott, Gail Borden and her parents, Calvin and Ruth Borden. On Sunday, the group attended a birthday dinner in honor of both Sonnie and Douglas Long.

Sunday, Jan. 16, at 7:30 p.m. the regular monthly song fest will be held at the Obetz Christian Church. The community is invited.

A group of overweight ladies met at the Obetz School June 2, 1964, for the purpose of organizing a weight-watchers' club. This group was formed and called the "Obetz Pops Club" with seven members present. At one time there was a membership of 20. Some members dropped out when they lost the amount they wanted to and others joined. This group has been meeting every Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. but after some discussion it was decided to meet on Tuesday, at 7 p.m. starting Jan. 18.

The club invites all women interested in losing weight to join. For more information contact Mary E. Martin, 491-0257; Maribell Stimpfle, 491-2934; or Ruth Robinson, 491-1213. Charter members of this group are Mary E. Martin, Maribell Stimpfle and Kathryn Crabtree.

Physical education exercise classes will start this Thursday, Jan. 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hamilton Township High School. Everyone is welcome.

VIKINGS HAVE READY BENCH STRENGTH

THE SPECTATOR SPORTS

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Smorgasbord . . .

The digested bowl games (my wife let me watch the whole Rose and bits of all the rest) and the ensuing final collegiate polls proved two interesting things.

One, the best team (on paper) doesn't always win — even in the big ones — and two, the national polls once again demonstrated their worthless value.

THE BOYS did play it smart this year by casting their final ballots after New Year's Day. The tardy final selection did manage to save a few red faces.

Wittenmeier

As for the Browns the next afternoon, they got beat by a better team — one, in fact, which was better all season long. We'll keep that Cleveland backfield but give us the Packers' "up front" crew any day.

CONGRATULATIONS to our new City Councilmen!

We knew Columbus would eventually vote in some real sports fans. Not knowing Mr. Portman personally, we're referring here to Don Woodland and Jim Baumann.

We met Don several years ago when he was putting Franklin Heights' wrestlers through their paces. Don has done an excellent and much needed job for high school wrestling locally. We hope his new duties will not prevent him from lending a helping hand in the future.

JIM BAUMANN and yours truly are still running neck-n-neck for the title of Central Ohio's "worst golfers." In fact this writer has been known on occasion to describe his relationship to the new councilman as "we play golf poorly together."

If Jim puts as much effort into city government as he does trying to take my money (on the golf course), Columbus has voted itself a big dividend.

So much for the tardy endorsements. (We, like every loyal Ohio sports fan, never back losers).

WE DON'T like "plugs" but if you'd like to sit down to some pretty funny reading, try Paul Molloy's latest offering.

"A Pennant For the Kremlin" is a spoof on baseball which builds its plot on the result of an American millionaire willing all his holdings (including the Chicago White Sox) to the Russian government and then dropping dead —all in the same afternoon.

For openers the new Red manager learned all he knew about baseball from the back of bubble gum cards.

The 176-page comedy is available in an Avon paperback edition.

Ever notice that deserving charities often sponsor good tournaments? January 3 was opening date for Bowl Down Cancer, with qualification on league scores.

Entry fee in quarter finals is $3 with 75 cents going to the American Cancer Society. Semi-finals will be held at Hilliard, Hillcrest Arena and Western Lanes.

INCIDENTALLY local Cancer P.R. exec. is Paul Walker, former newspaper sports writer and enthusiastic bowler. He can tell grand (and tall) tales about bowlers and past tournaments.

Answering a question — A "Brooklyn" and a "Jersey" are the same thing—a hit to the left of the head pin. This is considered the weaker hit, but who cares as long as pins go down?

A good league to watch—the 3C Classic Mixed which rolls at 3C Lanes on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. The American Welding team is the women's contribution — and what a contribution by Lib Miller, Mary Kredel, Marge Merrick, June Kristof and Jerry Baker.

Of course, this is a scratch amalgram. Walt Graezinger is the secretary.

SECOND VERSION of the $100 thousand Firestone Pro Tournament of Champs will be at Akron Riviera Lanes beginning Mar. 29. Akron's Dick Hoover will be the only eligible Ohioan — based on PBA wins of season. California and Michigan keglers overwhelm the field.

It was Chuck Pezzano who said, "The bowler who can smile when he bowls terribly has probably just thought of something he can blame it on."

Many local teams will head for Varsity Lanes, Dayton, on Feb. 19, for a chance at the $20 thousand guaranteed prize list of the Journal Herald National Industrial Tournament.

WATCH FOR local scores from the Silver Anniversary BPAA All-Star to be held at Joe Joseph's Pro Bowl in Lansing, Mich., Jan. 28-30. Latest addition to list is our Lucille Noa.

You'll enjoy "Pro Bowlers Tour" on its return to TV Saturday on ABC. The Jan. 8 match originates at San Jose, Calif. Billy Welu will add the color to Chris Schenkel's commentary.

TIP OF THE WEEK: If you want to throw a straight ball, place your thumb in the 12 o'clock position at release. The 11 o'clock produces a small hook, 9 o'clock a large hook. But remember — any position also demands a lift and follow through.

Sporting Chances

STONEY Creek will open its 18 greens and fairways to the public for the first time Saturday after operating four years as a private club.

ONE OF the more unique of 100 sailboats to be displayed Jan. 21-30 at the ninth annual Mid-America Boat Show in the Cleveland (O.) Public Hall will be the "sailboard."

The sailboard — surfboard that has been rigged for sailing — is 10 ft. long with a mast the same height.

Also on display at the show will be Bob Manry's "Tinkerbelle," the tiny craft which soloed the Cleveland newsman across the Atlantic.

Delta Theta Tau Sorority To Give $12,500 In Grants

Mrs. C. Ralph Hill, corresponding secretary of local Alpha Xi Chapter of Delta Theta Tau Sorority, announced that the sorority this year will give a total of $12,500 for educational grants in the specific field of guidance and counseling. Grants are awarded to college students in the junior and senior level or doing graduate work, based on their scholastic ability and financial need.

Anyone interested in more information or making application for a grant is invited to write or call Mrs. Hill at 305 Canyon-dr, Columbus, O. 43214, phone 263-6219, or contact any member of the local chapter of the sorority.

Delta Theta Tau Sorority has been associated with this project since 1959 and has given a total of $59,925 to 91 students throughout the United States.

Applications are reviewed by the International Philanthropic Committee of the sorority at the meeting in March and applications for the summer session 1966 or the academic year 1966-67, should be submitted not later than Feb. 15, 1966.

TO SPONSOR DINNER

South Methodist Church WSCS will hold its regular meeting Wednesday, Jan. 26, 7:30 p.m. at the church, Sixth-st at Morrill-av. The group is sponsoring a "Sauerkraut Dinner" Thursday, Jan. 27, 5 to 7 p.m. at the church. Adult price is $1.25 and children, 60 cents.

THRIFT CERTIFICATES

Ohio Federal Savings and Loan Association's new Thrift Certificates receive the big 4½ per cent dividends after one year on an initial amount of $1000. Accounts are insured up to $10,000 by an agency of the federal government and can be converted to cash or a regular savings account any time during the first year and earn Ohio Federal's big 4½ per cent dividend rate compounded quarterly. If you presently have an Ohio Federal savings account or wish to obtain Thrift Certificates, it will be necessary to stop at one of the six convenient Ohio Federal locations to obtain Certificates. Save at Ohio Federal, besides top earning, The Kind of Service YOU Like.

THE homemaker is a valuable member of the home care team in keeping the family together during the patients illness and in providing comfort to both patient and family.
She anticipates patient and family needs and brings cheer to the patient while helping her to regain some measures of responsibility and self-direction for herself and her home.
She compliments rather than substitutes for a visiting nurse and other professional trained personnel.

A Spectator Want Ad Goes

A LONG WAY

Girl Scout Cookie Drive Begins Feb. 4

When the closing school bell rings Feb. 4, one of the largest sales forces yet will begin taking orders for five flavors of Girl Scout cookies. The order-taking period closes Feb. 12.

In all, 308,418 individual boxes were sold in 1965, a spokesman said.

Proceeds from the cookie sale are used both by the troops and the council tc promote camping and year-round Girl Scout program. Each troop retains five cents on each package sold. With their money, troops finance trips to points of scenic, patriotic and historic interest, community service projects and program supplies.

Cancer Drive 'Key': Volunteers

More than 16,000 volunteers are being sought to advance research into the cause of cancer and its ultimate cure by distributing vital educational material, and by accepting donations during the April Cancer Crusade.

The goals rival in importance.

The need to recognize cancer's deadly danger signals, and to have annual physical check ups are outlined in pamphlets crusaders will distribute at each home.

And funds collected are used to continue research projects to discover the cause of cancer and how it can be prevented.

Each of the county sections is headed by a chairman, assisted by 10 captains who will, in turn, assist and supervise 10 crusaders. They wil leach cal upon 15 or 20 homes in their neighborhood during the six-day crusade in April.

Anyone interested in volunterring for the life-saving crusade may call the Franklin County Unit, American Cancer Society, 2300 W. Mound-st, 276-5134.

Urban Deterioration—

city also has caused unnecessary duplication of services. Many police, fire and water departments and library systems operate at considerable expense in the suburbs bordering Columbus. If they were controlled by central agencies, efficiency probably would be increased, and costs probably would be lessened.

One of the prime factors behind the suburban trend is improvement of transportation. The almost unbelievable increase in the number of cars and freeways during the last 30 years now makes it possible for persons to live miles from their jobs.

In the first part of the century, employe transportation was not considered an important part of the economy. Since 1932 (except for the war years), the two have progressed along almost parallel lines.

New York City's subway strike has proved how much the central city depends upon manpower and transportation from its far-flung suburbs.

Cleveland also has learned the lesson. Completely surrounded by suburban communities it has no room for growth. The core of the city continues to rot while business, industry and personal wealth is increasingly directed to the suburbs — the same suburbs which must depend on Cleveland for the advantages that only a city can offer.

Columbus has not reached the disaster stage, but time is running out. The city income tax, collected from nearly everyone who works in the city, has helped. But it is not the real answer. Neither is a massive annexation program.

Some other cities are beginning to work toward three goals:

- The education of those living in impoverished areas of the central city. The program should be based on action, not bureaucratic talk.
- Residential and business redevelopment of the central city. Suburban housing and the shopping center do offer some advantages that the city does not. But the central city should not give up. Columbus has been progressive in face-litfing its downtown area in recent years. Both this area and the recidential areas of the city should accelerate improvements to make themselves attractive to potential residents.
- The placing of prime-importance status on a Blue Plan or similar planning program.

Successful industries carefully plan their products and operations so that both the companies and the public are best served.

A wise city does the same.

Drake—

ed this denial "a disgrace to the people of Ohio." In regards to the decision (since about-faced) of the trustees to build a mansion for OSU President Novice G. Fawcett, Drake says:

"The trustees also decided to build their president a half-million dollar mansion with everything but a moat and a drawbridge to separate him from the peasants."

As Drake sees it, appointing students to sit in on trustee decisions will "enable the state to expect more mature judgment from the board" with "young, vigorous college students looking over their shoulders."

Drake is not confining his suggestion to Ohio State. He would like to see the plan started at other state-supported institutions.

Drake, a printer for a downtown evening newspaper, is a Columbus native. He was graduated from West High in 1927.

The 58th district embraces the communities of Arlington, Worthington, Grandview and Hilliard and includes the townships of Brown, Prairie and Norwich.

Bishop Will Ordain Rev. Titko Sunday

The Rev. Charles Edward Titko, pastor of the Obetz-Walnut Hill Methodist Charge, will be ordained an elder by Bishop F. Gerald Ensley in Walnut Hill Methodist Church, Sunday, Jan. 23. Service will begin at 7:30 p.m., followed by public reception in Hamilton Township High School cafeteria.

REV. CHARLES TITKO

Sponsors are the Rev. Charles A. Farthing, treasurer of the Ohio Conference and father-in-law of Titko, and the Rev. George J. Taylor, pastor of First Methodist Church, Columbus, where Titko was a member when called to the ministry.

The pastor earned a BS degree in social welfare at Ohio State University in 1961. He prepared for the ministry at the Methodist Theological School near Delaware, receiving his bachelor of divinity degree in May, 1965. His ministerial duties began as an assistant in First Methodist Church, Cambridge, 1961-62. He served Warrensburg Methodist Church, 1962-64, and was appointed to his present charge in June, 1964. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Titko, Rt. 2, Canal Winchester, he is married to the former Barbara Ann Farthing. Titko is chairman of the Hamilton Local School District Recreation Council and chaplain of the Hamilton Township Fire Department.

Hamilton Annexation Hearing Wednesday

The petition of Robert F. and Alpha Dotson to annex 16.94 acres to the city of Columbus will be heard by County Commissioners at 10 a.m. Monday, Jan. 24 in the Court House hearing room. The property, which now lies within Hamilton Township adjoins the Country Club Estates subdivision which in turn, hooks up with Southern Pines. In the past, township officials and residents have put up a vigorous fight against a number of similar attempts to make further inroads on township land.

Subdivision Can Add 400 To C-W School

Canal Winchester School Board members have learned housing is planned that can increase school enrollment by a third. This was revealed when John Meyer of Worthington who is developing the acreage recently rezoned from industrial to residential stated the area will be plated for 300 lots with 25 zoned for twin singles. Using the rule of the thumb of 1.3 school children per home, Carl Miller foresees the jump in student population. Although ground will be broken this spring, it is questionable whether there will be occupied homes by fall, as sewers and streets must first be built.

Ohio Conservatives To Organize Jan. 28

Ohio Conservatives Incorporated will hold a meeting at the Embassy Room of the Deshler-Cole Hotel, Friday, Jan. 28, 8 p.m., it was announced by chairman Albert B. Gregg. The meeting is the first designed to bring all Ohio conservatives into one action organization. All conservatives are invited, particularly those from Central Ohio.

Real Estate Tax Bills Up, Are Issued Today

Franklin County residents should receive tax bills today (Jan. 20) for the first real estate tax collection in 1966. According to County Treasurer Newton A. Thatcher, the final day for the collection will be Mar. 2. Collections this year are two weeks earlier than last year's. This year's total collection will be $34-million compared with $30-million last year. Thatcher attributed the increase to "new building activity and some extra tax levies voted by the people."

Communists Open Office In Columbus

By The Spectator's

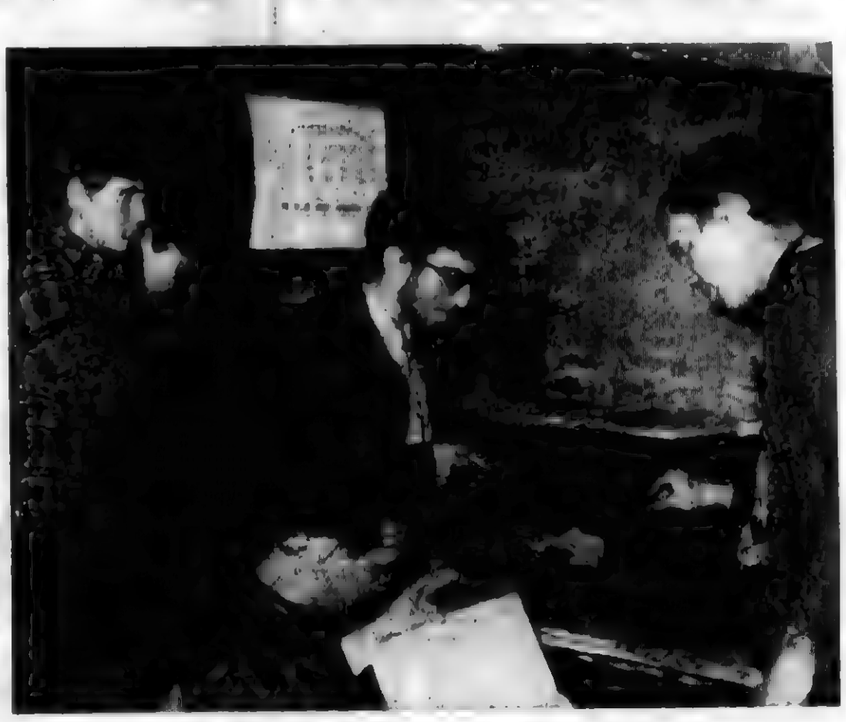
An Ohio State University off-campus group admitted to The Spectator this week that it is actively working in this city to overthrow the present system of American government.

The plan was revealed during an exclusive Spectator interview with John M. Houser, 20, who calls himself the Central Ohio organizer of the Spartacist Party.



"We definitely are Communists," Houser said. "But we prefer to call ourselves 'Spartacists' because some of our goals differ from those of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and the Communist Party, U.S.A."

The Sparticists last week quietly opened an office and mailing outlet in the basement of a building at 1508 Summit-st, in the shadow of the OSU campus.

When two Spectator reporters went to the office, they found 11 persons there. Most of them appeared to be between the ages of 20 and 30. Among them was a man who called himself "F-ther Bush," and said he is an ordained priest of a Lansing, Mich., church.

Houser said there are "less than a dozen" active Spartacists in Columbus, but added that there are many

Here's Spartacist History:

The Spartacist Party, which has opened a Columbus office and mailing outlet, is the result of many splits and fusions of Communist-Socialist groups:

- In 1928 the Communist Party of the Soviet Union expelled Leon Trotsky and 80 members of his "left opposition."
- The following year Trotsky supporters were expelled from the Communist Party, USA. These persons then formed the Communist League of America (CLA).
- The CLA also suffered numerous internal troubles, and some of its members left in 1936 to organize the Socialist Workers Party (SWP).
- In 1964 the SWP expelled a part of its membership that it labeled "the revolutionary tendency." Those who were expelled then organized the Spartacist Party.

John M. Houser, Central Ohio organizer for the Spartacists, told The Spectator that his group's ultimate goal is to convert the world to "true communism."

Houser said that socialism is only a step toward communism. He said true communism would be a "classless

D' Alan Huff Intending To Resign

D'Alan Huff, superintendent of Hamilton Local Schools since 1960, plans to resign, effective July 31.

He believes that employment with a larger organization is necessary for the professional advancement he seeks.

Huff informed the board of his intentions in a letter addressed to James Strouse. Strouse, former Hamilton music teacher who is now at South High, is serving as board president.

A formal letter of resignation will be presented for board action at the Apr. 11 meeting.

Pointing out that educational planning and programming have been completed through 1970 (a "Master Plan" was set up last year) and administrative details "routinized" Huff indicated that the groundwork has been laid that will make school administration relatively simple for his successor.

However, he reminded the board that circumstances beyond local control including mobility of population (the turnover at South Elementary attended by children living on Lockbourne AFB hit 18 percent in a 12-week period) will complicate the problems of continuing to give the students the best education possible.

D'ALAN HUFF

Attributing his own success in bringing the school district up to its present effectiveness to the industrial and military management experience he holds in addition to professional preparation, he reviewed the demands an administrator must meet.

Construction Bond Tax Set At 2.4 Mills

Final action was taken this week to ask voters in Madison Local School District to approve a 2.4 mill bond issue at the May primaries.

If approved, the $1,080,000 that will be realized from the issue will be used for site acquisition, construction of two elementary schools (Dunloe and Herderick sites) and a gymnasium for the junior high building now under construction.

The question of obtaining adequate central office space reamins a problem after the board decided against temporarily using the junior high area designed as a kitchen when the building is eventually converted to a senior high.

The architects' report indicated that the cost involved was not practical in view of the limited time before the area would, of necessity, be turned over to fulfill its original purpose.

Although board members have nothing definite in mind at this time, it is possible they will investigate the use of a residential building for office space.

The request from persons living near Benham-dr in Blacklick for school bus transportation to Asbury was denied.

Reconfirming its policy to keep Asbury Elementary a walk-in school, the board noted that the area is only 1.1 mile by paved street to the school. (State law requires transportation be provided for elementary children if they live more than two miles from the school).

This Week The Spectator Looks At Columbus Progress

Columbus has "a good thing going" to paraphrase the television commercial.

The core city has no natural or urban barriers to population and area growth. Annexations in 1965 boosted the city's square mileage to 104.70, making Columbus the 14th largest city, area-wise, in the nation and further securing its status of several years standing as the largest area city in Ohio. Columbus ranks second in population in Ohio.

Schools, libraries, and colleges have all announced plans to expand in 1965 to meet current needs and prepare for the future.

The Columbus Convention Bureau has predicted that conventioners will spend considerably more in 1965 than they did in 1966 when they brought an estimated $22 million to our city through local purchases, exclusive of rentals and association expenditures. It should be pointed out that convention money is re-spent an estimated seven times before it leaves Columbus! The city is the nation's third ranking convention site.

SPECIAL PROGRESS EDITION INSIDE

Columbus is far ahead of other major cities in the U.S. in its freeway construction program and 1966 should be another banner year for putting the highway "planwagon" on the road.

Major construction contracts will include sections of the East Freeway, Outerbelt (southeast) and Olentangy River-rd. The long-planned Wilson-rd extension is scheduled for contract stage in March.

A number of new business and industrial firms have announced expansion plans and several brand new firms will move into Metropolitan Columbus during 1966.

The local financial picture, according to all known indicators, is strong for 1966. The local banking and loan establishment is aggressive, progressive, and based on solid financial foundations.

Geography itself continues to work its magic for Columbus. Located within a 550-mile radius of two-thirds of the nation's population and midway between the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Ohio River, Columbus is situated in heartland of Ohio's rich agricultural belt. It is a major hub of inter-state transportation.

Research and development activities of the "brain-rich" Central Ohio constitute another exciting growth potential for Columbus.

A FEW FEARLESS PREDICTIONS FOR '66

New Highway Plans Nix Freeway Access

Columbus Postmaster Victor Bodish is taking strong objections this week to proposed changes by the state Highway Department to rebuild the Spring-Sandusky Interchange without access and egress to the new $14-million Columbus Postal Facility.

The new facility, now under construction in the northwest quadrant of the interchange, will serve 800,000 people in Franklin County besides serving as a concentration point for the distribution of mail to and from several hundred post offices in Central Ohio.

Bodish is sending out letters this week urging representatives of the Columbus Mail Users Council to voice

C-W Students Test High In Basic Skills

Results of the Iowa Test of Basic Skills given to fourth, sixth and eighth grade students in the Canal Winchester School district has the students, teachers, administration and school board strutting. The students in these three levels placed 29.3 percentile points above the national norm (the 50th percentile) and comparison with county norms was even more "gratifying." The tests were given with the goals of (1) quickly and reliably learning the accomplishments and abilities of individual students; (2) to allow effective pupil guidance; and (3) to elevate class achievement in view of strengthening instruction where indicated.

MOTHERS TO MARCH TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY

More than 8,000 Franklin County women will be ringing door bells next week on behalf of The National Foundation, March of Dimes.

The traditional Mothers' March, this year under the direction of Mrs. Jerry Spears, Jr., 2999 Fremont, has been scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 25 and 26. The ladies will be calling on their neighbors between 6 and 9 each evening.

Funds raised through the Mothers' March support The National Foundation's program of birth defect research, education andi therapy.

Mrs. Spears noted that a quarter-million babies are born annually in the United States with a serious birth defect. In Franklin County, one out of every 16 is afflicted.

"Many of us know mothers who had to ask why their babies were not born perfect," Mrs. Spears said. "The women who have volunteered to help in the Mothers' March are helping spare future mothers that question. The residents of Franidlin County can help too, through their answer to our appeal."

Canal Winchester: Mrs. Paul E. Smith, Applewood-ln, area chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Lemley, Carroll, co-chairman; Mrs. Paul Ricart, Mrs. Richard Weiser, Mrs. Lowell Morris, Mrs. Judson Wynkoop, Mrs. Ted Stevenson and Mrs. William R. Fagan.

Madison Township: Mrs. Lawrence Dowler, Groveport, area chairman.

SPONSOR DINNER

Members of South Methodist Church, Morrill-av at Sixth-st, are sponsoring a sauerkraut dinner, Thursday, Jan. 27, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m. Included on the menu are sauerkraut or green beans, pork, mashed potatoes and gravy, apple sauce, bread, butter and coffee or tea and pie. Adults, $1.25; children, 60 cents.

LAFB Club Gives $1,700 To Charity

Donation totaling $17,000 have been approved by the LAFB Officers Wives' Club here for support of various Columbus-area and base charity and welfare organizations, according to Mrs. William H. Dick, club welfare chairman.

Columbus' Franklin Village, a home for orphans, will receive $200. The Lockbourne AFB Chapel and base hospital will also get $200 each.

The Air Force Village is slated to recive $750, and the Air Force Aid Society scholarship fund $100. The on-base pre-school for handicapped and rearded children will get $50.

Fifty-dollar donations have been allotted to the Muscular Dystrophy Fund, March of Dimes, Adopt-a-Family, Tuberculosis Society, Cancer Fund, Heart Association, Lukemia Drive and Crippled Children's Society.

The funds were raised from the club's Charity Bazaar held last November.

Personal . . . Notebook

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schleppi and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Heckman of Groveport, enjoyed a visit to Sarasota Jungle Gardens while vacationing on Florida's Lower West Coast last week. Here the visitors mingle with flamingos and other rare and unusual wild fowl from every Continent, which roam freely in these gardens.

'WOMAN OF YEAR'

Miss Grace Medert, will be honored Sunday, Jan. 23 with a tea from 2 to 4 p.m. at the home of Miss Janet Clover by The Flambeau Chapter, American Business Women's Association as "Woman of the Year."

Italian Dinner Set At Groveport Church

Fellowship Hall of Groveport Methodist Church will be appropriately decorated for an Italian dinner Saturday, Jan. 29, 4:30 to 7 p.m.

The menu includes: spaghetti and meat balls, tossed salad (apple sauce for children), hot garlic bread, parmesan cheese, coffee, tea or milk and sherbet.

Tickets may be obtained by calling the church office before Jan. 25.

tendent has the responsibility for 3,700 students, five full-time administrators, 130 teachers and 50 non-professional employes.

Additional responsibilities include the budgeting and expenditure of a $2,000,000 annual budget, maintenance of property valued at $3,000,000, serving of 350,000 meals a year, and the transportation system for 1,700 students.

One facet of school administration that Huff reviewed in his letter to Strouse is relatively unique in the county.

The fact that Lockbourne feeds the district a large percentage of its students has a terrific financial impact on the school. (Federal funds are a major budget item).

In spite of Huff's contention that the next superintendent will find the system able to run on impetus for several years, some observers believe it will be difficult to find another administrator with Huff's deftness in touch when it comes to tapping Uncle Sam for money.

The letter, reminding the board that the financial situation is the best in recent history, advocated continued careful cost-watching.

However, Huff's statement that an assistant superintendent should have been appointed two or three years ago should be welcomed by his successor. (It is unusual for the superintendent of a system of this size to be without such help).

Excerpts from the four page letter follow:

"The Master Plan, which includes general expansion and improvement as well as the addition of In-School Data Processing (September 1966), Cosmetology (September 1966) and Automotive Mechanics (September 1967), provides for the maximum in educational programming for this district . . ."

"The public relations program has undergone a complete change under my leadership . . . The image of the schools is much better than that held by the public six years ago."

"The changes in the educational program of this district have occurred mainly because (1) I understood the mechanics of organization for change; (2) I was successful in obtaining effective, cooperative effort directed toward the goal and (3) I possessed the conceptual skill necessary to recognize the interrelationships of all the factors involved."

Bond—

perintendent, reported to the board a reading experiment at the third-grade level is being planned at Groveport Elementary.

The students will be divided according to reading level and each of the four third grade teachers will be in exclusive charge of instruction at one of these levels.

The Brice third grades, with one teacher in charge of all reading levels in her room, will be used as a control group. Evaluation will be made through tests given at the beginning and end of the semester.

Personnel matters included the employment of Ronald Curnutte for the balance of the year for the Groveport sixth grade and of James Clover of Carroll who will teach industrial arts in the high school for the 196-67 school year.

The resignation of Miss Rosaline Reade, junior high guidance counselor, was accepted, effective the end of the current year.

With the Attorney General ruling that substitute teachers are eligible for benefits provided by the state-wide $200 hike in teachers pay, the board agreed to raise substitute rates by $1.50 to $18.50 a day.

Other business included the report that $25,733.90 was earned on invested building funds last year and approval of contributing toward the salary of a federal programs coordinator employed by the county Board of Education to aid individual schools in their federally aided projects.

Because of a conflict, the date of the regular February meeting was advanced to Monday, Feb. 21.

Perversion And The Court

Trial Magazine reports that the U. S. Supreme Court is faced with nine obscenity appeals this term, the outcomes of which may strengthen and, indeed, give momentum to Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner's campaign to rid this city of smut.

Several of the cases, the magazine says, confront the Court with a type of expression that it has not put to its obscenity test before.

They deal with crudely-written tracts in which people continually lace each other up in leather and rubber clothing and whale away at one another with straps, paddles and bare hands. There are detailed drawings of Rube Goldberg-style restraining devices.

These cases underline the "obscenity" issue in clearer terms than the typical oversexed novel or overexposed film. The question is, at what point does the Constitution prohibit local authorities from suppressing material that is offensive to this community? When the material advocates no ideas, reaches no conclusions and merely attempts to titillate certain nerves, the answer should be easy.

This would hopefully encourage the opponents of smut to concentrate on these areas — which appear to afford all the challenge they can handle — and to stay away from the "Lady Chatterly Lovers" and the "Fanny Hills" that cause the court so much discomfort.

The American Civil Liberties Union has argued that the court should give obscenity full First Amendment protection, subject to the "clear and present danger" exception. Since it is unlikely that any pornographer could bring lewdness to the point of inciting people to immediate dangerous acts, this would effectively take the Federal courts out of the obscenity field.

Several of the justices would be delighted to be relieved of the job of acting as a "super-censor" of the nation. Perhaps the high court may be able to indicate to local authorities a wide area that is not protected by the First Amendment and then Columbus vice squadsmen can go to work here.

It would be ironic if the perverted material appealing to the masochists and sadists would, in effect, actually stab the pornographers, themselves, in the back.

"Any Ideas To Prevent More Of This Kind Of Thing?"

Letters To The Editor

On The Move

To the Editor:

On behalf of the residents of Ohio's 60th District, I would like to welcome a new resident, Roger W. Tracy, Jr., to that district.

One wonders why he would move from his home in Upper Arlington to a new residence on the near South Side. Mr. Tracy's answer would undoubtedly be that he wants to represent the people of the 60th district. And I ask why the 60th district? Why didn't he stay in the 58th district?

Rumor has it that Bill Schneider (county chairman for the Republican party) would not endorse Mr. Tracy unless he ran from the 60th district. Yes, I am sure Mr. Tracy has the interests of the people of the 60th district at heart.

If one calls telephone information and asks for Mr. Tracy's home phone, TWO numbers are given. One is for his HOME in Upper Arlington and the other is for his "residence" in the 60th district. I wonder where he really lives. Maybe he wants to grace both the 60th and 58th districts with his "representation." The only "representation" he has made as to the 60th district is that he now lives there.

I wonder how long Mr. Tracy will stay in the 60th district if he loses either the primary or general election. You can count on one thing: his exit will certainly be as quiet as his entry.

A Stitch In Time

Anyone who lived in this city 10 or 15 years ago could feel a pang of disappointment, undoubtedly, were he to return today and drive through what used to be quiet residential areas and respectable business districts.

The process is called, politely enough, urban deterioration. It has infected and contaminated such areas as the former "Heart of the Hilltop" section of the West Side and, surely, portions of the East Side.

How does it happen? Call it apathy. When residents neglect and ignore their neighborhood the deterioration process begins. It's like putting off the treatment of an infected cut.

Where were those now-shocked residents who could have petitioned years ago against the first honky-tonk bar that sought a liquor permit in their community? Where were those now-critical residents who could have made known their desires for limitations on zoning classifications before it got to be too late? And, where are those now-disgusted residents who could have formed an independent neighborhood council which could have seen to it that living standards stayed on a higher level?

They just never got around to acting. Instead, they moved out, saying, "Isn't it a shame? This used to be such a nice place?"

Fortunately, there are some wide-awake people and groups in some of the sore spots in Greater Columbus who have decided that the sinking ship is worth keeping afloat. They realize that progress is more than expansion of playgrounds for drunks, vagrants and hoods. They refuse to swallow the "big city, big crime" myth.

They will eventually win the battle, because they have taken the time to think and have realized the value of a stitch in time when people work together to keep the thread from breaking.

Calling Ohioans

By MICHAEL V. DiSALLE

The United States, and that means all fifty states, is in its fifth year of a period of prosperous business expansion. For the past four years the automobile industry has experienced boom sales. Consumer purchases for all products have increased steadily. Business investment in plant and equipment has broken all records.

Whereas during the fifties the nation's economic growth had been broken by frequent periods of recession, this has not been the experience since 1961. Consequently corporate profits have been increasing during this period.

Both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson were attacked on all sides by those who feared that income tax cuts would be destructive. But it is now quite evident that this helped put funds in the hands of consumers who in turn helped create the record-breaking period of prosperity.

Unemployment in the United States, that is in all fifty states, in December reached the lowest point in nine years. The unemployment rate for married . . . is the lowest since the Bureau of Labor statistics has been keeping the record, that means the United States — all fifty states.

The Forest And The Trees

Department of Commerce (U.S.) and the University of Michigan Research center have published surveys to the effect that consumers in the United States (all fifty states) have stepped up their plans to purchase durable goods.

Auto sales in 1966 look excellent in the U.S. Color TV sales will set another record for sales in the United States. Investment in plant and equipment will set a new record for the United States.

It is predicted that the Gross National Product for 1966 will reach $720 billion, a new record for the fifty states of the U.S. The employment problem is not one of lack of jobs but rather finding educated and skilled people to fill the available ones.

The shortage is not in jobs but in trained personnel. In addition, the increase in draft requirements will reduce substantially the number of people looking for jobs.

What will remain the same are the number of people who are being born retarded, the number of people who are disabled, the number of people who are blind, the number of people over the age of 65 who are unemployable, the number of unskilled people unemployed by automation. The need for teachers and professors will not remain the same, it will increase.

Ohio is behind in the quality and quantity of available education, a great improvement effort is needed other than buildings.

Perhaps Ohio would be better off with a legislative and an executive branch of government that recognizes the real problems of the State of Ohio and can and will do something about them.

Takes Exception

To the Editor:

I must take exception to the letter of Mr. Paul Wiley (Spectator, Jan. 13) and his purported interpretation of the Preamble to the U.S. Constitution. It most surely does state the "General Welfare provision" but if Mr. Wiley will read this Preamble carefully he will learn that it does NOT say the Federal Government shall "provide the general welfare" but does say "promote the general walfare." And another precept which has been perverted is the one calling for "equal opportunity for all" which has become "equal rewards for all."

And speaking of "government ownership and control," Mr. Wiley might be surprised to learn that as recent as 1963 (and it is reasonable to believe that these figures may be greatly expanded as of today), the Budget Bureau Director reported that the Federal government:

(1) Taxes and spends $1 out of every $6 in goods and services produced in the U.S.
(2) Employs 2.5 million civilians and 2.8 million miltiary personnel—one out of every 13 persons employed in the U.S.
(3) Owns 767,766,434 acres of land, about one out of every three acres in the country.
(4) Owns 421,260 buildings with 2.5 billion square feet of floor space and leases 96,381,000 sq. ft. of building space and 1,676,000 acres of land.
(5) Has $15 billion in farm commodities and stockpiled strategic materials.

Mr. Wiley might also profit by reading Edward Gibbon's renowned volume, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," and compare it with conditions prevailing in the U.S.

Lenin is quoted as having referred to the people of the U.S. as "useful idoits who lack intelligence to think for themselves but are mighty useful tools for promoting the cause."

On The Record

To the Editor:

The Fleet Reserve Association, Buckeye Branch 199 of Columbus, wishes to go on record as being in complete agreement, accord and support of the President's policy regarding our country's actions in Viet Nam.

A majority of attention seems to be given to a minority consisting of those who obviously do not love their country, almost to the point of treason. This prompts us to add the 125 voices of our membership to the growing list of those who wish it to be known that we love our country and are proud to be Americans.

The Zip 'Road' Struggle

Rain, sleet, nor snow may never stay the stalwart postal carrier from his appointed rounds, but the State Highway Department may.

That's the sad conclusion —drawn from the Highway Department's preliminary plan to close the present access points to the freeway system for the new $14,000,000 post office planned for Columbus.

Highway plans call for the post office to have access only by way of the Goodale Interchange and/or from the proposed Grandview-av Interchange, via a service road.

In effect, this would build a Chinese Wall around the site and no direct access to and from the downtown area would be available.

According to Postmaster Victor Bodish, this would necessitate out-of-the-way travel — 1.6 additional miles per round trip — to and from the downtown area to the new building. It would greatly inconvenience the some 800,000 people served and result in increased costs estimated at $10-million over the terms of the post office's 30-year lease. It's an inexcusable waste of taxpayers' money.

It's hard to imagine, but the stroke of a pen could destroy all of the post office plans of the last 13 or 14 years for improved mail service in Columbus and Franklin County. Inferior service will be the ultimate result.

The post office is under construction, and on schedule. Post office plans cannot be changed. Highway plans are now under consideration and are not finalized. They can be changed to give the public and the post office in-and-out access into the downtown area, and south.

It's not much to ask, really, of Governor James Rhodes and Highway Director P. E. Masheter who, themselves, benefit from the fastest mail service at the lowest cost, for its size, anywhere in the world.

Con Men And Green Pastures

Since the passage of the Medicare Bill evidence is strong that confidence men may contact Franklin County residents and fraudulently solicit various health care programs as representatives of Blue Cross, other insurance companies, or even the Social Security Administration.

All citizens should be sure that the salesman is from a reputable company and can furnish proper identification to this effect.

You should be wary of any salesman asking for the premium in cash or in a hurried fashion, particularly if he cannot furnish full information on the program he is selling or exactly what it provides in benefits.

William R. Morris, Ohio Director of Insurance, urges you to contact the Social Security Office in connection with any matter pertaining directly to the Medicare Program.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . By Marquis Childs

As cruel a choice as any President ever faced—that is the prospect for Lyndon Johnson at the start of the second year of his first full term as Chief Executive. In any objective view of where we stand today the President is seen, in fact, to have no choice.

The guns-versus-butter argument is almost wholly meaningless. It implies that by trimming off a little fat the nation can devote itself to winning the war in Viet Nam. As Chief Executive, Johnson knows how false this is.

He has had on his desk for some time a report still classified secret showing 21 "high tension" cities where there is steady deterioration in the Negro ghettos. To ignore this and postpone or abandon the programs for making at least a start at correcting a century of injustice is to risk disaster. Violence and rioting on the scale of Watts could break out in any one of these cities in coming months.

But as Commander-in-Chief he has come to understand the nature of the trap that is Viet Nam.

The Mansfield report is believed to have been the most important factor in the common-sense decision the President has for the time being arrived at. That is to make Viet Nam a holding operation while a new and revitalized attempt is underwritten to win the villages and pacify the areas held by the South Vietnamese with American help.

This comes belatedly after the tragic errors of the past have been compounded. The so-called hamlet program was little more than a system of armed stockades within which helpless villagers were confined often at the mercy of returning Viet Cong. The new program is inspired by Maj. Gen. Edward G. Lansdale, consistent advocate of the vital need to win the allegiance of the Vietnamese people. Economic aid to the south will be doubled this year with the full backing of the AID administrator, David Bell, who has long proved his ability and dedication in this difficult post.

Part of the new program is to try to broaden the base of the government in Saigon. It is today hardly more than a shadow government with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky representing a dominant military faction. The critics of negotiation make a powerful point when they say that any agreement to end the war would almost inevitably result in a takeover by the Communists in South Viet Nam in a relatively short time. But the more the government slips into the role of American puppet the less likely it is that any independent regime can ever be established, with South Viet Nam becoming an American protectorate into the indefinite future.

As head of his political party, the third horse he must ride in a race with odds that the founding fathers could hardly have conceived, the President understandably did not show his entire hand. And it is here in the weeks just ahead that the testing will come. For a large part of the military, conspicuously the Air Force, and their spokesmen will fight what appears to be a holding operation looking to an eventual settlement.

To ridicule the President's peace offensive is easy enough. The conventional diplomat shudders in distaste. But there is increasing evidence that it has had a marked effect in both the Allied and non-aligned worlds, and no one can say what may be the results behind the Communist barriers. Here is a man determined to find his way out of the trap who will not stand on the conventional wisdom.

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

COLUBMUS HOSTS TWO MARILYNS

"Funny Girl" is funny. At times it is hilarious, yet highlighted with serious and touching dramatic scenes.

Marilyn Michaels, as Fanny Brice, has the Streisand sound in several numbers. She is a good actress, but not a strong comic, which is necessary for this role. Marilyn's comedy is too mechanical and rehearsed. It lacks spontaneity and sparkle. Due to excellent, humorous dialogue and capable directing, she gets the job done.

Marilyn Maye, her voice, charm, beauty and personality is at the Bowery until Saturday. She is not a vocalist, Marilyn is a singer. One can use all of the adjectives in the book — fabulous, great — and one will not describe her talent.

She is unbelievable.

Miss Maye has terrific styling and phrasing. There is no imitation or copying. It's all Marilyn Maye. Her repertoire runs from show tunes to jazz, with lots of variety in between. There is something for everyone.

As Steve Allen says, "Marilyn is so great, she should be teaching." Let's hope she stays out of the school room and remains on stage. Marilyn's act is too refreshing and exciting for school. She is an entertainer with loads of talent.

Normandy Room A Must

The other night yours truly dined at the newly opened - to - the - public Normandy Room at Stoney Creek. The food is scrumptious, the service superb.

Roger McElroy, the new manager, has many years of experience in the restaurant and hotel field. He was on the staff of the Daniel Boone Hotel in Charleston, and the King Edward Hotel in Toronto, Canada.

Nationally known for his convention and banquet planning, McElroy has arranged a menu offering fine selections of foods prepared to your own taste, at very reasonable prices. Hours of the new dining room are from 5:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays, Sundays 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. and closed Mondays.

The Normandy Room is a short drive from downtown, and should be a must on your menu.

Ole Opry Stars

One blockbuster of a show you don't want to miss is the "Grand Ole Opry" which will be at Veterans Memorial, one night only, Saturday, Jan. 29 at 8:15 p.m. This is one of the oldest shows still on radio.

The tickets are going fast for the performance of stars, such as: Webb Pierce, Red Sovine, Ray Price, the Cherokee Cowboys, Little Jimmy Dickens and Max Powell.

Tickets are on sale at Central Ticket Office (Richman's) 37 N. High-st and at Sears Northland and Town and Country.

VLT Has 'Patterns'

Village Little Theatre's second major production of the season is "Patterns," written by James Reach and adapted from the compelling television play by Rod Serling. "Patterns" will be presented Feb. 3, 4 and 5, 8:30 p.m. in Brownlee Hall of First Community Church, 1320 Cambridge-blvd.

The plays deals with the behind-the-scenes politics of a giant corporation and the struggle of a young executive to make a place for himself in the corporation without sacrificing his own idealistic standards, in spite of the organization and his ambitious wife.

Tickets may be purchased at the door, or by calling Joan Turner, 486-5330.

Irishman's Delight

If you're looking for real Irish hospitality and good food, the Old Tavern Dining Room is the place for you. Featured on the menu is old fashion Irish Stew, made by Pat Malone himself.

Businessmen's luncheons are offered every day. Sunday, the Old Tavern Dining Room specializes in dinners for the entire family.

Irish or not, you'll enjoy the quaintness of this room.

'Witness' Next At Hartman

One of Hollywood's all-time favorite stars, Ray Milland, heads the large cast of 26 players in "Hostile Witness," as the new American production of this London smash hit plays a pre-Broadway, one-week-only engagement at the Hartman Theatre, Monday evening, Jan. 24 through Saturday, Jan. 29.

The show is produced by Jay Julien, the producer of "A Hatful of Rain," and Andre Goulston. It is directed by Reginald Denham, who was at the helm of such Broadway hits as "Dial M For Murder" and "The Bad Seed."

Odd Jobs . . .

James Bond has had many odd jobs (including the Odd-job who tried to kill him in "Goldfinger,") but none have been any odder than the one Sean Connery, who plays Bond, has had in real life. Again starring as Agent 007 in "Thunderball," now at the Loew's Ohio Theatre, through United Artists release, Connery was a milk-truck driver, a cement mixer, brick layer, steel-bender, printer's assistant and lifeguard . . . and a slightly macabre stint of polishing coffins.

CONSIDER MORE THAN JUST PER CENT RATES.

It is little wonder you may be slightly confused about savings rates and plans. Ohio Federal Savings and Loan Association also raised dividend rates to 4¼ per cent compounded quarterly and 4½ per cent on Thrift Certificates to assure our savers top earnings but only after the following questions were determined.

1. The higher dividend rates do not force Ohio Federal to reduce customer services which we call, The Kind of Service You Like.
2. Higher rates normally require a higher borrowing rate. Ohio Federal intends to maintain the borrowing rate as low as possible by efficient business practices and good management, because we want to assist as many families as possible to purchase such things as a home at the lowest cost.

Knowing our reasons for a higher dividend rate, we hope you consider Ohio Federal Savings and Loan Association when you save or want a loan. We still have The Kind of Service You Like and top earnings on savings.

'Century Mark' New Trademark For C-W Five? Teays Valley Victory Paramount For SSL 'Life'

By BOB WHITMAN

"We want one hundred . . . We want one hundred."

Cheerleaders usually don't get the opportunity to lead that cheer, but for the five attractive misses at Canal Winchester, the cheer is pretty popular.

IN FACT, THEY used it twice last weekend as the Indian basketballers roared over the vaunted century mark against Academy and Amanda for 206 points in two games.

"Things like that (105 points over Academy the night before) don't happen often, we probably won't see it again," Miller said.

"It sure was nice," he added.

CANAL WINCHESTER brought Academy down 105-82 Friday and then scored 101 points to Amanda Clearcreek's 74 Saturday.

Big point men in the 206 scoring spree were Jim Burke (28), Bill Miles (34), Vic Argobright (37), Steve Smith (26), Dick Whitmer (25) and Harris Windsor (22).

This week the spunky (9-1) Indians travel to University (3-8) to attempt to continue their offensive output. Those triple digit games boosted Canal's offensive firepower to 76.5 points per game as compared to the Little Bucks' 59.5 scoring show.

CANAL WINCHESTER will meet a pair of pretty fair offensive minded Little Bucks Friday that must be handled with a dash of defense.

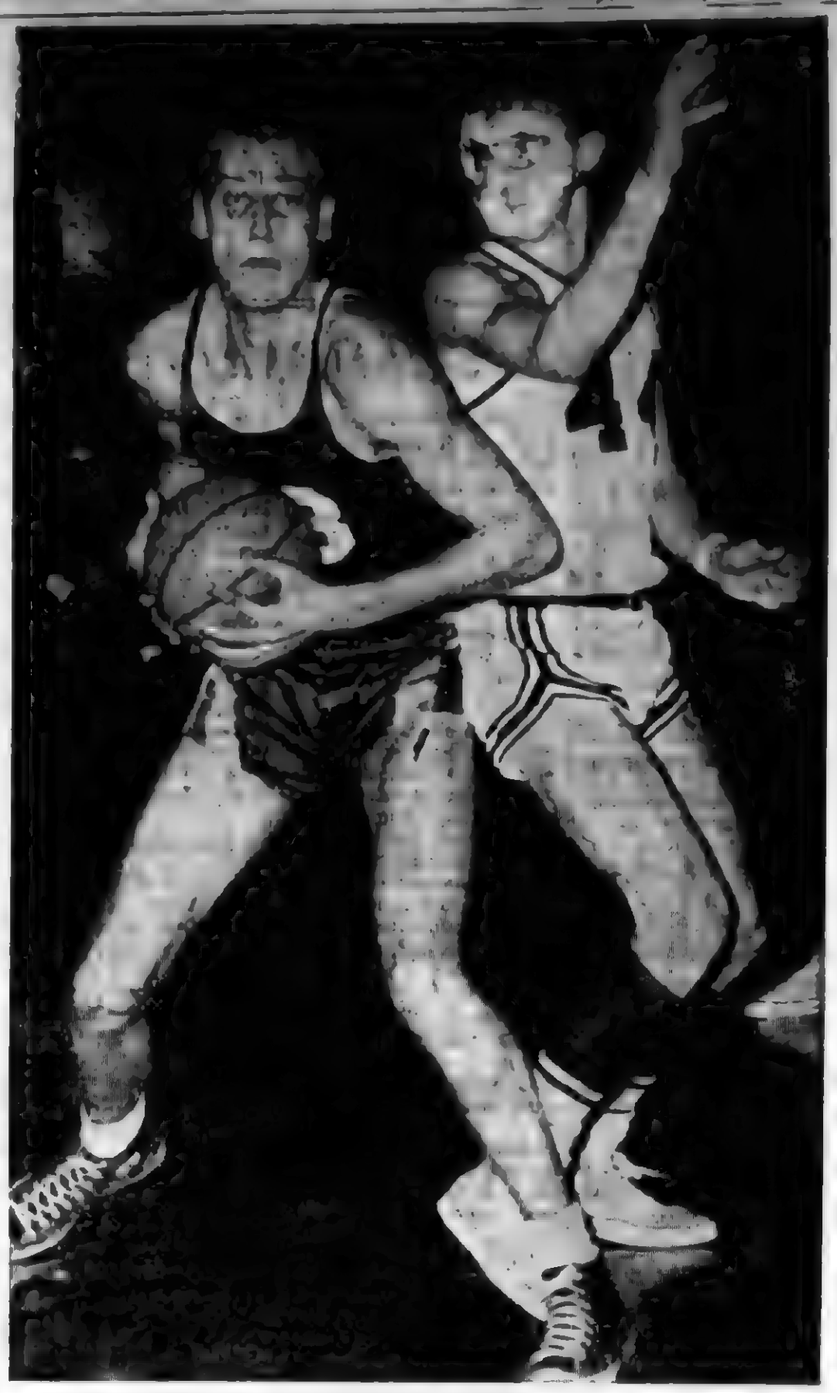
THAT TOTAL represents more than half of the Bucks' point output this season.

Canal's scoring is a little more balanced with all starters making a contribution. Whitmer has an 11.8 mark, Burke is currently tops with a 15.5 average, Argobright is scoring 14.4 points a game, slick passing guard Steve Smith has an 8.3 mark and center Bill Miles has scored 9.3 points per outing.

One of the most attractive assets of the Indians' FCL title drive is bench strength they possess. Three subs who have served masterfully when called are Windsor (4.9 per game), Joe Sayre (5.7) and Dave Ferber (3.6).

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP faces a pair of rugged opponents this weekend in Teays Valley and Bishop Hartley. Both of the Rangers' foes are considerably better than their records.

The Rangers (1-8) will need the best of transfer Russ Mobley's abilities plus the continued scoring of John Gorczyca and Ed Hart this weekend.



TEAYS VALLEY (6-6) will fashion a slick shooting combine headed by Butch Kinsell's 15.4 points per game.

Hartley will meet with Mobley for the second time this season. He played against them in a Marion Franklin uniform and was held to one point.

The Hawks are paced by a trio of brothers, Rodney, Denny and Doug Parker, all of whom average between 13 and 16 points a game.

IN OTHER AREA action: Groveport (1-9) meets surprising and unbeaten Hilliard (10-0) in Mid-Eight League action Friday.

Larry Hilbert, the Cruiser scoring ace, is averaging 13.8 points per game.

SHOCK WAVE — It's hard to tell whether Hamilton Township eager Russ Mobley (with ball) is amazed that he has no competition for this rebound under the Pleasant View basket or just plain "shook" by the presence of a masked Jeff Coe (44). League-leading Panthers downed Rangers, 57-43.

'Fearless' Predictions

When he looked at this week's list headed by East-Linden, "Fearless" called in ill which probably didn't come as any shock to his faithful followers.

Last week, however, the "Fearless One" called the West-Linden game correctly but had a little trouble with his crystal ball in the CBL and Buckeye Conference.

Overall "Fearless" total is 168-56.

Northside, W-R 'Invites', Groveport Quad Tastiest Items On Mat Diet

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Two big invitationals and a quadrangular at Groveport highlight high school wrestling fare this weekend as the '65-'66 mat season approaches the halfway mark.

Biggest attraction is scheduled for Worthington where the second annual Northside Invitational unfolds Saturday, bringing together Central Ohio's top three grappling strongboys — DeSales, Worthington and Brookhaven — in an eight-team field which could well indicate the '65 district champion.

JOINING THE above trio will be Whetstone, Westerville, Linden, Arlington and Jonathan Alder.

Prelims get underway at noon with semi-finals (including consolation and loser's bracket competition) finishing up about 5 p.m.

After a break, finals will begin at 7 p.m.

TEAM TROPHIES will be awarded to both winner and runnerup with additional cups going to the top 11 individuals, the invite's "most outstanding wrestler" and the grappler securing the most pins in the least amount of time.

Medals will go to individual runnersup and ribbons will be awarded to third-place finishers.

Admission will be 75 cents for adults (for each of two sessions) and 50 cents for students.

BROOKHAVEN won the event last year with Worthington finishing second and DeSales third.

Host coach Bob McMahan sees the tourney as "nip 'n tuck," adding that both DeSales and Brookhaven have outstanding "tourney" teams while his own Cardinals are more of a "dual" team this season.

F-H INVITATIONAL

ARLINGTON, failing to win a first place, finished fifth with 51 points Saturday at the Falcons' "invite," behind winner West (77 pts.).

The closest the Golden Bears got were finals losses by Nathan Nietz (112) and Bill Hartman (133). Consolation wins (third place) went to Buddy Reuting (127), Terry Barnhill (145), Wes Bates (175) and heavyweight Tom Kahn.

GROVEPORT-CIRCLEVILLE

Groveport piled up a heavy 24-0 lead on pins by John Kallies (112), Jeff Nelle (133) and Jack Woodworth (138) and decisions by Jim McConaha, Ron Miller and Skip Musselman.

CIRCLEVILLE rallied strongly but too late—taking wins in four of the final five classes, Tim Michaels' decision at 154 the Cruisers' only scoring after 138.

Groveport is operating without the services of its regular 145-pounder — Bill Nelle, currently sidelined by a bum knee.

Nix lists Nelle as "doubtful" until February.

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP took it in the chin twice last week—losing in dual competition to Hilliard, 51-0, and getting shutout at the Westerville Invitational, won by DeSales Saturday.

T-V Loop To Drop Babe Ruth Baseball

The league decided not to register boys over 14 years of age this year. This would have the effect of eliminating Babe Ruth teams. There will be a pony league for boys 13 and 14 years of age, however.

Mosquito and Little League teams will also play as well as girls softball teams.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

Grandpa always said "Something's wrong if you fear the newspapers." I believe he was pluperfect right.

Early last fall, I wrote a real nice letter to the paper tigers at Ravenna Arsenal and asked them if I could be on hand to see my deer shot. No one bothered to answer.

I WAS determined to find out if the situation had changed since my last trip there in 1962 — at which time I had repeated attacks of nausea from watching the slaughter. (I love a fair chase, clean kill and proper harvest of our deer herd — but this was nothing like that.)

Paugh

I had printed and sent to the 100 'lucky' shotgun hunter a survey sheet to find out what they saw. Two out of three sheets I got back had witnessed either illegal or unethical hunting at Ravenna.

Three out of four answers asked that the deer be removed from the Arsenal so the rightful owners—the taxpayers—could hunt them.

I'LL QUOTE a few phrases in the words of the hunters:

"One man killed five deer—they use the drawing winners to drive for special friends—I got kind of sick after I saw a small deer caught in a fence and someone shot it—a doe lying in a fence for a week—almost every state law on deer hunting was broken.

"I belive I could have more fun shooting cattle—does this go unnoticed in Columbus and Washington?

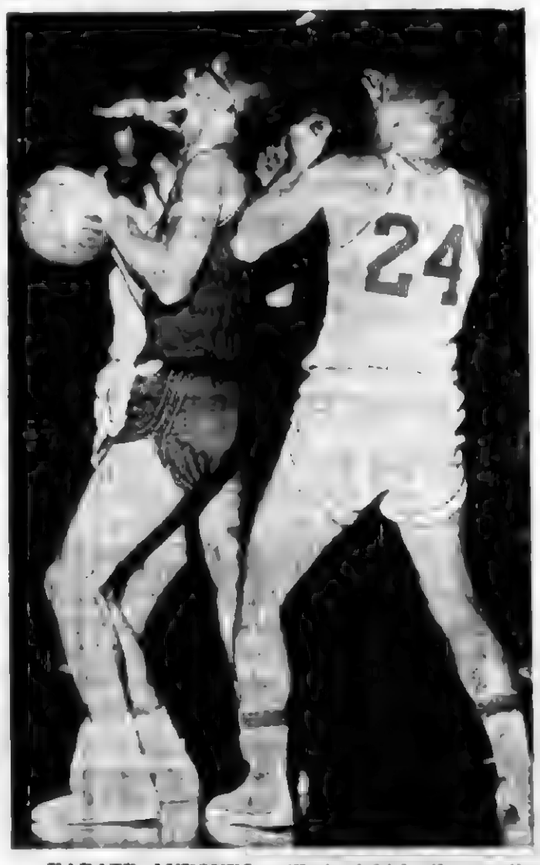
"I was delighted to receive your letter. I have been bursting to tell someone—we did the driving for the 16 members of the Firestone Gun Club—It was political all the way—I won't go again—The majority of the deer killed that day were fawns.

"It's a shame this herd can't be saved so that all hunters can have a chance to hunt them—I hope something can be done to keep these animals from being wiped out like cattle in a slaughter house—disgusting—my permit arrived the day of the hunt.

"I couldn't go—if the Maverick hadn't published the drawers list, I wouldn't have known that I was selected.—All ideal stands were occupied by people in jeeps—No sportsmanship, just slaughter.

"We were not allowed to follow cripples—too many people on first name basis with the wardens—much smaller than deer on the outside of the arsenal—32 of us got 30 deer—I had my name drawn to hunt Ravenna but did not receive the permit until the day I was to hunt—We should have laws encouraging the killing of six-month fawns, mine was tender and very good."

SO IT GOES, even the reading of the survey sheets makes me ashamed I'm a part of the human race. The Ravenna Arsenal in northeast Ohio is about 22,000 acres big and completely fenced.



The deer herd is estimated at 1,500 to 2,000—about one-tenth of Ohio's total herd is contained there. These deer are a part of Ohio's heritage and by law belong to the people of Ohio—not to WASHINGTON.

Back during the early years of World War II, the land was condemned and taken from its owners in the name of the defense of our country.

AFTER WW II, like so many wartime gestures, Ravenna was kept in a state of mothballs with the Firestone Company as maintenance people to care for it. Like so many other tax-eating, non-tax producing Federal land, it could be phased out and wouldn't hurt a thing.

Instead, it is maintained as the private hunting ground for Firestone, the Federal government and any friend of a friend that can politic an invite.

IN RESEARCHING this story, I was lied to by the very people who should be trying to get the mess straightened out.

Two Columbus area students at Otterbein College are members of the varsity wrestling team at Otterbein which opened its season Tuesday, with a home meet against Denison University.

Among the returning lettermen is sophomore Jac Dill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philman Dill, 2015 Dixby-rd. Lockbourne. Dill is wrestling in the 152-lb class. Before entering Otterbein, he was graduated from Groveport High in 1964

THE FRESHMAN list includes Fritz Goss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Goss, 3592 Karl-rd, Columbus. He will be competing in the 167-lb. class.

A 1965 graduate of Brookhaven High, Goss also was a member of the Otterbein football team last fall.

The Cardinal wrestlers under Coach Larry Lintner finished last season with a less-than-desirable 1-7-1 mark and with several returning lettermen who scored well as freshmen should improve the record.

THE OTTERBEIN schedule:

Jan. 22—at Akron
Feb. 2—at Kenyon
Feb. 5—Baldwin-Wallace
Feb. 9—at Ohio Wesleyan
Feb. 15—Capital
Feb. 19—at Muskingum
Feb. 23—at Wittenberg
Feb. 26—at Heidelberg
Mar. 4-5—OC Meet

SE Lions To Sponsor Headpin Tournament

The Southeast Lions Club is sponsoring a Headpin bowling tournament which opens Saturday and runs for four consecutive weekends (Saturdays and Sundays through Feb. 13).

Bowling hours will be from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on these dates at Swan Lanes, 1493 Parsons-av.

First prize will be $150, second, $75 and third, $50. There will be separate prizes for top lady bowlers.

Name The Scheme And It's Probably Operating In Columbus

SECOND OF A SERIES

Few cities in the United States are, as a Better Business Bureau official so tersely phrased it this week, "blessed" with the variety of get-rich-quick sharpies currently taking residents of the Greater Columbus area.

This month the National BBB organization compiled a list of the "ten most prevalent" schemes which they gleaned from operations throughout the country.

According to the list, the 10 most prevalent include, in order:

Bait and switch, home improvement, chain referrals plan, charity gyps, phoney credit certificates, business opportunity schemes, debt consolidation gouging, victimizing the aged, health quakery and work-at-home types.

This is not to say that all businesses in greater Columbus which fall into these categories are illegitimate. It does tend, however, to make it tough on the honest guys with the high rate of dishonest operations in existence here.

Included among the sharpies who have hit-and-run taking Columbus dollars is a firm which calls itself "Hit Parade" records. You may have one in your collection right now and still wondering how you got taken. (The concern has been known as Economy Records, also).

Columbus record dealers bought the discs when they were too busy to examine the merchandise. They later find out that Hit Parade representatives have promptly cashed their $210 check and vanished leaving the dealers stuck with a large quantity of out-of-date, scratched, used records by unknown entertainers (three of these include gems such as "Senate Hearing," "Barber Shop Chorus Winners of 1954" and a tuneless little 45 entitled "Lock Up)."

Another thing you might watch for here is used car lots trying to peddle autos damaged in Louisiana last fall by Hurricane Betsy. Rusted metal is being painted with a special paint, upholstery is being cleaned up and engines are being rubbed down with diesel oil.

Reputable dealers won't be selling them, of course, but beware of the small classified ad that appears to be only an individual selling his car.

There are certain signs to watch for to find out whether you're getting a Betsy Car or not. For instance, if the car has been water soaked the springs under the back seat will show rust. Use your nose to sniff out a musty odor.

There's a "wholesale" practice that is invading the greater Columbus area, too. As the BBB puts it, "It should make sense to almost anybody that you can't conduct a retail business and sell at wholesale prices, yet over and over again the magic of the word "wholesale" attracts consumers in this city to useless "membership" in buying clubs.

The most recent to come this way, the BBB reports, is the Nationwide Wholesalers Service of Oceanside, N. Y. This firm charges $3 for a wholesale buying guide that supposedly saves you the price of the middle man on everything you buy.

The difficulty is that there is so much open to debate on the subject of what is wholesale and what is not. What may be a wholesale price in California, for instance, can be far higher than the ordinary retail selling price in Columbus.

What is being done to rid the city of the schemers? The BBB is about the only group actively in the fight, but they can't handle it all alone.

Roger Tracy To Be Candidate

Roger W. Tracy, Jr., 1116 S. High-st, son of the late auditor of state, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state representative from the 60th Representative District of Franklin County. Tracy, 27, is a practicing attorney and an active Republican in the county. He is a graduate, in business administration, of Miami University in Oxford, and received his law degree from Ohio State University. Tracy served as an administrative assistant to his father, the late Roger W. Tracy Sr., when the latter was state auditor. In 1959 he was appointed a special messenger for the White House staff during the administration of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He has also been a research assistant in the Ohio Legislative Reference Bureau. In the latter capacity, Tracy drafted bills and resolutions for adoption by the 105th General Assembly.

Will Honor Top Ten Young Men

The 10 outstanding young men in Columbus selected by a panel of community leaders, will be honored at a Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce banquet January 22 at the Neil House. One of the ten will be announced as the outstanding young man in Columbus. Speaker at the banquet will be Ohio Attorney General, William Saxby. For ticket information, contact the Jaycee office, 228-2773.

If the plans are finalized it would mean that the most direct route from the new facility to the downtown business area will be via the Goodale Interchange, Neil-av and Long-st.

Bodish told The Spectator that he also objects to the fact that the freeway change would tend to isolate the new facility.

"The architectural design is beautiful, and the grounds will be landscaped," Bodish says. "This building will be an asset to our community. Why hide it behind a Chinese Wall?"

Predictions—

pansion for the American economy," according to Dr. Paul C. Craig, Ohio State University economy department chairman.

• General business indicators for Columbus should rise seven to nine percent.

• Unemployment rates should stay well below the national averages.

• Loan demand should remain high and credit conditions firm.

Not quite so roseate predictions came from those in the retail trades, as summarized by Kenneth C. Harris of the F. & R. Lazarus & Company:

• Total wholesale prices of retail goods will increase more than two per cent, observable chiefly in the cost of shoes, handbags, furniture and men's clothing.

• Some benefit to retailers from average monthly increase of $6 in Social Security pension payments which began in October, 1965.

• Price of doing business to go up as result of increased Social Security contributions by employers. Some employees will lose purchasing power as a result of their increased personal Social Security deductions.

• Retailers will have to work harder to register year-to-year sales increases.

• Lower rates of income gain in Columbus than have been experienced recently. An approximate one percent gain this quarter over the first quarter of 1965 should result in about a four percent year-to-year gain in income.

• Overall retailing increases of approximately two to three per cent in the 12-month period, slowing down as summer approaches and picking up again in the fall.

Here's the probable effect on the Central Ohio area of defense spending as seen by Herbert G. Davis of North American Aviation, Inc.:

• Columbus area to share in benefits of Ohio's sixth or seventh place rating among the states in military expenditures by the Department of Defense. National expenditures expected to rise from $48 billion in fiscal 1965 to near $51 billion in fiscal 1966 as a result of the Viet Nam buildup.

• Peaks and valleys of business due to the phasing out of old and phasing in of new contracts to remain evident throughout the year.

Herbert H. Trumbo, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., in speaking of total kilowatt hour sales as a business indicator, predicted that his firm will realize a seven percent gain in kilowatt sales over 1965 in the Columbus district. He based this outlook on Central Ohio's population increases, substantially greater than those of the state or nation, the continued increase in customer usage, and increasing acceptance of electrical heating.

The favorable level of commercial building and developments experienced this year is expected to continue throughout this year. The appearance of new factories, several high-rise apartment houses and retail businesses, in addition to creating greater demand for electric power, will draw more and more persons into Ohio's work force.

Because of the high birth rate for several years following World War II, family formation is expected to be at high levels during 1966. By the end of 1966, some 20,000 more persons in Franklin County will be served by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company than in the year just past.

Conclusion

Summing up the predictions by the Chamber's Economic Advisory Subcommittee, the chairman, Dr. Robert A. Rennie of Nationwide Insurance Companies, pointed out that committee members were in close agreement that continued good days lie ahead for business across the nation, but particularly for Columbus business. It behooves the wise businessman to prepare for them.

SUM AND SUBSTANCE: A Look At The Week's News

By CHUCK HARTLE

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is not a part of the curriculum at OSU. But there are a number of residents of the university area, including students and an instructor, acting out the parts of Happy, Dopey and Sleepy as they concoct magic potions of marijuana and LSD.

Raids this past week by Columbus police vice squadmen have resulted in 19 arrests on narcotics charges. Vice Squad Chief Capt. Herman Beck says the organized rings have been neutralized, and the remaining "smokers" hopefully have been discouraged. The Franklin County Grand Jury started an investigation Monday.

Two Westerville High School teachers were cleaning paint brushes with gasoline and you can guess what happened. Fortunately, the burns they suffered were not serious, but the damage to the house was estimated to be more than $10,000. Apparently neither was a chemistry teacher.

Beautiful new Morse-rd, six lanes wide from the Freeway east to Cleveland-av, is unfit to handle present traffic on it, according to City Traffic Engineer James V. Musick. It should have been designed with service roads.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps now has 714 youngsters employed by the board of education, Catholic school system and Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority. Some 335 more will be hired to work at the State School, State Hospital and at settlement houses. The federal government is kicking in $1.4 million to this program.

OSU's fine quarterback of a few years ago, Tom Matte, had to switch to halfback with the Baltimore Colts. The pros couldn't use his roll-out style. But when injuries forced the Colts to re-convert Matte to quarterback, they were pleased to find him good enough to produce three great closing games, including victories over the Rams and Cowboys and an overtime loss to the Packers.

A new $.5-million library at Rio Grande College in Southeastern Ohio has been named for Jeanette Albiez Davis, wife of Samuel Davis of Columbus. She is a principal donor to the library fund.

local "sympathizers" and "contacts." He said ages of local active members range between 18 and 50.

A file at the Spartacists office contains the names, addresses, phone numbers and other information concerning about 100 persons, most of them local.

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights struggle, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . . "

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

Houser specifically mentioned that the Spartacist Party played a "leadership role" in the formation of the Columbus Viet Nam Day Committee. This is the group which during the past year, has sponsored several anti-war demonstrations downtown and at the university.

"We (Spartacists) call for the immediate, unconditional withdrawal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam and complete victory for the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong)," said Charles Luce who is the campus coordinator of Spartacist activities at OSU.

Luce, a sophomore in the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said his job is to recruit Spartacist members from various other university groups.

Houser denied that his group has any connection with the OSU area "narcotics ring" now under investigation by local police, federal agents and the Franklin County Grand Jury. He termed police statements liking the left wing with the narcotics traffic as "a pure intimidation and smear attempt."

"The idea of using it to recruit is ridiculous because we would be opening ourselves to legal trouble and unfavorable publicity," Houser said.

"We don't want the kind of person in our organization who would be attracted to narcotics."

Society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

The national Spartacist membership total is "internal information," according to Houser.

Just Step This Way-- New Skills On Sale

However, 12 registrations are necessary before any one course will be offered. Fee for the non-credit subject is $8 for the 12 week term, and registration will close after the opening meeting. Class time is from 7 until 9 p.m. each Tuesday. Subjects open for sign-up include instruction in the operation of audio-visual equipment; bookkeeping and office machines; industrial education including cabinet making; refresher courses in English and Latin; general math, Algebra I and II and plane geometry; beginning and advanced typing; public speaking and any science or social study courses that are demanded. Further information may be obtained from the school either by phone (TE. 6-5345) or at the office between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on school days.

THE PIECES:

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valleyview-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is not a part of the curriculum at OSU. But there are a number of residents of the university area, including students and an instructor, acting out the parts of Happy, Dopey and Sleepy as they concoct magic potions of marijuana and LSD.

Raids this past week by Columbus police vice squadmen have resulted in 19 arrests on narcotics charges. Vice Squad Chief Capt. Herman Beck says the organized rings have been neutralized, and the remaining "smokers" hopefully have been discouraged. The Franklin County Grand Jury started an investigation Monday.

A file at the Spartacists office contains the names, addresses, phone numbers and other information concerning about 100 persons, most of them local.

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights struggle, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . . "

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

Houser specifically mentioned that the Spartacist Party played a "leadership role" in the formation of the Columbus Viet Nam Day Committee. This is the group which during the past year, has sponsored several anti-war demonstrations downtown and at the university.

"We (Spartacists) call for the immediate, unconditional withdrawal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam and complete victory for the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong)," said Charles Luce who is the campus coordinator of Spartacist activities at OSU.

Luce, a sophomore in the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said his job is to recruit Spartacist members from various other university groups.

Houser denied that his group has any connection with the OSU area "narcotics ring" now under investigation by local police, federal agents and the Franklin County Grand Jury. He termed police statements liking the left wing with the narcotics traffic as "a pure intimidation and smear attempt."

"The idea of using it to recruit is ridiculous because we would be opening ourselves to legal trouble and unfavorable publicity," Houser said.

"We don't want the kind of person in our organization who would be attracted to narcotics."

THINGS LOOK GREAT
(AT 1st STATE)

A Jolly, Green-Theme Banker Sets-Up A New Shop In The 'Valley Of The Giants'

Dynamic Robert K. Landrum, 42, is President and Trust Officer of 1st State Bank. A native of Lexington, Ky., he has been in banking since 1949 and is a graduate of the Harvard Business School. His modern banking ideas are causing favorable comment throughout the state.

The old Brunson Bank has changed its name, its public image, and its location. Now: It's 1st State at 88!

With an accent on personable and hospitable banking, the 1st Bank has become a factor in the financial world of Columbus. The renamed institution has adopted a color scheme — green —which is not only symbolic of its stock-in-trade — dollar bills — but is representative of the lively and growing enterprise.

Every square foot of floor space is covered by rich green carpeting, giving a "living room approach to banking."

Young Team

The young management team at 88 East Broad Street considers its bank to be successfully competing with giant institutions. The 1st team says: "We surely cannot match Columbus' other four banks in dollar size or in number of branches, but we can favorably compete in the pricing of banking services and in the quality of service extended to customers and potential customers."

Although 1st State's officers state that they don't quite coincide with the Avis car slogan "We Try Harder," the revamped institution does just that! "A certain deposit or your auto loan is more precious to 1st State than the same would be to a large Columbus bank," they added.

To compete with the sizeable advertising budgets and multiple branch systems of the other banks, 1st State has altered money rates. For instance, 1st State was the "first" among the local banks to "crash below the $5.00 interest barrier" on new car loans. And 1st State was the first Columbus bank to jump above 4% on interest paid to savings certificate owners.

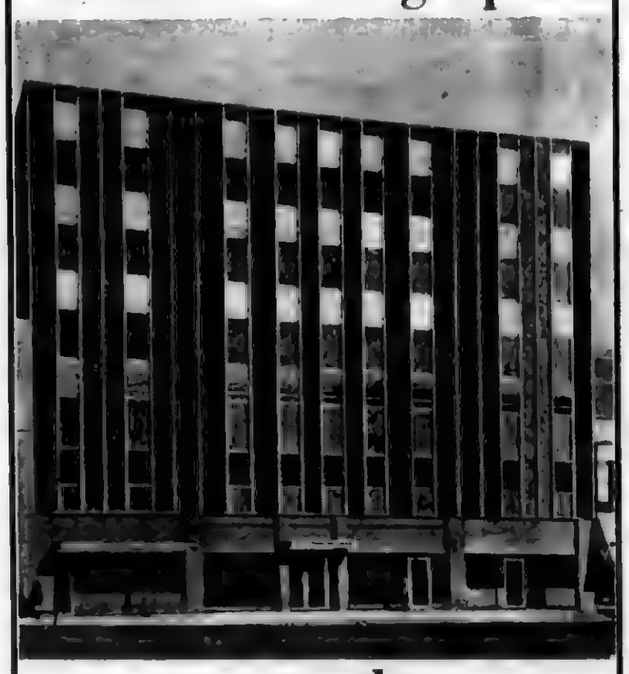
New Branches Planned

"We are not only going to compete in the downtown area," says President Bob Landrum, "but we plan to branch and compete in the suburban areas of Franklin County. We have plans for three branches in the near future — one north, one to the east, and one out west of town."

Our Objectives

1. To be regarded by the residents of Columbus and Franklin County as the Bank at which PEOPLE ENJOY doing business;
2. To have our STAFF believe this bank to be the BEST BANK in town at which to work;
3. To assure the ready AVAILABILITY and COMPLETE SAFETY of the funds of our customers;
4. To provide ALL needed BANKING SERVICES to a broad base of customers of all ethnic and vocational groups;
5. To continually try to IMPROVE our corporate IMAGE and REPUTATION . . . by the personal conduct of our staff, in our promotional efforts, and through the proper rendering of bank services;
6. To COMMUNICATE REGULARLY with our customers and with the public;
7. To EXCEL in FAIR COMPETITION among financial institutions by means of aggressive lending policies, active promotion, and superior servicing;
8. To provide, through our staff, an active contribution to those community affairs which promote the CULTURAL and CHARITABLE WELFARE of Columbus and Franklin County;
9. To take LEADERSHIP in meeting the FINANCIAL NEEDS of the trade area we serve, and
10. To follow a program of FUTURE PLANNING for new banking services, techniques, and facilities . . . toward the end that our Bank may constantly IMPROVE its position of LEADERSHIP in a widening field of service.

Future Holds Good Jobs



For millions of people who will enter the labor force within the next few years the critical question is "Where will the jobs be?" Good income jobs will be available in many occupations for the well educated or highly skilled worker, predicts the U.S. Department of Labor.

The greatest increase will occur in white collar jobs — teachers at all levels, natural scientists, engineers, mathematicians, physicists, chemists, technicians in all fields, nurses, physicians, and personnel for other health-related jobs.

Popcorn Booms

One large chain of motion picture theaters figures that the average customer spends 29 cents on snacks each time he goes to a movie. Four years ago the figure was 17 cents.

A Policeman's Widow Seeks Answers In Bizarre Death Of Her Husband...

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valleyview-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

THE ARTS

CULTURE SWINGS a mean baton in Columbus . . . especially when it's swung by Evan Whallon, musical director of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra. More than 3800 Central Ohioans reserved seats in advance for the current season at Veterans Memorial.

By Richard Henry Elselt, AIA
President, Arts Council of Columbus

It was long apparent to those involved in the arts in Columbus that there was a pronounced need for an Arts Council. Such a council, it was hoped, would bring together the individuals and organizations of varied disciplines for the purpose of promoting and encouraging a sound cultural climate in the Columbus Metropolitan area.

"Mothered" initially by the Columbus Junior League, the Arts Council of Columbus was founded and headquartered in the Junior League office in early 1962. Its current active program includes printing and distribution of an excellent quarterly arts calendar, the dissemination of cultural information by means of its 24-hour answering service, and participation in two annual festivals of the arts.

Although a handful of people are certain to disagree, Columbus has made substantial progress in its efforts to offer our community interesting and varied programs in practically all of the arts in the past decade. The statement that Columbus is "a cultural wasteland" no longer goes unchallenged!

The recently-published 250-page Rockefeller Panel Report states that the performing arts suffer most from the "common" malady where money is concerned: not enough of it. I believe that most of the other art forms suffer from the same malady. This problem is most certain to be lessened by the present significant changes in our thinking at government and community levels.

Culture is and should be a concern of us all — singly and collectively. We must be concerned about it in our churches, civic organizations, schools and families. The potential exists within our community; each of us must be responsible for its full realization.

Business participation in the arts is extremely important and must not be limited to individual companies, but must be developed among major business associations. Many local businesses are presently "harvesting" fruit in their personnel recruitment from the efforts of the Arts Council of Columbus.

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valley-view-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

Facade A First...

A "first" in Columbus is the new curtainwall installation in the Trautman Building at 209 S. High-st. Work began shortly after the first of the year by Stone and Swartzbaugh, Inc. of Toledo, which has completed some 70 other curtainwall installations throughout the nation.

Warner Trautman, president of Real Estate Investments, Inc., owners of the building, said his firm seeks to maintain its standing in "Modernization Excellence," an award made last year by "Buildings Magazine" to only 70 structures in the U.S. "We are attempting to establish the Trautman Building as 'downtown's most affordable address of distinction'," Trautman declared.

The new curtainwall exterior facade, comparable to the most elegant buildings anywhere, represents the final major step in the modernization and enhancement of the building. Besides featuring natural wood paneling, recessed lighting, planters, wall to wall carpeting, Muzak and other elements throughout the building, the real estate firm is currently collecting "Columbus landmark" paintings to add to the building's "eye appeal."

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights struggle, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . ."

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

Houser specifically mentioned that the Spartacist Party played a "leadership role" in the formation of the Columbus Viet Nam Day Committee. This is the group which during the past year has sponsored several anti-war demonstrations down town and at the university.

"We (Spartacists) call for the immediate, unconditional withdrawal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam and complete victory for the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong)," said Charles Luce who is the campus coordinator of Spartacist activities at OSU.

Luce, a sophomore in the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said his job is to recruit Spartacist members from various other university groups.

Houser denied that his group has any connection with the OSU area "narcotics ring" now under investigation by local police federal agents and the Franklin County Grand Jury. He termed police statements liking the left wing with the narcotics traffic a "a pure intimidation and smear attempt."

"The idea of using it to recruit is ridiculous because we would be opening ourselves to legal trouble and unfavorable publicity," Houser said.

The upswing in popularity of natural gas as the favorite fuel for use in Ohio homes because of its economy, efficiency and dependability will continue through this year and many more to come, according to Elden H. Davis, central district manager for Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc.

Columbia and its sister company the Ohio Fuel Co., both part of the Columbia Gas System, Inc., have played important roles in industrial research and technological advancement. Ohio Fuel supplies the gas used by the 851,000 Columbia Gas of Ohio customers in 56 Ohio counties.

TOTAL POWER PACK

Among the foremost in new utilizations for natural gas is the total energy power package where all the energy requirements for a building or industrial facility are supplied by natural gas. A natural gas engine or gas turbine drives an electric generator to provide all electric power. Heat from the engine is used for absorption-type air conditioning in summer, heating in winter and to provide hot water for various needs. More than 120 such buildings now are in operation across the country, including apartments, inddustrial plants, motels, offices and schools.

Mr. Davis

Natural gas prime movers — engines and turbines — also have come into the picture in 1965 as important sources of commercial and industrial shaft power because of their low operating cost, Davis said. Early in 1966, such a gas engine will begin generating power at the Columbus Municipal Light Plant.

SKYSCRAPERS GAS-FED

One of Ohio's newest skyscrapers, 88 E. Broad-st, in Columbus, employs two gas engine-driven centrifugal units for cooling. Equally successful are similar units in the Zepkin and Crisafi Building, Parma, and Huntington National Bank, Canal Winchester. At the 26-story Columbus Center, also in the state capital, a natural gas engine is combined with absorption units for cooling, offering another example of advancement in gas air conditioning, Davis said.

Current Columbia research also is aimed at the lime, cement, ceramics, glass and metal industries with programs involving fast firing of ceramics, high temperature furnaces and new ferrous and non-ferrous melting methods, Davis said. A new flameless gas-fueled catalytic oven is being used for the first time in the manufacture of plastic products by Fabri-Form Co., Byesville, O., and a new-type gas-fired calcinating kiln recently was installed by National Lime & Stone Co., Carey, to make calcined lime of an unusually high quality.

RECORD AMOUNT STORED

In 1965, the gas company spent $3¼ million to expand and improve underground storage and compressor station facilities, Davis said. At the beginning of the current heating season, with the help of these new facilities, the gas company had a record volume of 235 billion cubic feet of gas in storage.

1966- The Tempo of Banking

The increasing tempo in banking is a rolling advance. It's a continuing process of surpassing previous skills, with new refinements and exciting new concepts. It happened to banking in Central Ohio during this past year. It meant more and better banking for more and more people.

This tempo was dramatized last March, in the opening of Columbus Center—our home office. This triggered a new era in banking. The momentum is seen in the friendliness of a teller's smile, the willingness of a loan officer, and the introduction of a new concept in a Bank savings program—Investor Saver Profit plans.

The tempo will continue to increase. And this is good. It will play an enormous part in banking's future service to the public. It will require vigor and skill. Join us in this enthusiasm as a customer at City National.

Vital Space-Age Link

E. S. Preston & Associates, Ltd., 939 W. Goodale-blvd, is committed to the promotion of orderly accomplishment and economic growth by the application of skilled services of professionals to the numerous and varied endeavors vital in this space age era.

To provide an integrated variety of consulting services, the limited partnership association has assembled recognized personnel who are highly experienced in the field of resources, planning, development, communications, transportation, engineering and architectural design, and community facilities. The association has also assembled experts in the allied fields of modern services such as aerial photogrammetry, electronic computations, financing, management and the like.

The firm's chairman, E. S. Preston, served as director of the Ohio Department of Highways from 1959 to 1963, adding to his long established local and national reputation as a most capable administrator and engineering executive.

The professional, technical and administrative staff of approximately 100 is qualified and equipped to undertake complete engineering, architectural and other consulting assignments of varied types and character. Their personnel hold numerous engineering, surveying and architectural registrations in several of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Services available are numerous and varied, but always tailored to the most demanding and comprehensive needs of the owner, through the selective assembly and assignment of flexible and highly capable staff segments to the demands of the work.

Retained as consultants by the Appalachian Regional Commission for the performance of engineering and economic analyses and evaluations of proposed Development Highways and Access Road systems within the economically depressed Appalachian Region of the Eastern United States, Preston & Associates are engaged in so many varied activities that a listing is impossible in this space.

The firm combines aerial photogrammetric and electronic computation techniques into functional modern tools for the implementation of increased engineering productivity.

Its twin-engined airplane provides a stable aerial platform from which oblique and precision vertical mapping photography is exposed from predetermined altitudes consistent with the ultimate requirements of the project work.

The two-engined plane of E. S. Preston & Associates, Limited, serves as an aerial platform for oblique and precision vertical mapping photographs.

An IBM 1620 Electronic Computer System is used by E. S. Preston & Associates, Ltd. to process data that is obtained by mail, TWX, or from the stereo plotter.

The electronically-equipped offices of E. S. Preston & Associates, Limited, at 939 W. Goodale-blvd, are staffed by a highly trained team of some 100 technical and administrative specialists. The firm offers proven solutions on consulting problems concerning engineering, architectural and allied matters.

THE PIECES:

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valley-view-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

★ INDICATIONS OF GROWTH ★

At Landmark . . .

The Columbus-based Landmark Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, now in its 31st year of serving farmers and suburban home owners, is "home base" for 73 locally-owned and operated Landmark Cooperatives throughout Ohio.

It operates feed mills, farm supply stores, grain elevators, seed and fertilizer warehouse and distributes petroleum products to farm and suburban homes. Landmark now has more than $25 million invested in buildings, equipment and land. Kenneth N. Porbasco is executive vice president and general manager.

A new 5½ million bushel grain elevator is currently under construction near the corner of Hamilton and Grove-rds in the midst of the highway belt system.

In 1965 Landmark paid $429.064 in shareholder dividends and $656,800 in interest to bondholders.

At Ruff . . .

The Thomas Ruff Company completed its most successful year in 1965 and has added many new programs and improvements in anticipation of additional gains in 1966, its 30th anniversary.

Additions were made in 1965 to the sales, design, office and service departments to better serve their customers. "We believe this expansion is necessary to keep abreast of the growth of Columbus and the national economy and to provide our customers with the service they are entitled," stated Jack Gorman, president.

The salesmen attended specialized furniture and carpeting schools throughout the country in 1965. Trade shows and seminars were attended by the Design Department and buyers to observe the latest trends.

Last year also marked the beginning of the Thomas Ruff company Pension and Profit-Sharing Program. "We want our people to be as conscious of the importance of service as management and feel that without their sincere efforts this would not be possible," declared President Gorman.

"We hope that our wonderful customers will visit our showrooms and that we will add many new names to this list of friends."

17 Reservoirs Planned

U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service specialists, with offices in Columbus, are investigating, planning, designing or operating in 55 Ohio watershed projects, according to Raymond S. Brown, USDA state conservationist. Fifteen projects are in the planning state. In 10 projects already approved for construction 17 reservoirs with multi-purpose are included.

At Jerry Spears . . .

Construction of a new Jerry Spears Co. funeral home in the Tri-Village area will probably be completed by late summer. The new establishment at the corner of Reed-rd and Henderson-rd in Upper Arlington will have two large chapels, 11 reposing rooms, two home-like fireplace lounges and complete facilities for the services of all faiths. The architecture and decor will be colonial. Other features will include total air-conditioning and a large blacktopped, lighted parking area for 250 cars.

Jerry Spears Sr.

Emergency ambulance and oxygen service also will be available 24 hours a day from this location.

Jerry Spears, Jr.

The Jerry Spears Co. has been an integral part of the Columbus business world since 1928, and long has been one of the most trusted and respected funeral homes in the city.

The Jerry Spears Co. will continue to operate and improve its funeral home at 2693 W. Broad-st in addition to the new facility.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is not a part of the curriculum at OSU. But there are a number of residents of the university area, including students and an instructor, acting out the parts of Happy, Dopey and Sleepy as they concoct magic potions of marijuana and LSD.

Raids this past week by Columbus police vice squadmen have resulted in 19 arrests on narcotics charges. Vice Squad Chief Capt. Herman Beck says the organized rings have been neutralized, and the remaining "smokers" hopefully have been discouraged. The Franklin County Grand Jury started an investigation Monday.

Two Westerville High School teachers were cleaning paint brushes with gasoline and you can guess what happened. Fortunately, the burns they suffered were not serious, but the damage to the house was estimated to be more than $10,000. Apparently neither was a chemistry teacher.

Beautiful new Morse-rd, six lanes wide from the Freeway east to Cleveland-av, is unfit to handle present traffic on it, according to City Traffic Engineer James V. Musick. It should have been designed with service roads.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps now has 714 youngsters employed by the board of education, Catholic school system and Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority. Some 335 more will be hired to work at the State School, State Hospital and at settlement houses. The federal government is kicking in $1.4 million to this program.

OSU's fine quarterback of a few years ago, Tom Matte, had to switch to halfback with the Baltimore Colts. The pros couldn't use his roll-out style. But when injuries forced the Colts to re-convert Matte to quarterback, they were pleased to find him good enough to produce three great closing games, including victories over the Rams and Cowboys and an overtime loss to the Packers.

local "sympathizers" and "contacts." He said ages of local active members range between 18 and 50.

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights struggle, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . ."

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

Houser specifically mentioned that the Spartacist Party played a "leadership role" in the formation of the Columbus Viet Nam Day Committee. This is the group which during the past year has sponsored several anti-war demonstrations down town and at the university.

"We (Spartacists) call for the immediate, unconditional withdrawal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam and complete victory for the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong)," said Charles Luce who is the campus coordinator of Spartacist activities at OSU.

Luce, a sophomore in the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said his job is to recruit Spartacist members from various other university groups.

Houser denied that his group has any connection with the OSU area "narcotics ring" now under investigation by local police, federal agents and the Franklin County Grand Jury. He termed police statements liking the left wing with the narcotics traffic a "a pure intimidation and smear attempt."

"The idea of using it to recruit is ridiculous because we would be opening ourselves to legal trouble and unfavorable publicity," Houser said.

"We don't want the kind of person in our organization who would be attracted by narcotics."

Society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

The national Spartacist membership total is "internal information," according to Houser.

Western Electric:

Keeping The Bell System Lines Humming . . .

The Columbus Works of Western Electric achieved new all time highs in employment and production in 1965, continuing a pattern of growth and development established since it began operations here in 1957.

The past year at the Western Electric, 6200 East Broad-st, saw many major achievements in addition to new production highs. The high level of product reliability was maintained and many cost reduction improvements were put into effect. These accomplishments helped keep the position as one of the top manufacturing locations of Western Electric.

PRODUCTION of Crossbar Switching, an electro-mechanical system, one of the standard types of equipment used in many central offices, was maintained at high levels of output. This system of transmitting telephone calls through telephone company central offices has been of major importance for local and long distance telephones.

A special feature of Crossbar Switching is Centrex. This equipment, in use throughout the country, was placed in service during 1965 at Lazarus, Columbus Citizen-Journal and Dispatch, and the City National Bank, among others.

THE FIRST Central Office using Electronic Switching Equipment began service at Succasunna, New Jersey, in the late spring of 1965. First use of this equipment is slated for Columbus and other Ohio locations in 1967.

The National Safety Council presented WE with an Award of Honor for operating more than 11 million manhours without a single employe sustaining a lost time injury. The company was also awarded third place in the Council's Metals Section Safety contest.

WESTERN ELECTRIC activity in Columbus has been stimulated by the increasing demand for telephone community service throughout the United States. This, in turn helped to keep our community growing. In effect the Columbus Works has a favorable balance of trade with the rest of the United States. It employs Columbus labor skills and material to make telephone equipment which brings a flow of dollars to Columbus.

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

The Shape Of Things To Come
This is an architect's drawing of one of Ohio State University's two new 24-story residence halls under construction along the Olentangy River southeast of Ohio Stadium.
Recently named Abraham Lincoln Tower and Justin S. Morrill Tower, in memory of two men closely identified with establishment of the nation's land-grant colleges and universities, the modern structure looms as the shape of things to come in Columbus.
The structures will have a capacity of 1920 students each and are scheduled for completion this fall at a cost of approximately $15-million for the total project.
With a total enrollment of more than 40,000, Ohio State is stepping up its building program to cope with the population "bulge."
Projects totalling $35.9-million are under way on the main campus in the heart of Columbus.

A Policeman's Widow Seeks Answers In Bizarre Death Of Her Husband . . .

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valley-view-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right; that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

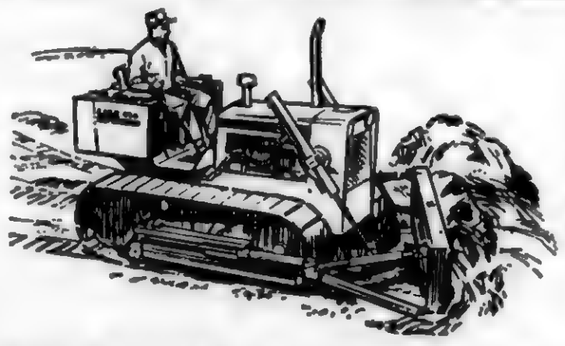
Doors Keep Rolling At Kinnear Plant

Kinnear Rolling Doors, a Columbus-made product of many years, application in industrial, commercial and institutional buildings, are constantly being put to new uses as exemplified by a recent installation in a modern, mall-type shopping center in St. Louis.

This installation — in three large bays of a jewelry store— is one of many where arcade-type shops with big entrance-ways must be fully barricaded and protected during closing hours against burglary. The heavy, steel-slat doors — fully motor-operated as in many installations — roll easily and quickly up and out of the way like a window blind, affording full access to the entrance and saving space for productive use indoors. When closed, the doors have a tidy, modern look and are finished in weather-resistant colored enamels to harmonize with any exterior decor.

Long a unique and essential feature of industrial and other large buildings, Kinnear Rolling Doors are "engineered-in" to meet unusual demands of construction and architectural appearance. Pre-engineering and design work for installations are performed at the Kinnear Manufacturing Company's plant at 1191 Fields-av.

Kinnear Rolling Doors are rugged-ly built for maximum protection against intrusion, fire, wind and weather, and are heavily zinc-coated for corrosion resistance. These nationally-know doors have seen heavy use in factories, warehouses, stores, hospitals, shipping wharves, freight terminals and other commercial and institutional establishments for more than six decades in all parts of the world. Today, they are also put to use in ganty cranes at missile sites, the Houston Astro Dome, aircraft carriers, and in installations for the protection of aluminum processing equipment.



The doors may be operated three ways: by motor and remote-control push-botton switches; mechanically by chain-hoist and reduction gear, and manually by a handle in the bottom bar.

On the drawing board... a better future

Our community's really going places . . .physically, financially, educationally, industrially . . . and the future has never looked brighter! We've made great strides over the years, but none compared to what's in store in the future! We're proud and happy to be a part of this exciting growth and change, serving a fine community with integrity, to the best of our ability.

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

WHEN THE new Mt. Carmel East, depicted above, is completed no resident of Franklin County will be more than a 15-minute drive — or, five miles — from an accredited hospital emergency room. The new hospital, containing 150 beds, will cost $3,500,000.

Hospitals Move Ahead . . .

To Keep Pace With A Growing Columbus

Hospitals of Columbus and Central Ohio will be busier than ever in 1966. Even barring the eventuality of disaster or epidemics next year's statistics will be higher than last year, based on the fantastic growth rate of the area. Construction will step up its pace to meet the demand and prepare for the future.

More than 1,000,000 days of hospital service were furnished to area residents by the hospitals of Columbus in 1965. Year-end estimates of the Columbus Hospital Federation indicate that 131,800 people were admitted to the general hospitals for a total of 1,041,000 patient days. In addition, more than 160,000 emergency cases were treated and over 150,000 outpatients received treatment in hospital clinics.

To keep pace with this increasing load, hospitals are planning additional facilities through the United Hospitals Expansion Program of Franklin County. Only a year ago, the 15-bed intensive care unit was placed in service at Grant Hospital; construction of the North Wing at Doctors Hospital was begun to house enlarged emergency room and out-patient facilities. Construction was begun on St. Anthony Hospital's power plant to furnish heating and cooling services for the new $5 million addition to be built this year.

NEW TRAINING FACILITIES

The new high-rise Grant Hospital School of Nursing now under construction will provide space for 230 student nurses.

New south wings at both St. Ann's and Riverside Methodist Hospital have been approved by the building committee of the County Hospital Commission. A Comprehensive Mental Health Center at Mt. Carmel Hospital has been okayed by the Department of Mental Hygiene. Some of these projects will be under way this year.

Some 900 beds will be added to the local hospital picture with more than 200 other beds replaced in new or modernized facilities. Construction of a new hospital on E. Broad-st, opposite the Western Electric plant, will begin in 1966. The 120-bed satellite unit, operated by Mt. Carmel, will provide accredited hospital services for Whitehall, Reynoldsburg, Gahanna and eastern Franklin County.

FUND-RAISING ON SCHEDULE

In addition to the $15 million bond issue of 1964, the United Hospitals Expension Campaign, started in June 1965, has raised more than $4.7 million toward the goal of $5.5 million needed to complete the expansion program. Chairman Richard M. Wolfe stated that the committee expects to complete the fund-raising campaign early this year so that construction can continue on schedule.

A Policeman's Widow Seeks Answers In Bizarre Death Of Her Husband...

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valleyview-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

The same signs will eventually appear in other empties.

Court House records show 51 foreclosures in Sun Vall from April through December of 1965, but the local FHA office reports this figure tells less than half the story.

The exodus from Sun Vall which led a county official to refer to the subdi-ision as "Bogie-man town" is a fact—

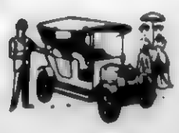
Now...we are 100 years old

It was a small bank that opened its doors at the northwest corner of Broad and High Streets in a small Columbus. Yet, P. W. Huntington never doubted that both the city and the bank were destined for greater things.

Later the bank moved across the street into the first Columbus skyscraper. The five-story red brick building towered above neighboring structures like a forecast of things to come.

One more move and a century later the main Huntington banking rooms are still less than 500 feet from the beginning site. Family names that appeared in the original records of that earlier bank are, four generations later, still prominent in today's Huntington records.

But many other things have changed and are changing in both the bank and the city.



The 1866 Columbus village has become the 1966 metropolis. The small 1866 Huntington Bank has become the bank for today and tomorrow's living. Its flag, a sturdy oak on a field of blue, the mark of a century of responsible banking, is flying over most Huntington offices. We know that each new saver and each new borrower, today might well be the bank's largest customer in the new century ahead.

And we know that customer could be you.

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights struggle, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . . "

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

☐ ETV: Call It The 'Boob Tube' If You Like Now ...But You May Change Your Mind Tomorrow

By Galvy Gordon, Past President, Adult Education Council of Greater Columbus

Don't call it "the boob-tube!" If you do, you'll be biting the hand that will feed you the knowledge you'll need in ever-increasing doses to live and learn in the world of tomorrow just around the corner.

Fact is, you probably rely on the "tube" today far more than you realize. Besides weather, spot news, and the thrill of participating in history in the making through the magic of "see-hear" electronics, you rely on it to keep you abreast of the knowledge explosion. You count on it to keep you current on new information developing so fast that the nation's high speed presses just can't keep up.

But our story here concerns educational television, generally brought to us in the Midwest via the UHF band, now built into every new TV set on the market by law. Here's what we learned from E. H. Gillis, Jr., executive secretary of the Ohio Educational Television Network Commission, with offices in Columbus.

NOT JUST CLASSROOM

Confining use of TV to classrooms — even in our minds — is a false understanding of the medium, according to Gillis. More and more Ohioans out of school, he said, will be relying in years ahead on ETV far beyond the cultural and informational aspect.

ETV will be used in and by industry for training and retraining employes and supervisors. This is an area of vital need in this era of fantastic acceleration in new knowledge, which outmodes skills and techniques so rapidly.

Professions such as the medical will be relying ever more on ETV for post-graduate instruction, for updating of surgical and general medicine skills. Various state departments will increase their use of ETV to train employes and disseminate information to the public they serve.

The federal government now recognizes the importance of ETV in assisting in the implementation of certain aspects of programs specified under such recent acts as the Elementary and Secondary Acts, the Higher Education Act of 1965, the Humanities and Arts Act, and others.

OHIO LEADS

Ohio continues its leadership in the development of ETV. This leadership will be pre-eminent with the establishment of the new Communications Center on the Ohio State Fairgrounds, from which programs to serve all levels of classrooms as well as the general public will emanate. This will be the network headquarters, the chief production studios, providing programs throughout Ohio via the long planned microwave interconnected network.

The state leads the nation in the total number of ETV stations on the air.

Columbus was among the first major cities to introduce the use of open circuit television in elementary and secondary schoolrooms. Still actively cooperating with Ohio State University's Telecommunications Communications Center and its WOSU-TV outlet on Channel 34, Columbus Public Schools today are in a leadership role in the amount and variety of ETV utilized in the classrooms.

WOSU-TV is currently the only ETV outlet in the three-county Metropolitan Columbus area, but a second Columbus area ETV channel has been set aside by the Federal Communications Commission for future use.

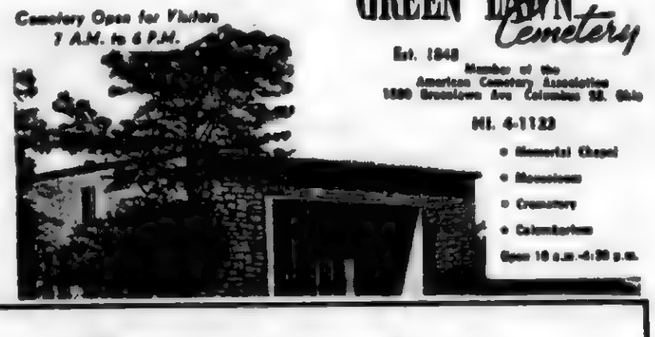
AIRBORNE TRANSMISSION

The School Foundation program offering assistance to school systems using educational television in any way in its curriculum supplied funds to elementary and secondary schools with a total student body of 355,480 in Ohio in 1961, the first year of the Foundation's operation.

In 1965, the student body, exclusive of parochial schools, benefitting from the Foundation program, totalled 683,148.

Thousands of institutions of higher education and secondary schools now offer some ETV instruction either with open or closed-circuit television.

More than 600 individual school buildings in Ohio are equipped with MPATI (Midwest Program in Airborne Television Instruction). More schools are equipped with their own closed circuit TV. This provides multi-channel capability, permitting several programs simultaneously to be offered to classrooms.



The great increase in ETV station popularity in Ohio and other states will create jobs for thousands of trained personnel in all aspects of TV production, transmission, manufacturing, installation and service.

Students in college schools of education are receiving ever-increasing training in the use of ETV as a tool for teaching. Likewise there is a steadily increasing use of videotapes made in actual classrooms to demonstrate effective teaching techniques and student responses and reaction.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

A Policeman's Widow Seeks Answers In Bizarre Death Of Her Husband...

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valleyview-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

Always On The Move

THE SAGA OF SUBURBAN

"Look to your roads."

That's the advice of J. Ralph Riley, president of Suburban Motor Freight, Inc., to persons involved in planning business and industrial expansions.

America's economy owes much of its success in the immediate past to its advanced highway transportation system, Riley explained.

"Wherever and whenever there are goods to be moved, there are motor vehicles to speed them on their way," said Riley, whose Columbus-based carrier of general merchandise is entering its second half-century of public service. Suburban Motor Freight's transport rights extend to 46 states and Canada.

Mr. Riley

"The modern history of our nation is sprinkled with stories of frontiers that were conquered, industries that prospered and new businesses that flourished because of the truck," according to the chief executive of Suburban, who has been a farmer, an auctioneer, and who for 20 years lectured at Ohio State University.

"Historians will recall the 50 years from 1920 to 1970 as the greatest highway building era ever undertaken by any country," declared Riley.

"Highway users contribute some $13 billion annually to highways. That's big business in itself. And makes for a lot of pay checks, that go into the incomes of food markets, physicians, hardware stores, schools, manufacturers of toys, building materials and clothing, and writers of insurance.

"You see," Riley expanded, "there are about 16,000 highway common carriers and contract carriers licensed by the Interstate Commerce Commission to operate across state lines. They are the lifeline that serves the nation.

"They are hauling astronomical amounts of goods over our three million-plus miles of highway, delivering the production of the good things of life for the American people."

With more than eight million persons employed in truck transportation, it is obvious that there are many chances for a satisfying career in this industry.

Truck line managers are on the lookout for accountants, mechanics, traffic specialists, industrial engineers and many others, he noted.

In summing up, Riley said, "Where the highway and the truck have extended their life-giving arteries, land values have risen and farmers and manufacturers have found a new prosperity.

"Trucks and highways are the newest development in the transportation web that has brought the pulsing health of commerce to all parts of our nation."

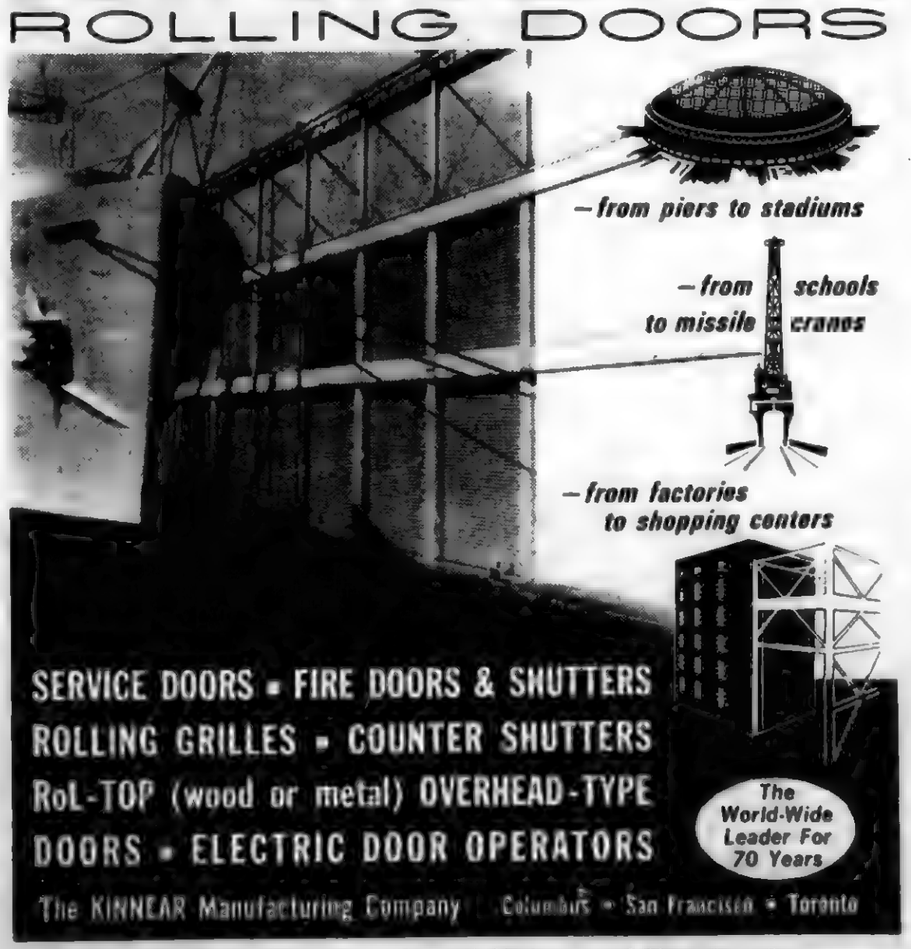
Assets Here Reach An All-Time High

The year 1965 was another outstanding year for the Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association. Assets reached an all-time high of over $136,800,000. Savings accounts rose to a record of more than $118,500,000 and first mortgage loans outstanding reached a record of over $120,700,000.



The year 1965 saw the completion of Buckeye's immediate building projects in their 16-story downtown office building and in the branch office buildings. The modernization of their Main Office with new lighting, additional furnishings, carpeting, drapes and more office space was recently completed. A new department for Home Improvement Loans is now a part of the Main Office and has established itself as a successful operation.

Buckeye's eighth free-standing office building, the Northland office, 1330 Morse Road, is the last in their immediate plans for branch offices and celebrated its grand opening on June 14, 1965. This new office has had a successful first new year in new savings as an outstanding record of mortgage loan business. This building won an Honorable Mention Architectural Award given by the Architects Society of Ohio, 1965 Honor Awards Program.

During 1965, Buckeye attracted gross new loan volume of $40,675,125. They paid out $4,479,616 in 4% dividends to their over 41,000 savers. Buckeye's reserves and undivided profits reached a level of 9.6% ratio of Reserves to Savings, considerable higher than the national average and the regulatory requirements.

Beginning January 1, 1966, Buckeye Federal Savings increased their annual dividend rate to 4¼%, compounded quarterly, on all regular passbook savings accounts, $10 and over.

Bright Future For All Banks Is Seen

Progress Is Key At Central Savings

Central Savings & Loan Co., with main offices at 46 E. Gay-st, demonstrated again its reputation as one of the most progressive firms of its size and nature by launching a new direct-computer system of transactions on Jan. 3.

Heart of the new automatic processing system in an IBM 1440 computer, which will be replaced by IBM's model 360 this fall, according to Walter F. Heer, Sr., president of the firm.

Each of the teller windows in the main office and three branches of the company are directly hooked into the computer "brain," which stores account information. All transactions are immediately entered into the automatic balancing "memory bank." Verification of account status is instantaneous, eliminating the old-fashioned ledger cards for each customer.

Three Branches Eyed By Huntington

Three new branch offices have been approved for construction in this 100th Anniversary Year of the Huntington National Bank, it was announced by Clair E. Fultz, president.

They will be located in Westerville at State and Schrock-rd; North Arlington at Reed and Henderson-rds; and in Reynoldsburg at Livingston and Brice-rds.

This will bring the total number of Huntington branch offices to 16. The first Huntington branch was opened in 1956 and this "move to the people" is credited with the outstanding growth decade of 1956 to 1966 experienced by the bank.

Total assets of $382,161,129 for the year ending Dec. 31, 1965, compare with $176,850,951 for 1956.

The Huntington is celebrating its 100th anniversary with historical photo displays in its downtown office, 17 S. High-st, coin and currency exhibits in all branch offices and an Art Show in the lobby of the new Huntington Trust Building, Broad and Front-sts.

A souvenir book of nostalgic pictures and stories of The Huntington and the City of Columbus during the last century is available at no charge in all Huntington offices.

City National Views 1966 With Big Plans

Building on the significant progress of last year, 1966 should be an outstanding year for City National, according to Bank President John G. McCoy and Chairman Everett D. Reese.

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valleyview-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is not a part of the curriculum at OSU. But there are a number of residents of the university area, including students and an instructor, acting out the parts of Happy, Dopey and Sleepy as they concoct magic potions of marijuana and LSD.

Raids this past week by Columbus police vice squadmen have resulted in 19 arrests on narcotics charges. Vice Squad Chief Capt. Herman Beck says the organized rings have been neutralized, and the remaining "smokers" hopefully have been discouraged. The Franklin County Grand Jury started an investigation Monday.

A file at the Spartacists office contains the names, addresses, phone numbers and other information concerning about 100 persons, most of them local.

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights struggle, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . ."

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

Teaching aids, such as the overhead projector shown above, increased in use significantly during 1965 in Columbus Public Schools. Some 15,000 overlays for use on the projects were made during the year. In addition to the projectors, Columbus teachers can choose from 6,500 films, filmstrips and recordings which are available from the Department of Radio and Audio-Visual Education. Columbus can boast a progressive school system operated at a per capita cost smaller than that of any city of comparable size.

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valley-view-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Telling The Story Outdoors...

Progress is a vital part of the "good neighbor" motto serving as a guideline for the continued growth of The Columbus Outdoor Advertising Company. Each new day reflects the many improvements this "native" industry, now in its 75th year, makes in its advertising facilities for its customers' use.

In the illumination of its poster panels, more than 300 new fluorescent fixtures have been installed in 1965 alone. This revamping program will continue in 1966, along with the installation of new type fixtures on its painted signs. Other new products are under test which will further enhance outdoor advertising in Columbus.

Columbus Outdoor Advertising Co. employs more than 50 people and maintains a truck fleet of 22, many of which are special for the outdoor advertising industry. The firm provides a business appetite for all kinds of materials purchased locally. Such supplies include steel, paint, paper, electrical equipment, welding, printing and many others.

The Columbus Outdoor Advertising Company provides a very important advertising medium for local and national advertisers and is considered by their industry spokesmen to be a leader in the top 50 metropolitan markets in the nation.

It has earned national, as well as local, reputation for its generosity in providing gratis advertising space for civic promotions and community betterment.

BANKING . . .

reached new highs, with total resources showing an increase over 1964 of about 18 percent. Resources for the first time reached over the quarter-billion dollar mark, and have doubled over the last six years. Loans, with an increase of about 30 percent, and deposits with an increase of nearly 15 percent, are indicators of achievements made during 1965.

In the consumer credit area, most important in today's bank operation, City National has for many years been one of the chief sources of financing in this area.

NEW SKYSCRAPER CENTER

According to the bank officials, the most significant activity during the year was the opening last March of the bank's new Home Office in Columbus Center. The 25-story building, already a focal point in the downtown area, signaled the beginning of a new era of banking in Central Ohio.

In other improvements, the bank reported completion of extensive remodeling of the Gahanna office and the beginning of construction of a new permanent bank building at the Lockbourne-rd location. City National presently operates 15 offices throughout Franklin County and expects to open additional offices in 1966.

NEW SAVINGS BOND

The recent introduction of the bank's new savings program—Investor Saver Profit Plans—ranks as one of the most important events of the year. The program is an innovation in banking which permits a custom-designed savings plan for every type of saver and investor.

The Investor Saver Bond program was introduced in late November, with a guaranteed 4½ percent interest rate for five years. It ranks as the highest bank paid interest in this area.

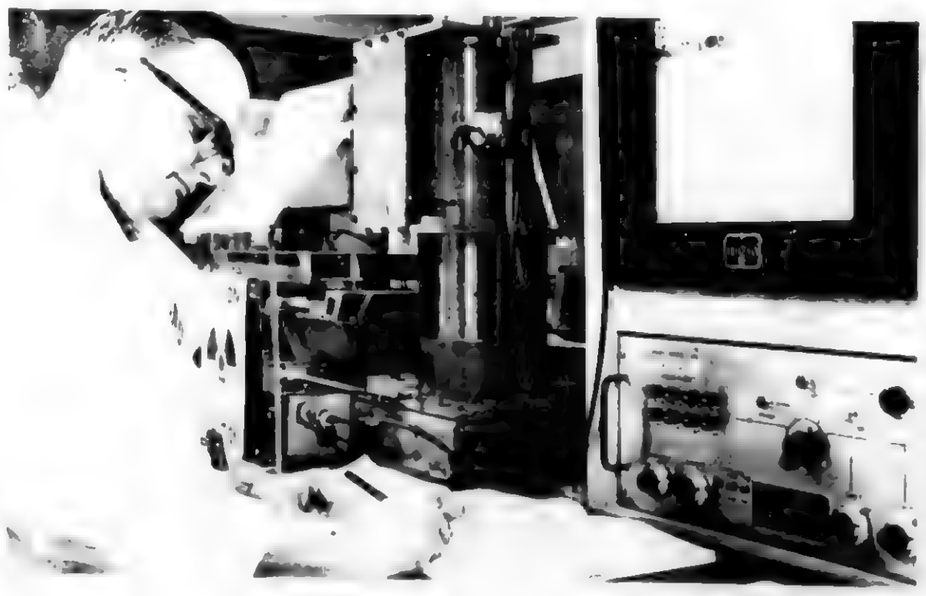
New Life... FOR OLD LAND

As practiced by the American Aggregates Corp. of Greenville, Ohio, reclamation at each of its operations is related in general to local conditions. If a plant, such as that on the south side of Indianapolis, is situated in an area with expanding industrial development worked out areas are restored to conform with and add to existing commercial sites.

There are also locations which lend themselves to development of both scenic areas and commercial or industrial property. This has been the case at the site of the American Aggregates operation along Dublin-rd in northwest Columbus. District plants of the firm are located at 399 Frank-rd and at 679 Grandview-av.

In rural locations recreational and nature areas are usually established. At Brighton, Mich., for example, the company is reviewing, with no obligation to do so, the possibility of planning operations and restoring pits in such a manner as to conform with the adjoining State Park and conservation area of several thousand acres.

More than 35 years ago when companies engaged in surface mining were not faced with rehabilitation ordinances or mounting public reaction to abandoned spoil areas, American Aggregates had already begun to furnish tangible evidence of its attitude toward the situation.



Using vision and foresight, the company embarked on a long-range program of rehabilitation and reclamation. It was based on pride in activities, a desire to earn the goodwill of the communities in which it operates, and a belief that reclamation is a sound business practice.

THE CORPORATION retains rehabilitation experts specialized in transforming mined areas. They consult with civic officials to determine the use that will best serve the community.

As a result, in areas in which American Aggregates Corp. operates, exhausted sand and gravel operations have been restored to industrial sites, residential areas, lakes for swimming and fishing, reservoirs, playing fields and parks.

No Secret Weapon:

R & D is not a secret weapon in the economic arsenal of Central Ohio. Fact is, Metropolitan Columbus is world-famous for its excellent and diversified research and development activities in pure and applied science. Battelle Memorial Institute, Ohio State University, and similar large research institutions spring naturally to mind when R & D is mentioned. But some of the smaller institutions and firms such as the Columbus-based, but internationally known Industrial Nucleonics, where the technician above checks a physics laboratory gauge, contribute to our reputation in the R & D field.

Copyright 1966 By The Spectator

Minnie Morgan doesn't have the answer. She can't understand the phone calls. The phone rings and a woman's voice asks to speak to Mrs. James Morgan and whether Minnie comes to the phone or not the caller hangs up . . . saying nothing.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valleyview-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

Minnie sits and stares a lot now. Her deep brown eyes hardly move. Behind them, though, she thinks, trying desperately to recall everything she can that may provide the key. She won't buy the "open and shut case" theory.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is not a part of the curriculum at OSU. But there are a number of residents of the university area, including students and an instructor, acting out the parts of Happy, Dopey and Sleepy as they concoct magic potions of marijuana and LSD.

Raids this past week by Columbus police vice squadmen have resulted in 19 arrests on narcotics charges. Vice Squad Chief Capt. Herman Beck says the organized rings have been neutralized, and the remaining "smokers" hopefully have been discouraged. The Franklin County Grand Jury started an investigation Monday.

A file at the Spartacists office contains the names, addresses, phone numbers and other information concerning about 100 persons, most of them local.

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights struggle, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . . "

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

SPECTATOR PROGRESS EDITION—39

URBAN RENEWAL:

What Is It?

Where Is It Going?

How Does It Affect Us?

With about $100 million in redevelopment under contract, Columbus leads most major cities in private investor participation in its urban renewal program, according to Patrick Phelan, director, Columbus Department of Urban Renewal.

He predicts that a unique refinancing plan, which converted about $1 million in pooling credits from approved clearance project, plus cooperation of other city agencies, will make it possible to make substantial progress in many Urban Renewal activities during the coming year.

This prediction is in the face of what appeared to be a crippling defeat in voter rejection of Urban Renewal bond issue proposals in 1964 and 1965.

AHEAD OF DENVER

Urban renewal and redevelopment are truly partners in private enterprise in Columbus, Phelan said. He cited the fact that while two-thirds of the Columbus $100 million redevelopment projects involve private investors, the Denver UR program has been able to stimulate less than $11 million in private funds.

The city now has four clearance projects — Goodale (Thurber Village), Market - Mohawk, Children's Hospital and OSU-North. The single conservation project in execution is the Dennison Avenue section of the Dennison-Hunter-Hubbard area. Approval is awaited on an application for a loan and grant on the Bolivar Arms Clearance Project which has been submitted.

CODE ENFORCEMENT

In 1964, the UR Department began two other projects on a strictly local basis, one on the West Side and one on the East Side, for the purpose of systematic code enforcement and rehabilitation. These two areas are now in the process of conversion to federally-assisted areas to obtain federal grants for expansion of the code enforcement program and to provide eligibility of those living in the areas for low-income loans, rehabilitation grants, certain FHA programs and other benefits.

A major step in the fight against blight was the establishment of the first systematic housing code enforcement program in May, 1964. Planned and supervised by the Urban Renewal Department with the cooperation of the Housing Division, the program has resulted in the inspection of more than 7,000 dwelling units. UR has asked the federal government for $260,000 to expand code enforcement.

PROJECT STATUS

The city's first clearance project in the Goodale area is about 70 percent complete with approximately $12 million in new construction accomplished. As of year end all the Market-Mohawk land was under contract and redevelopment must be completed in that area within the next five years under terms of the contract. Construction of about $8 million in new dormitories and dining facilities in the OSU-North area is nearing 50 percent completed status.

ELECTRICITY

This promises to be a record growth year for the Central Ohio area and the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company.

The same positive factors that sparked the sales gains in recent years — population increases substantially greater than those of the state or nation and the continued increase in customer kilowatt hour usage, plus an increasing acceptance of electric heating — are expected to net the company a better than 6.5 percent annual increase in kilowatt hour sales over the next decade.

In fact, the total electric utility industry continues to grow, setting new records in power production, capability and sales. Throughout the local Electric Company Service Area this rapid growth and development requires long-range planning and budget and plans for the future are scheduled for the next ten years.

BLACKOUT INSURANCE

The newest plans for future construction call for three new generating units, costing $4 million. These units, one to be powered by a jet engine, and the other two by diesels, will have a total capacity of 47,500 kilowatts. They will add five percent in peaking capacity. To be installed at yet undetermined places in late summer, the remote-controlled and selfstarting units will also be available to provide start up power for the company's steam electric generating stations in the event of a major power failure.

Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company's present generators are capable of producin 890,000 kilowatts. These comprise the Conesville Station, near Coshocton; E. M. Poston Station, between Athens and Nelsonville, Walnut, south of Columbus, and Picway, on the Scioto River ten miles south of Columbus.

Groundbreaking for the first component of a large generating station on the Ohio river is scheduled for this spring. Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company, Cincinnati Gas and Electric Company and Dayton Power and Light Company will own the two-million kilowatt station, the cost of which when completed will exceed $200 million. The station has been named the J. M. Stuart Electric Generating Station and will be constructed by Dayton Power and Light Company.

CONSUMPTION UP

This is the second venture of these three companies to joint ownership of certain generating and transmission facilities. Presently under construction is a 434,000 kilowatt unit as an addition to Cincinnati's Beckjord Station. Total kilowatt hour sales by Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company service area for the first ten months of 1965 exceeded those in the same period last year by 8.2 percent. Projection for the next ten years indicate that total kilowatt hour sales are expected to grow at an annual rate of about 6.5 percent.

Another indication of the Electric Company's outlook for the future was the most recent system-wide rate reduction totaling $2,650,000 annually which went into effect in November. A similar rate decrease went into effect in 1963.

A new space heating rate, available when electric energy is the main heating source is attractive to General Service users. It is applicable during the heating season extending from September to May, and provides for a 1.2 cent per kilowatt hour charge.

Just Step This Way-- New Skills On Sale

However, 12 registrations are necessary before any one course will be offered. Fee for the non-credit subject is $8 for the 12 week term, and registration will close after the opening meeting. Class time is from 7 until 9 p.m. each Tuesday. Subjects open for sign-up include instruction in the operation of audio-visual equipment; bookkeeping and office machines; industrial education including cabinet making; refresher courses in English and Latin; general math, Algebra I and II and plane geometry; beginning and advanced typing; public speaking and any science or social study courses that are demanded. Further information may be obtained from the school either by phone (TE. 6-5345) or at the office between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on school days.

It's been that way for Minnie Morgan ever since her Columbus Police patrolman husband, James Phillip Morgan, 33, 1134 Bellfolwer-av, was shot to death Jan. 16 and his frozen body was found the next day at Valley-view-dr and Wilson-rd.

She tried to escape the caller by going to live with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, 701 Wilson-rd, but the calls come there, too. She can understand those calls a little easier. The John Morgan's are listed in the telephone book. Minnie Morgan's phone has always been unlisted.

There are other things that puzzle the young widow, too, as she tries this week to piece together the events surrounding her husband's bizarre death. The pieces never seem to fit for her even though Columbus police officials say that they fit.

That Sunday morning, Jan. 16, James Phillip Morgan got out of bed at about 9:30 a.m. He was still a little sleepy. He had worked until 11 p.m. the night before. But, he was in good spirits. He and Minnie talked about a trip they were planning to New York City and Washington, D.C.

James shaved and told Minnie he was going to see City Councilman Donald Woodland. He said "Donnie may be able to help him get a job "upstairs" . . . in the detective bureau. James was a patrolman and he wanted something better.

Minnie protested. "That can wait until Monday," she said. "The kids (there are five of them) and I haven't been out of the house in three weeks. Let's go to see your folks, Jim, and then to my Mommie's house." (Minnie's family, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, live in Westerville).

James said all right, that he would take them. But first he wanted to "go see Donnie" and then "I'll be right back."

"Jim," Minnie said, "you go now and you won't come back, I know it."

"Yes I will, I'll be back."

It was almost noon and James Phillip Morgan left the house. It was the last time his wife was to see him alive.

All that Sunday Minnie waited for Jim to come back. It was 9:15 p.m. now. Minnie's mother called from Westerville. She was watching Bonanza and usually calls her daughter before she goes to bed.

Minnie was talking to her mother on the bedroom phone and Minnie heard the front door open.

How Do You Measure Progress?

1966 marks the 150th anniversary of the gas industry.

The industry measures progress in accomplishments . . . in achievements on the record. It constantly looks to the future.

Here in Ohio, your gas company works to bring a better way of life to you, your family, your neighbors, and its more than 900,000 other customers.

Each year your gas company invests millions of dollars in Ohio's future to meet the ever-increasing demands of its present customers and thousands of new customers.

The results? In Ohio homes, natural gas is a familiar servant. It heats, cools, cooks, dries clothing and accomplishes other tasks economically and dependably.

In Ohio industry, natural gas is an essential partner to progress. It has thousands of uses as a tool, a fuel and a raw material.

In addition, the gas industry and your gas company have made tremendous strides in the fields of total energy, on-site electric power generation and air conditioning — making prospects for the future even brighter.

local "sympathizers" and "contacts." He said ages of local active members range between 18 and 50.

A file at the Spartacists office contains the names, addresses, phone numbers and other information concerning about 100 persons, most of them local.

Houser, a freshman in the the OSU College of Arts and Sciences, said he and his "comrades" support the political doctrines of Karl Marx, Nickolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky.

When questioned about Spartacist objectives, Houser showed the Spectator reporters and editorial published in the February, 1964, issue of the national Spartacist newspaper. He said Columbus members "agree in full with the editorial."

The editorial says in part:

"We frankly state in advance that the purpose of our action is to further a revolutionary regroupment of the forces within this country (United States) such that a Leninist vanguard party of the working class will emerge.

"Secondly, we want to win individual supporters for our viewpoint from among radical youth, militants in the civil rights strugele, and seek to create modest nuclei within key sections of the working class.

"Critical to our success will be the ability of our comrades to . . . be involved as revolutionists in the social struggle of our times . . . "

Houser said the ultimate goal of the Spartacist Party is to convert the world to "true communism." He explained that he believed this kind of communism would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs."

He said he did not favor a violent overthrow of the U.S. government, but added that history "has proven that major changes cannot be brought about except through the use of force."

"We will work peacefully toward a political and social revolution," he said. "But if the ruling class starts shooting at us, we'll shoot back."

He said that one of the prime tactics of the Spartacists is to infiltrate other local organizations. He said members already have been placed in civic clubs, OSU organizations and trade unions.

"We do not attempt to hide our political feelings," he said. "The other people in the organizations know why we are there. We are there to recruit people for our organization and to put forth our ideas."

Care For A Cruise? Here's Your Chance...

John Flickinger has resigned as night constable of Hamilton Township, effective Feb. 11. No replacement for the post, which involves eight hours of cruising in the patrol car, has been found. Rick Harrup will continue as the day officer. Other personnel problems are currently being faced by the trustees, as the loss of two volunteer firemen has left the day shift understaffed. Although no definite decision has been made, the trustees are considering employing a man to work with the chief or assistant chief who is on daytime duty. The chiefs are on an "on-24 and off-48" schedule.

Key! Key! Who Has A Key To Hamilton?

Hamilton Local School Board met Monday afternoon in a special session called by Mrs. Mildred Harkrader, clerk. The purpose for which it was called (a roll call on the election of officers which had been omitted at the organizational meeting) was quickly taken care of. The rest of the meeting, distinguished only by its brevity, was spent in complying with Boardman Hubert Gibbs' request that he be authorized to pick up the master key to the school he believes is in the possession of former board member Wendall Woodruff. He believes only the principal and custodial help should carry such keys and Principal Jack Rumora was asked to take steps to see that any other keys out are returned.

The battalion's HAWK missiles are also capable of destroying some types of missiles.

Rayna Hoskins Wins Homemaker Title

Rayna Hoskins, Groveport-Madison senior, has been named Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow after competitive tests were taken at her high school. The award automatically enters her in the race for the state title which carries a trip to Washington and a $500 scholarship for the lucky girl, along with a set of Encyclopaedia Britannica for her school. The national winner receives a $5,000 scholarship.

Helps To Buy Siren

The Harrison Township Volunteer Fire Department needs a new siren and The Spectator Newspapers are going to lend a helping hand. In the next several days subscription representatives will be calling at Ashville area residences, launching the year's customer campaign. For each new order, or renewal by a present subscriber, the newspapers will make a donation in the subscriber's name to the fire department. This is not a fund drive for the fire department. It is a way The Spectator is using to help the volunteer firemen purchase a badly-needed fire siren. The personnel conducting the campaign will be distinctively identified. Checks should be made payable to The Spectator.

Reynoldsburg Man Inherits Sewer Woes After Andrews Resigns As Village Solicitor

James C. Thompson has been employed as solicitor by the Groveport Council to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Roger Andrews.

The attorney, according to Mayor Bob Baer, is well-acquainted with municipal law as he served as safety director of Reynoldsburg in 1963 and was elected to a two-year term as president of council of that city in 1964.

Thompson, who teaches government at OSU branches at Lockbourne AFB and at Zanesville, was named outstanding young man of the year by the Jaycees three years ago.

Another personnel problem was solved by council with the appointment of Wilson Richardson, 302 Tallman-st, as zoning officer. (Rich Mills, who has held the post until recently, moved to Lithopolis, making him ineligible for village office.)

Council accepted the resignation of George Darfus, who, with Orin Hamler and Harley Dolby, has acted as trustee of the Groveport Cemetery. As Baer is exploring the legality of transferring the responsibility for cemetery operation to a committee made up of councilmen, he does not expect to name a replacement for Darfus at this time.

Much of Monday's meeting involved the change over from Andrews to Thompson and bringing the latter up to date on current village problems and goals.

High priority was given to the immediate filing in the Common Pleas Court of a case which officials hope will bring in a windfall of $17,000.

This sum was collected as a surcharge on water bills when the village was contemplating building its own sewage disposal plant. When the decision was made to have the county construct the plant, the money was frozen.

If the court will allow the money to be spent for a purpose other than that for which it was collected, officials wish to channel it into street repairs.

The new solicitor was also asked to make recommendations for an ordinance regulating peddlers in Groveport and to familiarize himself with the sewer rate structure. (Village officials and residents have long claimed that the sewer rates charged by the county are not justified.)

Baer reports that although six candidates for the post of village marshal have been interviewed, no one has been found that is satisfactory both to himself and the safety committee. The mayor has written to Columbus Police Chief George Scholer asking that he recommend a man or men for the post from his retirement list.

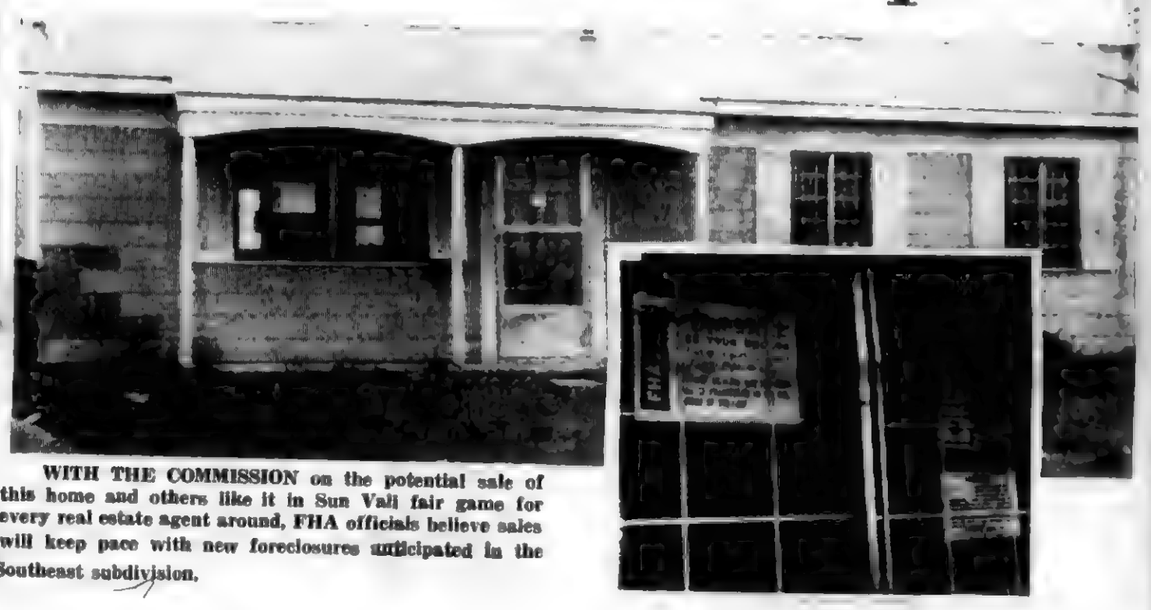
The Race In Review

"R" stands for "Reams" and "Rhodes" but — if last week's topsy-turvy gubernatorial candidate race is any indication of things to come —it could also stand for "re-shuffling" before the Feb. 2 filing deadline.

There is little certainty about anything at this hour as to which candidate which party may endorse for governor of Ohio.

At Spectator press time, even present Ohio governor James A. Rhodes had not yet officially filed for re-election.

The Democrats seem to be fairly satisfied now with Frazier Reams, Jr., (D-Toledo), the man who is being recommended for the race by the state's steering committee.



Reams' name will undoubtedly be recommended to the state Executive Committee which will convene after Feb. 2 but what the outcome will be then is anybody's guess.

The biggest surprise from the Democrats last week came from former Ohio Governor Michael V. DiSalle who took himself out of the running.

DiSalle's ex-highway Safety Director J. Grant Keys (who was seen as a possible candidate prior to the Democratic Screening Committee meeting last Saturday) also dropped from the race as the "Draft Reams" move mounted.

Another name still in the Democratic picture is the avowed nomination-seeker State Rep. Harry H. McIlwain (D-Cincinnati).

Other men who expressed interest in the Democratic endorsement last week were U.S. Rep. Robert Sweeney of Cleveland, former attorney general Mark McElroy, party leader William Coleman and Columbus attorney Theodore Saker.

Does $10 Down Buy You A Home Or A Door To Bankruptcy? Part One

THIRD IN A SERIES

Is home ownership advisable for the family whose assets are limited to an acceptable credit rating, a steady job and a $10 bill for down payment?

In the early fifties a half-dozen or so pieces of property were sold every month on the Court House steps by the sheriff of Franklin County.

During 1964, 300 such sales hit the $4,000,000 mark and last year appraisal value of the 482 properties sold was $6,000,000.

And according to Lt. Earl Brownley, of the Sheriff's department, business boomed during the first three weeks of 1966.

Viewing the rising rate of foreclosure, some are asking if it isn't high time level-headed evaluation be made of what has happened—and is happening daily — to low-cost, easily-financed housing.

Last week 118 homes in the area stood vacant.

In the front window of 54 of these were two sets of letters that have become as familiar as a "NO PEDDLER" sign.

Each indicates that litigation of a federally-insured mortgage that turned sour is complete and the property is now in Federal Housing Authority inventory, awaiting sale.

The same signs will eventually appear in other empties.

Court House records show 51 foreclosures in Sun Vali from April through December of 1965, but the local FHA office reports this figure tells less than half the story.

A spokesman revealed that more often than not a defaulting mortgagee will voluntarily relinquish his deed, thus avoiding the costs of a formal foreclosure

The exodus from Sun Vali which led a county official to refer to the subdivision as "Bogie-man town" is a fact—

But what's behind it?

Interviews with those still living in the area produced a handful of answers.

Dissatisfaction with the quality of the houses, high-

LET'S KNIT . . .

A FOX STOLE

By URSULA duBOIS

Which woman has not dreamed about owning a white fox stole? As some women are able to knit and others are able to crochet — and we are certain that every woman would want to own this luxurious stole — we included in the pattern not only knitting but also crocheting instructions.

URSULA

We used for this stole a heavy orlon sayelle as so many women are allergic to fur and wool. The straight stole is made of easy to knit or crochet loops which are then cut open and brushed to get the soft furry effect.

Lining is not necessary although we lined ours with a straight piece of brocade in order to heighten the elegance of this item. Surprisingly enough, it does not use much yarn nor time to fashion.

The shell shown with the stole is Sequins Shell No. 57. It may be obtained for 50 cents.

Illustrated instructions for the stole are written in one size. If you wish to obtain Fox Stole No. 78, send 50 cents in coin, check, or money order to:

Ursula duBois, Spectator Newspapers' Pattern Department, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif., 91407. For first-class mail and special handling, send 15 cents extra.

TO HOLD SUPPER

A spaghetti supper will be held from 4:30 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 29 at Groveport Methodist Church, Main-st at College.

MINISTERS MEET

A Minister's Association meeting will be held at Groveport Methodist Church, Main-st at College, Thursday, Feb. 3 at 10 a.m., states the Rev. Richard P. Jamison, pastor.

The best preparation for the future is the present well seen to, and the last duty done.—George Macdonald.

Bon-Aire Moves

For over two years a landmark at Gilbert and Fulton-sts, the Bon-Aire cocktail lounge has moved to the Hamilton Road Shopping Center. Dave and Mary are host and hostess.

I think you will enjoy, as I did, the congenial and friendly mood at the Bon-Aire, as well as the plush decor. Businessmen's luncheons are the specialty of the house. The evening menu features the very best in steaks, chops and seafoods.

TEEN DANCE SLATED

The Obetz Methodist Youth Fellowship will sponsor a WCOL hop this Saturday, Jan. 29, 8 to 11 p.m., in the Hamilton Township High School cafeteria. D. Jim Simpson will spin the records. All area teens are invited and girls may wear slacks.

I never think about the future. It comes soon enough.—Albert Einstein.

Shot In The Arm

The saddest chapter of the narcotics story in Columbus and Ohio could be written by the lawmakers of this state if they develop an "all's well that ends" philosophy.

There has been little serious thinking about the narcotic problem in Ohio. Now is THE time for legislatures to move in for a closer look.

Perhaps Ohio could take a lesson from California, a state which recognizes the seriousness of the narcotic problem and the lack of factual data concerning addicts and addiction.

California authorities studied the problem and, in 1959, published a report entitled "Narcotics in California" which is available for adaptation here.

This report provided the basis for legislation authorizing the Narcotics Treatment and Control Program. It also recommended a commission be created by the Governor.

Governor Brown responded. The interim report of his commission on narcotics also reached the 1961 legislature. Its report and staff and the members of the board and staff played a vital role in drafting and working closely with members of the legislature in enacting the pioneering act for the civil commitment of narcotic addicts and establishment of the Narcotics Rehabilitation Center.

This is no time for "cold turkey" . . . not when things are just getting warm.

Reality And Responsibility

Last week The Spectator exposed an organization called "the Spartacist Party" which hopes to convert the world to "true communism," according to its local leaders.

Under the laws of democracy, persons are guaranteed the right to freedom of political beliefs and the freedom to publicly express those beliefs in peacetime.

However, it appears to us that the Spartacists are using these freedoms in a manner that is both unrealistic and irresponsible.

True communism, as defined by the Spartacists, would be a "classless society in which persons work according to abilities and receive according to needs." Such a society is neither attainable nor desirable. It would offer no incentive to the workers, and progress depends upon motivation.

Of course our government needs many improvements, but "overthrow" would be excusable only if one were fighting a state of tyranny such as Hitler's Germany.

Until a governmental system superior to democracy is devised, no one should attempt to overthrow the United States. Sincere desire to better the nation should be directed in a positive manner toward improving the present system.

Strange Seas

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

..He sat there. His head was bobbing up and down over a whisky. His wrinkled hands made a worshipful tent over the drink. His eyes had the dull intensity of a man who had stopped thinking.

It was the Bowery. It was New York. It was 1958. It was winter.

The bar floor was sawdust. Liquor was 15-cents a shot. And outside, one could see the twirling tail of a Salvation Army soup line.

Down the street was a pawnshop. One of the features of a cluttered window display was a shabby pin-tray. On the tray were diamond-studded emblems of every major national service organization, some Phi Beta Kappa Keys, professional fraternity badges and a cluster of wedding bands.

Inside the alcove of a church entrance, a man in a torn coat was sleeping. Next to him was an empty bottle of cheap wine. Rooms were advertised for a quarter. Bar after bar had greasy, streaked windows behind which murky shadows moved about. A few stores were sprinkled about the street. They shrieked bargains on pitiful pieces of merchandise that should have been scrapped years ago.

It was skid row . . . the lane of broken dreams.

There's one in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Columbus.

Ask the man with the dull eyes why he came there and after his story is done there is no clue. Just a man. A man who failed. A man who sits in his failure. A man who has given up all hope of ever becoming anything but a failure. Some would tell you it was drink. There are many on skid row who do not drink.

Some will tell you it's mental illness. But here are minds that once were doctors, lawyers, and businessmen.

Some would tell you it is laziness. No one works harder than the man who needs 50 cents to keep from freezing to death.

Some will tell you it's a collection of vagrants. Many were God-fearing husbands and fathers.

Still they come, all sizes and shapes . . . from every walk of life . . . flocking to where the way out is dying and no one knows why they come. The clergyman, the sociologist, the psychiatrist, the medical man are all puzzled.

And for us who live outside, skid row is a living reminder that the course of existence sometimes leads to strange seas.

They Said It

"The Enterprise is not advocating a third party, buf we positively are advocating a return to the basic issues, and a sound government, and darn it, a government as existed when we studied civics and government in old Wytheville High School . . . it would be reassuring if those who intone about the sanctity of the two-party system voted and acted as a partisan of one of the parties rather than as a spokesman for both."—Wytheville (Va.) Calling Ohioans

By
MICHAEL V. DISALLE

Frazier Reams, Jr., is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Thirty-five years of memories pass by.

In 1931 I returned to Toledo after completing my legal education at Georgetown University in Washington, D. C. Toledo was one of the first depression-hit cities in the United States. All but one of its banks were closed in that year.

One of the first men to whom I talked politics was Frazier Reams, Sr., then contemplating his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for prosecuting attorney. He was bright and genial. I became interested in his campaign, along with many others.

He was engaged in a primary contest with some well-known, experienced candidates. Frazier won and went on to be elected, together with a handful of new, interested Democrats. We joined in a fight to recognize the Democratic party in Lucas County. This, too, was successful.

Frazier Reams went on to become a legend as a hard-hitting, crusading prosecuting attorney. He drove the gangsters out of Lucas County and put their leaders in the penitentiary. Most of them are still there.

Our families became friends. Our oldest daughter, Toni, learned among her first words how to say "Reams for Prosecuting Attorney." Later, Mr. and Mrs. Reams attended baptism of our children and, still later, their weddings and other happy occasions. We were privileged in the same way to be with the Reams family.

Frazier Reams, Jr.

Our children and Frazier, Jr., became active together in the Lucas County Young Democrats.

The above presents, only in a limited way, the basis for expert testimony on the qualifications of Frazier Reams, Jr., as a candidate for governor.

There are many additional factors and circumstances too numerous to detail.

Here is a young man, raised in an excellent home, with the kindest and most loving care, grown in the atmosphere and tradition of honorable public service. Here is a young man who, by education and training, is qualified to fulfill the responsibilities of high public office.

Here is a young man who soon will make an impact throughout Ohio with his prematurely gray hair, handsome profile and grasp of public issues. He has a keen mind and a liking for people. He is articulate and easy to listen to. His high sense of ethics will be welcomed by many citizens of Ohio as they learn to know him. Frazier Reams, Jr., is A-OK all the way!

Go Get 'Em, Dr. Winfield

Three years ago, a unique government official named Dr. Gerald F. Winfield bought 1,000 television sets for our foreign aid program . . . a "crash" project to build a TV network in South Vietnam.

Then, he purchased $1.5-million worth of transistor television receivers to educate natives in underdeveloped areas.

He said he did not know just where these sets should be shipped. He termed the contract one of urgency.

Congressman Porter Hardy (D-Virginia), Chairman of the House Operations Committee, offended the good doctor by terming this "about the screwiest proposition" he had ever heard.

Nevertheless, our government operating agency, AID, is financing this doctor's proposal with $2.4-million for initial cost with the Defense Department assuming the balance.

Now AID officials, at the good doctor's instigation, have purchased 2,500 table model televisions. Dr. Winfield proposes to place them in community centers in Vietnam for mass viewing.

This sort of thing presents a convincing argument why a Senator should vote against most foreign aid appropriations.

Especially when all except 700 of the some 2,600 villages in South Vietnam are under Viet Cong control. Especially when Dr. Winfield may have to capture tigers in the jungles and rub their fur to produce static electricity.

Letters To The Editor

Says Letter Confuses

To The Spectator:

In regards to Irene Brentlinger's letter (Jan. 20 Spectator), her facts and conclusions are self-contradictory and confusing.

Mrs. Brentlinger asks Mr. Paul Wiley to read Gibbon's "Decline and Fall," and to compare the Roman Empire "with conditions prevailing in the U.S." But upon reading Gibbon, I learn that the Roman Empire fell before Christianity's march. Is this true of the U.S. today? I doubt it. Other things don't jibe. For instance, Mrs. Brentlinger overlooks two facts: by far the greater part of Rome's civil servants and nearly all Rome's army and navy were captives of foreign wars, i.e., not Roman citizens. They were slaves.

Such is hardly the case in the U.S. today. Also, Rome never "owned" nearly so much land or floor space as the U.S. and in fact tried to give newly-acquired lands to citizens and retired soldiers. Rome's tax base would hardly have allowed the Roman government to receive one-sixth of all income, especially since the largest fortunes were practically free of taxation. Furthermore, Rome was a free port, hence commerce coming to Rome was tax-free. And Rome had no stockpiles comparable to U.S. stockpiles, for one reason: technology. Rome could not produce large quantities of vital goods, nor could such goods be easily transported from strategic points.

Why does she quote Lenin? Lenin won a revolution, a Communist one at that, but one can hardly say it "creeped," or that conditions were similar (1917: total, global war), or that Lenin was even informed about the gullibility of Americans.

Further, Mrs. Brentlinger's facts are slightly ridiculous as arguments. The U.S. "owns," as of 1963, about 768-million acres of land, but leased only 1.3-million acres, less than 1 percent. No real estate company, operating for its own profit, could survive at that rate. What would she have us do with that land? Subject it to industrial abuses? Build more Levittowns? Strip-mine it? Thaw it out? As it is now, the land is public, and Mrs. Brentlinger has more use of it now than if sometime in the future it were turned over, en masse, to privote developers. Next time she drinks a glass of water from her government-protected river, or visits Yellowstone, she ought to count one or two blessings. Federal blessings.

Calls It Treason

To The Spectator:

We have read your story "Communists Open Office in Columbus" (Spectator, Jan. 20). Several of us are World War II veterans who now have sons in service and are proud that they are there instead of at Ohio State University being called "Spartacists."

This group admits they want to overthrow the American government. Is this not treason?

How, as American citizens, are we to fight communism when we are upholding it in our universities?

Awake The Citizens

To The Spectator:

The article "Communists Open Office In Columbus" (Jan. 20 Spectator) was just what the city needed. If it didn't awake the citizens of this area nothing ever will.

The young, uninformed people who operate the local Spartacist Party must really hate the American way of life.

Taking a hard look at this new group, one has to realize the main source from which it came. Then a fair opinion could be given . . . "nuts."

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

The Republicans appear, as a result of two years spent wandering in the Goldwater wilderness, to have learned one important lesson — restraint.

With the decisions in the Vietnamese war on a knife edge of uncertainty by past performance they would at this point be calling for bombing everywhere and anywhere to bring quick victory. As recently as December the victory-by-bombing theme was the battle cry of many Republicans. Today with remarkable unanimity they are saying that military decisions must be left to the Administration while the President's peace offensive has a chance of succeeding.

CHILDS

When Republican leaders talk privately they are frank in saying that they believe the trend of events is bound to be in their favor. By opposing new taxes and paying for the rapidly mounting cost of the war through saving on domestic programs House Minority Leader Gerald Ford is likely to appeal to a majority of voters and particularly in the expanding suburbs around the great cities where the Republicans in the past counted on their hard-core strength.

The Republican Congressional campaign of 1954 was pitched on the "three Democrat wars" of this century with the casualty lists added up and the total scored against the Democratic party. In one of his more majestic flights as the campaign grew in intensity Senator Dirksen was quoted as saying the Democrats were "eager to drink the hot blood of young Americans." The Korean War, denounced in the Eisenhower campaign of 1952 as "Truman's war," had ended only a year before and the 157,530 casualties were a bitter memory.

Particularly in small-town and suburban newspapers and on small radio stations Republicans spent their money for advertisements warning against the Democrats as the war party. Reciting the record of the Eisenhower prosperity, a typical ad concluded: "And all this done without War In Indo-China and the useless Korean War ended. Keep the Peace. The Life you save may be your son's."

The outcome of the election in 1954 gave the Republicans little reason for rejoicing. They had held paper-thin majorities in the House and Senate as a result of the Eisenhower landslide. From a majority of 219 over 125 in the House they went to a minority of 203 to 232 Democrats. The lineup in the Senate, 48 Democrats to 47 Republicans with one independent, was not altered. These narrow majorities meant control by the coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats which was one reason for the dead-center inertia of the Eisenhower years.

In this Congressional year another striking difference in the Republican approach is the absence of even a small genuflection before what was once the most sacred of sacred cows — balancing the budget. Shrewd leaders such as Rep. Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, the party whip in the house, know full well that this old totem has no more magic.

Republican restraint owes something to a scarcity of issues at a moment when the country is increasingly prosperous and the Vietnamese war has not yet begun to bite into the national fabric. If it is correct that the number of American ground troops is to be raised to 340,000 by midsummer, then the war will in the months ahead dominate all other considerations.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKEL

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

The other night, with below-zero temperature outside, inside at the Bowery, the Geoff Tyus Trio was red hot. The trio, composed of piano, bass and drums, has a clean, crisp sound.

It's hard to single out any one musician. They are a perfect blend of talent and skill. Individually, they are great. As a trio, they are superb.

Their approach is fresh and tasty. Employing unusual chord structure and harmonics, they produce interesting and pleasing music. The Geoff Tyus Trio is slated for one week at the Bowery. But, the way the group has been pleasing the almost capacity crowds, it's a safe bet they will be held over a second week.

Sing-Along

Just five minutes from Broad and High, you'll find Muggsie's Bar. Johnny Wright, the leader of the famous Vagabums, is the proprietor. Frequently he will strap on his accordion and present an impromptu floor show.

A sing-along with an old fashion player piano and the lyrics on colored slides is a popular pastime at Muggsie's. The harmony may not be great, but you'll have fun.

'Image of Greece'

Outstanding among available family-type films is Kenneth Richter's "Image of Greece." the third presentation of the 1966 Worthington Travel and Adventure Series will be Saturday, Jan. 29 at 8 p.m. The show will be held at the Activities Center, 880 Griswold-st, Worthington.

Chrysler Queen In Dry Dock

Althoough Buddy Byers was involved in a boating accident at the Orange Bowl Grand Prix in Miami, Fla., in mid-January, his second boat, on hand as an alternate in Miami, will be on display at the Fourth Annual Marine Fair," at Buckeye Building, Fairgrounds. Show dates are Feb. 5-13. This boat show is among Ohio's largest.

The "Chrysler Queen" is slated to be in dry dock with boats of every description by 50 Ohio boat and marine sunpply dealers.

Statistically, Byers' hydroplane is 22 feet long, weighs 1800 pounds, develops 1,000 horsepower, is fueled by alcohol and has a top speed of over 160 miles per hour.

The Central Ohio Marine Dealers' Asscciation is hosting the spectacular fair.

Mariam and Sherry A Sweet Wine

One of the best duos in Ohio is currently appearing at the Olentangy Inn Cocktail Lounge. The Mariam Prather Duo, with Mariam on piano and Sherry Stevens, a luscious blonde gal, on vocals and electric bass, provide music distinctively styled.

Marian, known by many in our area, is a talented pianist. Her keyboard stylings show imagination and creativeness. Yet, she doesn't lose the melody line. A strong left hand adds drive and spark.

Sherry Stevens' voice is rich and mellow, and is used to its best advantages. Having great intonations and a good sense for presentation, Sherry sells a song.

Can C-W Speed Override Reynoldsburg Rebounding?

By BOB WHITMAN

Canal Winchester faces that life or death situation Friday in Franklin County League championship play.

The classy Indians (10-1) must hurdle an improving and still unbeaten (league-wise) Reynoldsburg outfit (9-4 overall) to remain in contention for the county crown.

A CANAL VICTORY would jumble second place with a trio of teams and make the Indians' Feb. 18 date at New Albany the showdown battle.

Raider coach Dick Fishbaugh figures that stopping the Indians can only be achieved by turning off their vaunted fast break and balanced scoring offense.

"I DON'T KNOW what to expect from them on defense," Fishbaugh said, "they have been using a man-to-man and zone."

Indian coach Bob Miller will try to keep his elegant scoring balance and aggressive team spirit intact for this "toughie."

"We will need a solid team effort all the way," Miller said.

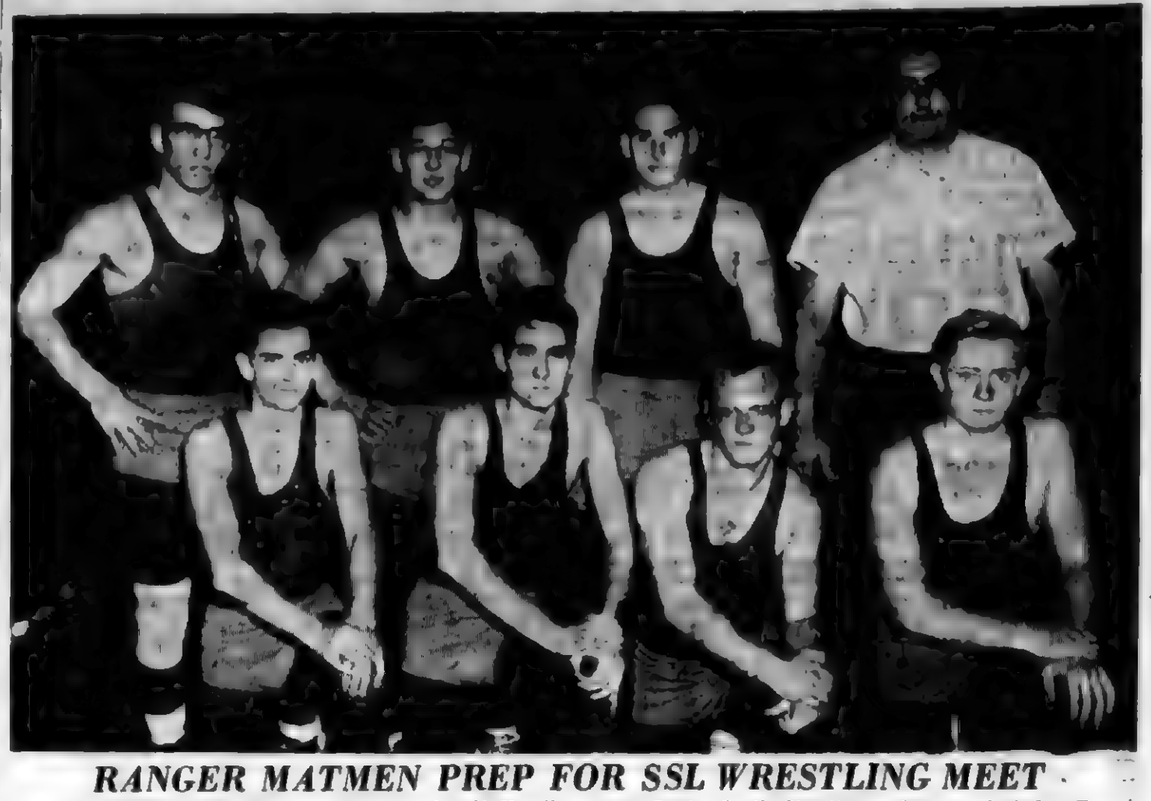
That sweet shooting duo has combined for 422 of 787 points. Shade (215—16.5) plays guard and Miller (207—15.9) is a forward.

CANAL WILL OFFER four decent scorers for a tough Raider defense to chop down if they want to remain in first place of the FCL.

Jim Burke (178—16.1), Vic Argobright (156—14.1), Dick Whitmer (133—12.1) and Bill Miles (101—9.1) have led the balanced scoring quintet thus far.

A big extra lift for the Indians is passing dandy Steve Smith (88—8.0), who aids the scorers with pin-point accuracy that usually winds up with a lay-up shot for Winchester.

CANAL WILL have to play that bump and grind rebounding game this week as the Raiders main forte is the undesirable but necessary chore of ball retrieving. Reynoldsburg outreached St. Mary last week 43-28.



The 54-41 win over the Saints was a tribute to slick foul shooting (26 of 40) in a game played at Reynoldsburg.

But, alas, the only Class AA team in the FCL, Reynoldsburg does have an Achilles' tendon. The Raiders fall prey to turnovers each week. Last week they tossed the ball away 19 times for a season's low.

There are dozens of ways that this one could boil down but either way it will have a distinctive championship flavor to it.

(Reynoldsburg's offense has scored 60.5 points per game and the defense has yielded 50.8. Canal Winchester is going with a 76.1 average and a 61.5 defensive mark.

RANGER MATMEN PREP FOR SSL WRESTLING MEET

ALTHOUGH IT'S still a good three weeks off, Hamilton Township's varsity wrestlers are busy preparing these days for the South Suburban League mat tourney, scheduled Friday, Feb. 18 at Franklin Heights. Top Ranger prospects for the loop meet are pictured above with head coach Dario Gatti. Varsity performers include: Roger Milligan (120), Jack Schneider (127), Jeff Nelson (138), Eric Bomhard (145), Darrell Wampler (154), Mike Wendland (165) and Terry Haughtaling (175). Teays Valley-Pleasant View Rematched In SSL Showdown

For the last two years, the Pleasant View Panthers and the Teays Valley Vikings have split their annual pair. This time Bo Brickels hopes the third time is a charm.

The Panthers have lost the opportunity to take Russ Gregg's crew twice with narrow misses on the Viking floor. Friday night the Panthers are at home for this rematch meeting.

PLEASANT VIEW (9-3) dropped Teays Valley (7-6), 47-40 at Teays Valley on Jan. 7.

Panther coach Brickels looks for a new wrinkle offensively from counterpart Gregg.

"They have changed a few things since we played them last," Brickels said, "and I can't help thinking that the changes are meant for us."

"We hope to have a better offensive attack this time as I didn't think offense played well the last time," he added.

AS FAR AS Gregg was concerned the offense could have been the world's worst since his group couldn't score against the Panther defense.

"We have to get offensive movement this time," Gregg said, "we need it to offset their two timing."

The Pleasant View - Teays Valley game will decide on whose head the SSL crown will rest. The Panthers win it and the crown returns.

If Teays gets it the crown will be altered to fit both.

That, of course, is providing that next week neither Hamilton nor Franklin rise up to upset the top contenders. — BOB WHITMAN

Hamilton notes: Tom Morrison (51—8.5) Ranger moved to Washington, D.C., with his family. His father is in the Air Force and was transferred from Lockbourne. Hamilton coach Eldon Malling said that Morrison was "doing a fine job and really coming along."

Malling added that his Rangers were improving, but that the "boys haven't learned to work with newcomer Russ Mobley as yet."

P-V Invitational, Tig. Quad Top Weekend Mat Schedule

By Jack Wittenmeier

East's annual quadrangular tomorrow and Pleasant View's big Invitational draw the area wrestling spotlights this week.

The P-V affair sports a classy field which includes Worthington, Circleville, Groveport, Westerville, West, Walnut Ridge, Franklin Heights and the host Panthers.

Prelims get under way at 10:30 with semi-finals and the consolation round kicking off after a noon break. Finals should start around 3 p.m.

Team trophies for the winner and runnerup will be awarded along with additional cups for the top 11 individuals.

ADMISSION, will be 75 cents (whole session) for everyone over 12. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Advance sale of tickets is being conducted at all of the eight participating schools at 50 cents apiece.

East, a recent runnerup at Westerville's Invitational, has three dandy opponents in Brookhaven, Arlington and Whitehall at the Tigers' quad.

DALE FAUST'S Rams sport the best mark—7-0—going in.

GROVEPORT rebounded sharply from its first dual loss of the season (24-21 to Grandview) last week to handily capture its own quadrangular Saturday.

The Cruisers piled up 105 points, easily outdistancing runnerup Circleville (87), Newark (80) and Hamilton Township (24).

HAMILTON'S best effort came at 138 where Jeff Nelson took a second.

Grandview spotted the Cruisers a 10-point lead on a pair of defaults but it wasn't enough as the Bobcats rallied for the victory.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

In my last column, I delved into the problems concerning the part of Ohio's deer herd that is held captive on the grounds of the Ravenna Arsenal in northeastern Ohio.

Each year, the contractors condescend to allow a sifted smattering of archers plus 100 shotgun hunters who have been drawn at a lottery (Ohio Division of Wildlife's permission) to enter these Federal lands and shoot deer.

Paugh

As things stand, literally hundreds of people who know the right people hunt several days each year, killing more than the legal one deer each. VIPS flock in from far and near, hunting from contractors' trucks or using the 'lucky' 100 drawees to drive the deer to them.

MANY DEER are cornered against fences and shot like mad dogs. There is nothing ethical, moral or sportsmanlike about the deer-shoot.

Many of the deer taken are brought off the grounds and abandoned either for lack of further interest or lack of knowledge of proper dressing. I located three deer carcasses from the Arsenal, enough meat to feed an average family for the winter, outside of Columbus.

Thinking I was doing the right and proper thing, I reported the find to the Division of Wildlife. From there on, I was lied to several times and cross-questioned at length in an attempt to find out how much I knew about Ravenna.

THE MEN who killed these deer were employes of the State of Ohio but were not among the 'lucky' 100. Their story is that they went with a third man who was chosen by lottery and asked at the gate to be admitted.

If this is a true story, it is senseless for anyone to qualify for the archery or shotgun quotas, merely go to the gatehouse and beg into the deer shoot.

The true sportmen who go to Ravenna, never want to go back — the slaughter is a scene they want to forget. It's like walking into a pig pen and leveling off at the nearest bale of pork chops that is cornered and waiting for a mercy shot.

THE SURVEY sheets I sent out to the 100 hunters bear me out (62.2 percent of them want the herd returned to public lands where they may be harvested under normal conditions).

THE LAW reads that the wildlife of Ohio is the sole property of the people of Ohio. It should not be held and slaughtered at the whim of VIPS who are lucky enough to know the right people.

Where are the true sportsmen, the conservationists, the righteous and the humane of our state? At election time, we try our best to pick the candidates we feel will do the best job for us — both in Columbus and Washington.

Are these men aware of this travesty of conservation? If they aren't will you tell them?

Will you be part of a grassroots movement to get significant help for our Ohio deer herd?

There are estimated to be 1500 to 2000 deer held prisoner at Ravenna, approximately one-tenth of Ohio's herd. In the right places, they would boster our free herds very well.

The cost of capturing a deer with a drug-gun would be about one dollar each (according to a vet who does it all the time).

This hardly seems a high price to me.

Sporting Chances

The YMCA has selected an ideal guest of honor for the annual "kickoff" dinner for '66 membership roundup tonight at the Central YMCA building.

Guest will be Lou Groza, Cleveland Browns' renowned place kicker and the NFL's lifetime scoring leader.

Scheduled to run from Jan. 27 through Feb. 24, the Y membership quota has been set at 650 with a goal of $25 thousand.

'Fearless' Predictions

"The Fearless One" shined his crystal ball up for another week of forecasting after he stood on top of the desk in the office and shouted something about how great he was last week.

Last week, he picked 24 right against three wrong to up his mark to 192 right, 59 wrong for a 770 percentage.

MARCH OF DIMES BIRTH DEFECTS CENTERS GROW IN NUMBER—NEED TWICE AS MANY

Chart illustrates steady increase in the number of March of Dimes Birth Defects Centers in the nation since 1959, soon after the voluntary organization entered this health field following the conquest of polio. Today, 57 centers of various types provide treatment, teaching and many conduct research. Twice this number of centers is needed to meet the enormous size of the problem. You can provide this additional help for infants and children handicapped by birth defects by contributing in January to the March of Dimes.

A Policeman's Widow Seeks Answers

"Minnie, what are you doing," Jim's voice rang out from the living room.

"Talking to my Mommie," Minnie said, and then (in quieter tones so that Jim wouldn't hear) said to her mother that Jim is drinking and to keep talking.

One of the Morgan daughters, Jamie, called to her father from the bedroom. "Daddy . . . come here," Jamie said.

"I'll be right back," James Phillip Mogran said and the front door slammed again.

Minnie walked into the living room and saw that the closet door was open. James Morgan's service revolver was gone from its holster.

She felt sick. She went back to the bedroom phone and told her mother what had happened and Mrs. Thompson told her daughter that there was nothing she could do about it.

Another Morgan daughter, eight-year-old Melony, ran to the window just as her Daddy left the house. She saw a man standing on the porch. A man was standing there and helping her Daddy off the porch and into a car.

Minnie didn't know if her husband was driving their car or not. She listened to the car speed away and she thought it sounded like their car but she wasn't sure. She wonders now who the man was that was with her husband at 9:15 p.m. (about two hours before he was reportedly shot). Another piece she can't seem to fit in. Perhaps it means nothing.

Minnie Morgan went to bed shortly after her husband left. She was awakened at about three-minutes to midnight with a phone call. A man, with an Italian accent.

"Is-a Jim home?" the voice said.

"No, he's not," answered Minnie. "Can I take a message?"

"You just-a tell him thatta Nick called. He'll know all-a'bout it. That's Nick," and the man spelled it, "N-I-C-K" then hung up.

Minnie had heard her husband speak of Nick. He said that Nick drove a big, black Cadillac and that he was going to let him use the car to take Minnie on their trip.

Minnie went back to sleep.

It was 7:33 a.m. now, about a half-hour before police say they found the body of Patrolman James Philip Morgan. The phone in Minnie's bedroom rang again.

"Is-a Jim home?" The same Italian accent.

"No, he's not," Minnie said. The caller hung up.

Another piece. Minnie wonders.

There are others, too. She saw her husband lying in a casket and could see discoloration coming through the pancake make-up that undertakers use. There were stitches. He looked like he had on a toupe. It looked like he was badly beaten about the head. Why? How? She still search-

She reads an account of that funeral in the morning daily newspaper in this city that says that Columbus Policemen went to the Morgan home and that they took away his personal equipment so that he would not be buried in his policeman's uniform. The uniform is still hanging in the Morgan closet on Bellflower-av. The whistle is still in the lapel. Nothing has been moved. Nothing has been confiscated by the police. Minnie wonders.

Then there's the report from the Morgue that the dead patrolman's wallet was caked with blood . . . that they had to rip it open with pliers. When the personal affects came back to the Morgan's they were clean, unharmed. The gasoline credit card, the Army discharge card, social security card . . . all like new.

Perhaps the most confusing piece to the puzzle is the time element. The patrolman was supposedly shot at around 11:30 p.m. Sunday night. His body wasn't found until a passing motorist spotted it at around 8 a.m. Monday morning.

Perhaps someday Minnie Morgan will have an answer to all her questions.

er taxes, half-day sessions in the local elementary, marital difficulties, change of employment and neighborhood bickering were all mentioned.

But observers concur that none of these factors by themselves would have led to a "bogey-man town" without today's easy credit which has made home ownership—and giving up that home when the going gets tough—so easy.

With as little as $10 down (plus a "sweat equity" which involves applying paint and sowing grass seed provided by the builder) a family can gain title to a home.

As one reputable realtor pointed out, at last the average wage earner can no longer say, "I never had a chance to do anything except collect rent receipts."

It sounds like Shangri-La, a la USA.

But the streets dotted with abandoned homes indicate that many living in Sun Vali have judged it something less than "a hidden paradise."

Next week, The Spectator will take a sharp look at what the prospect with a ten-spot anxiously clutched in his palm actually buys.

...AND DAD APPROVES.

Any new flame who passes out mink stoles doesn't have to be good-looking. But Mom's is.

Mom's new flame is her handsome, compact Gas furnace. Every time she thinks about it she feels warm all over.

But about that mink. Gas heat saves Dad up to several hundred dollars every winter, thousands of dollars over the life of the mortgage. And that's enough for a mink stole or two, or a new car, or a college education in anybody's bankbook.

Maybe you could use a new flame, too—a modern, dependable Gas flame. Think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

Who Says No Jobs In Canal Winchester?

With production scheduled to begin next week, Basic Wire Products, Canal Winchester's newest industry, is accepting applications from men and women who can qualify to operate spot welding equipment and punch presses. According to Lloyd Stebelton, president of the firm which is moving its facilities to the former Ricart Ford building at Bowen and Rt. 33, the 50 to 70 employes will be hired locally with the exception of a dozen key personnel transferred from the Columbus plants.

Stebleton, who has leased the facility from Ricart Realty, expects enlarging of the building to approximately 16,000 square feet will be completed late this spring. The company manufactures small wire products, principally for the glass industry, such as display racks and glass caddies.

A $250,000 mortgage on 45 acres in Madison Township and two lots in the Kathryn Miller Addition of Canal Winchester was recently granted to Ricart Realty which is expanding the factory building.

Commissioners Okay Hamilton Annexation

The request of Robert F. and Alpha Dotson to annex 16.94 acres of land in Hamilton Township to Columbus was granted by Franklin County Commissioners after a hearing last week. The property, which adjoins the Country Club Estates at the foot of Champion-av, east of Lockbourne-rd, will be presented to City Council for appropriate action after a 30-day waiting period. The annexation hearing was unique in that no opposition was offered by residents of the township who have previously fought to maintain the present township boundaries.

Snowman-Nappers Pull Big Job At Base

A sly squad of super snowman smugglers staged a really "cool" caper in the Lockbourne AFB housing area. The heavy snowfall afforded many of the base's children an opportunity to ski, toboggan, have snowball fights and to erect snowmen. In a single night, however, six snowmen were reported absconded. They did not melt or simply get knocked down — they actually disappeared and their whereabouts is still a mystery. According to one of the victims the culprits removed a 10-foot-tall work of art from his front lawn. And that had to be one of the biggest "snow jobs" ever pulled.

RPC Sees Groveport Growth To Northwest

Groveport officials learned last week from Chuck Taylor of regional planning that the village's Blue Plan has progressed to the point that monthly meetings with the local planning commission are advisable. Tentatively, they will be held the first Wednesday of each month. According to Mayor Bob Baer, the preliminary studies indicate that growth of the community will be to the northwest toward the power plant and the Big Walnut Creek. In the proposed breakdown of acreage recommended for industrial, recreation, streets, etc, it has already been recognized that the flood plains surrounding Groveport lay down rigid restrictions on land usage. It is felt at this time that building the land elevation up would only result in subjecting adjacent acreage to run-off.

Gold First To File In District Primary

Martin H. Gold filed nominating petitions Jan. 27 at the Franklin County Board of Elections for the 60th Ohio House District seat in the May 3 Democratic primary. He said, "We must elect a legislature which will not permit the state to shirk its responsibilities for education. Ohio must reverse its dangerous trend of shifting more and more of the financial burden to the local district property owner." Gold promised to seek the nomination in every ward and township in the district "to prove that we can win in November and help provide responsive representation—forward motion instead of slogans."

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Vol. XI, No. 46—Total No. 566 | Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, February 3, 1966 | Second Class Postage Paid at Columbus, Ohio | 10 Cents

The $10,000 collected by this means currently covers the sum earmarked for capital improvements of streets in the 1966 appropriation ordinance.

C-W Street Levy Up For Renewal

Canal Winchester voters will be asked to renew the village's two-mill street levy for five years at the May primaries. As this tax is already being collected, its approval will not change the local burden on real estate.

The $10,000 collected by this means currently covers the sum earmarked for capital improvements of streets in the 1966 appropriations ordinance passed in special meeting of village council this week.

The budget totals almost $248,000, approximately $25,000 over that of last year. Major appropriations included (figures rounded) $50,000 for street constructions, $70,000 for general fund which included $20,000 for capital improvements, and the $45,000 water fund and the $43,000 sewer fund.

Although $10,000 was alloted for capital improvements of the water plant, only $10,000 could be put aside for sewer improvements.

This fact is causing council to seriously study current sewer rates and to reappraise the acreage fee now charged for sewers.

The nine bids received on the specifications for a municipal garage proved from $3,000 to $10,000 over the $22,000 estimated.

The bids were turned over to the building committee for review. If the bids are rejected, they may be either readvertised "as is" or modified to allow consideration of a non-masonry structure which council believes can be built several thousand dollars cheaper.

The three lowest bids were those of Ray Poenisch ($25,648), Pate Construction Co. ($25,775), and Don M. Hussey Co. ($26,252). At the other end of the scale was the $33,777 bid of Frank Valick Co.

Any decision on enlarging the municipal pool before the summer season opens was tabled pending investigation of available financing.

Council representatives will meet with the new planning commission this Thursday to consider the request of Harry Doan, Jr., who wishes to operate a drive-in type of ice cream shop on the 1.1 acres of canal land off West-st and Groveport-pk.

Granting his request will involve the village certifying it has no present use for the land (which it can use only for recreational purposes). This move will make a 15-year lease available to Doan, and at its expiration, the land will revert to the village.

The planning commission,

Feb. 15 Is Deadline In Spectator Contest

The deadline's drawing closer for high school journalists and photographers who wish to enter The Spectator's first annual student talent search.

Midnight Tuesday, Feb. 15, is the final day for entries. Winners in the contest will be announced Saturday, Feb. 19, on the WLW-C, TV-4, Dance-O-Rama program at 11 a.m.

All entries will be published in a special Spectator Newspapers edition Feb. 21 entitled "Tales Out Of Schools."

If you're a high school writer or photographer, see your principal or journalism instructor for complete details to this exciting contest.

First prize, for the "High School Journalist Of The Year," is a $200 check to be applied to a journalism scholarship at any accredited college or university in the country. A host of other prizes are awaiting winners for achievements in feature writing and photo-journalism.

Hamilton Names Nordin 'Liaison' Man

Any plans of the Hamilton Local School Board to place the responsibilities of D'Alan Huff, superintendent now on a 30-day leave of absence, on the shoulders of Edwin Nordin, South Elementary principal, were scuttled when the board met in special session this week.

Nordin stated that his present duties preclude him from broad additional duties, and Tom Quick, county superintendent, indicated all that is needed at this time is a liaison officer between the administrative council made up of five principals and the board. Nordin accepted this responsibility.

The action may well be a surprise to Huff upon his return, as before he left, he placed with board approval high school principal, Jack Rumora in the post of administrative principal to chair the principals' council.

The change apparently sprung from the board's displeasure with refusal of the principals to distribute to primary teachers a letter prepared by boardman Hubert Gibbs asking their anonymous approval or disapproval of report cards currently in use. Nordin's appointment was made in spite of his statement that he felt the additional duties would be less of a burden to Rumora as high school principal than upon himself or other elementary principals whose absence leaves a building without leadership.

Other business was confined to directing the clerk to give written notice to bus drivers that driving recklessly or over 45 miles per hour would result in immediate dismissal.

The Dem Choice—Or, This Is The Race That Was

By The Spectator's
MICHAEL V. DiSALLE

Copyright, 1966, By The Spectator

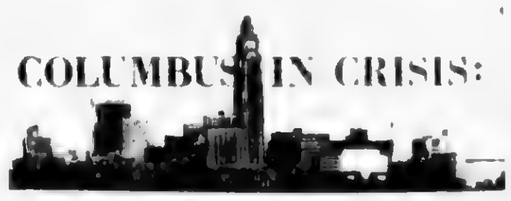
With the decision now made that there will be two candidates for the Democratic nomination it is somewhat amusing to review the events leading to the finale.

One Columbus wire service chief, with an affinity for getting egg on his face, made three flat predictions on who would emerge as the Democratic primary candidate.

The press service writer handed the standard prematurely to Congressman-at-Large Robert Sweeney, who was to be rewarded for becoming the "sacrificial lamb" with a post-election federal job. From the same thumb this political handicapper then plucked State Senator Frank King and with equal "insight" later changed his pick to Mike DiSalle, with equal sureness. Scant notice was taken of Rep. Harry McIlwain who was an announced candidate and who still is.

Rather than retire after swinging three times, the reporter then insisted in a by-lined story that the candidate would certainly not be State Senator Frazier Reams, Jr.

It became pretty obvious sometime ago that the so-called Democratic leadership would be hard pressed to come up with a slate of candidates.



Sweeney had four months ago told other potential gubernatorial candidates to proceed with their plans, because he would not be in the contest. When he announced for attorney general against former boss Mark McElroy, Sweeney mailed out petitions dated in November.

Senator King would have had to relinquish both almost certain re-election as Senate Democratic leader and his office as president of the Ohio AFL-CIO.

Easy Credit Spells Doom To Many On Day Of Reckoning: Part Two

COLUMBUS IN CRISIS:

FOURTH IN A SERIES

Mortgage foreclosure in Franklin County is on the upswing.

Last week The Spectator reviewed this climb, pinpointing the Sun Vall section of Blacklick Estates in the Southeast where the delinquency rate prompted a recent FHA investigation.

An attempt is made this week to report the factors that have led to wholesale default in the area.

Just what does a man buy when he purchases a home for $10 cash and "sweat equity"?

Assume the purchase price of his dream house is in the $10,00 to $12,000 range.

He has bought the obligation to pay more than $30,000 in principal and interest during most of his productive years. (The usual mortgage on low-cost housing runs 35 to 40 years.)

He has bought a home which (under ordinary circumstances) he cannot dispose of in the near future at the price he has agreed to pay. (A salesman readily admitted sufficient equity to cover a broker's commission cannot be built in less than five years.)

He has bought the expense of maintaining a home. (According to a past-president

ADRIFT IN SAME BOAT

The economic feasibility of buying a home almost purely "on the cuff" is but one problem of the modern suburban housing development.

Zoning laws combined with the rule-of-the-thumb that a week's wages can safely go to housing has led to an almost ghetto-like conformity among persons in any given subdivision.

Birds-of-a-feather flocking together are quarantined to a certain area where there are families in which the breadwinner makes, for example, between $70 and $80 a week.

In an older section of the city, established when zoning was limited to that of temperate and torrid, is a street with rental property in the reach of young people with moderate incomes.

Miss Carole Butterbaugh Becomes Bride Of Charles Wilson Henning

Miss Carole Nadene Butterbaugh became the bride of Mr. Charles Wilson Henning, Dec. 18, before an altar banked with baskets of white gladioli, mums and palms in the Washington Avenue EUB Church. The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Butterbaugh of 347 E. Markison-av. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Henning.

The Rev. Mr. Butterbaugh performed the wedding ceremony and gave his daughter in marriage.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor-length empire gown of oyster nylon and angel skin offset with a chapel train and three-quarter sleeves of nylon. The bodice was trimmed with lace and seed pearls. She carried a Bible crested with three white cimbidiums, carnations and holly.

Mrs. Darrell Cook, matron of honor, was gowned in floor-length cranberry satin, also in an empire style, and carried shell pink carnations and holly. Miss Elaine Phillips, maid of honor, was gowned in a cranberry pink satin floor-length gown and carried dark pink carnations and holly.

MRS. CHARLES WILSON HENNING

A reception followed in the social room of the church. Hostesses were Mrs. Roger Butterbaugh, Mrs. Darl Woodruff, Mrs. Ralph Spindler, Mrs. Nickolas Jacobs and Mrs. Alford Brooks.

Following a wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the couple is residing at 1769 S. Champion-av. Mrs. Henning was graduated from Bethesda Hospital School of Nursing last September. Mr. Henning is a College of Education student at OSU and is employed part-time at the Allied Sink Top Co., Kingston-av.

LET'S KNIT . . .

A LEAF SWEATER

Here's a leaf sweater you can knit and it's a real mother-daughter item.

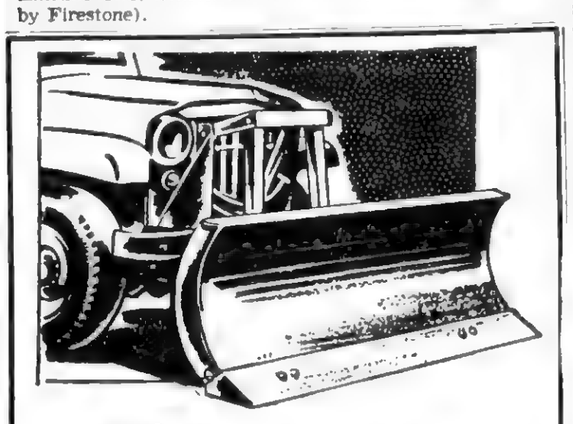
The leaves are a favorite with many and are quite easy to knit. Even the beginning knitter will feel like a professional after she fashions this garment.

URSULA

The square set-in sleeves not only simplify knitting but will give an extra good fit to the garment.

The sweater may be knitted in a worsted or a yarn of a similar weight. Approximate yarn cost for mother is $8, for daughter less.

The really timid, of course, can knit this sweater without the sleeves.



Ilustrated instructions are written in sizes 12 through 20 for mother and 10 through 14 for daughter. All sizes are included in one pattern.

To obtain pattern No. 67, sent 50 cents in coin, check or money order to:

Ursula duBois, Spectator Newspapers' Pattern Department, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif., 91407. Send 25 cents extra for first class mail and special handling.

Advertising Salesman Gets Sold Himself!

By Dee DeSpelder

I'm The Spectator Advertising Man just assigned to take over in the South Area. Last Friday I saw Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hayes' ad in the Jan. 27 Spectator announcing themselves as new owners and operators of The Steak House at 1912 Parsons Ave. It said they'd feature "delicious HOME COOKING."

I've been disappointed by that claim many times, many places, before. But it was lunch time, the place was near by, and I figured I could stand being disappointed again.

So in I went—and I wasn't! The place was busy, but entirely unknown as I was, I got prompt attention. And the Friday "Macaroni-and-Cheese Special" I went for—and the THREE side dishes (of my choice), and the coffee that went with it—were all as good, as you'd get at home, even BETTER if the wife isn't tops as a cook! Nice atmosphere, nice people, and the food came in promptly and HOT—for which, on a near-zero day, I was grateful. The tab (with a luscious piece of pie—at 20c—added) was only $1.23.

I'd like to recommend the Steak House, for the Hayes' deserve it. Give it a try and I think you'll be repeating, and bringing the family for dinner. They're open from 6:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. week days, and Sundays from 10 until 6. I noticed their prices on steaks and they are surprisingly less painless. —Adv.

The Spectator Salutes

Newspapermen have long looked over the rims of their glasses at the approach of public relations men, known variously and less formally in news rooms as flacks, space-grabbers and worse.

The Public Relations Society of America (PRSA) is seeking to apply its own techniques to its own field, by improving its own image through self-policing of standards of professional excellence.

The Central Ohio Chapter of PRSA is to be particularly congratulated for its efforts. Six members of the local chapter have been selected for accreditation by PRSA.

The accreditees are Kal Kalwary of Suburban Motor Freight, Robert E. Minshall of Washington Court House, Nicholas Popa, Walter Seifert of Ohio State, Robert C. Stith of Battelle, and Paul Werth.

They represent the best of a profession which by their own conduct and ethics they steadily enhance. The Spectator salutes them.

It's Time For Warnings

Now that everybody's mind is on traffic safety these slippery winter days, the state should take some definite steps to decrease its 39 high-accident intersections in Ohio.

Franklin Countians have cause to worry about the state's accident rate since out of those 39 locations, a startling seven of them are right here in our backyard.

They include W. Broad-st and Georgesville-rd (ranked third in the state); Frank-rd and the St. Rt. 104 interchange, Lazarus and Whitehall stores' entrances on W. Broad-st, the Stringtown-rd interchange near Grove City, N. Murray Hill-rd and W. Broad-st, Wilson-rd and W. Broad-st and Eakin-rd and Rt. 62.

Signs should be provided for these intersections. All it would take is a big, bright, illuminous marker saying "This Is One of The State's Worst Intersections."

The signs would be mobile enough to move from time to time if accidents decrease.

There're signs for every other type of highway hazards so let's see them for high-accident intersections, too.

The Fat Of The Land

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

There are advantages to being fat.

One has a built-in protection against over-exertion. Whenever a thin person is late for a bus, he hoofs it. A fat person knows better. He knows that just a little bit of running will rend him breathless. The thin person runs the risk of overtaxing his heart while the fat person avoids the whole situation.

Nature protects her favored ones by giving them monstrous protuberances aft to help them in their chosen professions . . . which is usually sitting down. Being fat, one cannot help notice the sparce padding thin people have to sit on.

Another advantage in being fat is the disinclination to exercise. Fat people know that exercise is their mortal enemy and content themselves with less vigorous activities. Thin people, however, are not so immune. One can see thin people swimming, playing tennis and running all over kingdom come. The fat person leaves the endeavor to physical excellence to those less fortunately endowed.

Winter time is especially cruel to those without much flesh. The underendowed are constantly complaining that the wind cuts through them like razors, while the fat person is quite content to let his blubber insulate him against the whistling winds.

And then whoever heard of a jolly skinny man? Not many. It's the jolly fat man who has become a legend. There is sort of a built-in jocularity.

One constantly has to parry barbed remarks about one's girth . . . said in ignorance by those who are jealous . . . and humor is the only way to tolerate ignorance.

Fate favors the fat man early. While most of his contemporaries are dawdling away their time at tag, the fat boy is busy savoring those sweet goodies of childhood.

And this habit continues into adulthood. The thin can never know the joy of a meal well eaten as much as the fat can. There is a certain joy in letting out the belt one more notch and laying down for a digestatory nap that only the fat truly appreciate. The thin ones are in doing the dishes.

The fat person has a certain appreciation for the more sensory things of life. After all, if one weren't addicted to at least one sensual habit, one would never be fat in the first place.

The fat person is an epicure of existence. Protected from such bugaboos as exercise and overexertion, his mind is free to contemplate the finer things of life. He is free to examine the world of ideas at leisure, father than waste his time in nonsensical physical endeavors.

Yes, the fat ones are the favored ones. That is the preferred state.

I just can't understand why so many of them are on diets.

They Said It

"Somewhere along the line we have trouble distinguishing between the inherent American right to protest the action of our government and outright treason." — Corvallis (Ore.) Gazette-Times.

"I'm What You Might Call The High-Price Spread"

The Force Of Events

We live, as every follower of the news media has been told on innumerable occasions, in an affluent society — perhaps the the most materially affluent in history.

Just about everything has been going up, and up, seemingly without pause or end—family income, investment and savings, the gross national product, the enormous sums devoted to industry expansion and betterment of facilities, consumer spending and so on.

This, the economists inform us, has been a prosperity unparalleled both in its extent and in the length of time it has continued without a recession.

In a far away nation that comparatively few of us could spot accurately on the map, we are engaged in one of the cruelest wars in our experience. It is a war which has grown beyond all expectations, and, unless every sign is wrong, is destined to grow to a much greater extent still.

And how many of us realize that, here at home, the odds are heavy that we shall have to abandon many an ambitious government program if we are to maintain this nation as a bastion and arsenal of freedom in a world where tyrannies are on the march?

Where We Stand Today

The warning signs are up. The prospect of more tax reduction, held out a short time ago, has all but vanished. Informed talk now is of possible tax increases. At the highest levels of government, new and urgent fears of more inflation have recently found a place — and there is more and more realization of the fact that protection of the dollar is absolutely essential to this nation's strength and even survival.

The strength of the United States cannot be measured merely in material gains. These, is the long run, are the least of the story. That strength must be measured in moral and spiritual values that place freedom above all things, and a determination to protect our freedom whatever the costs.

The mass man is destined for a well-deserved obscurity. Respect for the individual, a knowledge that no two of us are precisely alike, a profound belief in the worth and dignity of each of us — these were the principles on which this nation was built. They must be sustained if this nation is to endure.

Let us enjoy our material advantages. But, above all, let us put them in perspective —and never forget that a life of freedom means infinitely more.

'The Freedom's Ringing . . .'

That "really big shew" in greater Columbus, the "Let Freedom Ring" telephone extravaganza, could stand a little dressing up if it's ever going to make No. 1 on the Dynamic Dial survey.

The announcer has no eloquence at all. Voice inflection is lacking. The whole recording adds up to so much staid lack-luster.

Any good show should open with a big song.

All it would take is an adaptation of the old "The Bells are Ringing" number. Think of how effective it would be to have a 250-voice chorus come on with "The Free-dom's Ring-ing . . . for me and my gal . . ."

Then they need an emcee to shout "It's show time on your telephone, friends! Direct from our studios at 324 Hudson-av . . . here's hatred."

Next the message and then they'd thank the folks for letting them come into their telephones and ask the listeners to keep the cards and letters coming.

Then, when folks call from a pay phone they'll feel that they've gotten their money's worth in entertainment.

Letters To The Editor

About Loyalty

To The Spectator:

I am writing in reply to Mssrs. Rieffenberger's and Walker's letters to this page (Spectator, Jan. 20) in which they ". . . go on record as being in complete agreement, accord and support of the President's policy . . . in Viet Nam" in response to a ". . . majority of attention" seemingly given to a minority "who obviously do not love their country, almost to the point of treason."

I must take exception to the assumption that a minority which is in disagreement with the President's policy does not love its country, and that such disagreement approaches treason, or that loyalty to one's President is necessarily equivalent to loyalty to one's country.

We are in Viet Nam as a result of executive decision and executive action, and it is not yet traitorous or unpatriotic to criticize executive action. It was not thought unpatriotic for President Johnson to promise peace in Viet Nam in 1964 as opposed to a candidate who advocated war. What has changed in the past year is not the law or the principle but Presidential policy, and it is not unpatriotic to fail to change when the President changes his policy.

It was precisely because he loved his country that Abraham Lincoln, among others, denounced the war with Mexico, which was initiated by President Polk. When William McKinley involved us in the Philippine War of 1899 it was patriotic and responsible leaders and men of letters such as Mark Twain, William James, Carl Schurz, Samuel Gompers, Jane Addams, Andrew Carnegie, and many others who vociferously protested the President's policies. There are many other examples of criticism of executive action by men and women whose devotion to country, and humanity, impelled them to take the stand they took. Some were misguided, yes. Treasonous, no.

To dissent against policies an American considers in error is not only a right, but a necessity, if our democracy is to function. When a nation silences criticism and dissent, it deprives itself of the power to correct its errors.

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

An Eye-Opener

To The Spectator:

Apparently Communism is not only at our back door but it is at our front door — right here in Columbus. The front page article ("Communists Open Office In Columbus, Spectator, Jan. 20) was a real eye-opener and made me feel uncomfortable, to say the least.

Although this group calls themselves Spartacists they openly admit to the basic communist doctrines and an "overthrow" of the present system of American government . . . "through revolutionary means" and even force if necessary.

Just suppose the Spartacists were in a communist country and made statements about the attempt to overthrow the government. They would be dead ducks right now.

But, thanks to our freedom of the press, we can get such a story first hand and know such a thing exists and thus be prepared to oppose it effectively.

On 'The Pieces'

To The Spectator:

Concerning your article, "The Pieces" (Spectator, Jan. 27), the widow of Patrolman James Morgan is not to be blamed for her husband's actions. Nor should a certain daily newspaper in Columbus have been so callous as to write such an ill-will testimony of the funeral.

I hope the citizens of this progressive city do not turn to smut tactics against Mrs. Morgan and her family. It is wrong and very bad for everyone concerned.

Mrs. Morgan needs all the help and support she can get and I want to be the first to set this rightful, Christian example and say we are sorry for her.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

Stretching President Johnson's rubber budget to cover urgent demands at home as defense spending goes above $60-billion was an exercise calling for all the skill of the Great Society's engineers.

Take, as one example, a seemingly minor "item" in the vast sprawl of the Federal budget. That is the need to get a supply of fresh water to America's rapidly growing cities in the face of the despoiling of the river systems with wholesale pollution.

CHILDS

The creation last year of a Water Resources Council headed by the Secretary of the Interior was recognition that piecemeal efforts by separate cities is no longer enough. If a rapidly dwindling natural-resource essential to life is to be conserved, then not only Federal-state planning but a massive joint effort must come. Yet the new budget provides only a driblet of money for more river basin planning commissions and for planning grants to the states.

This is in the face of a record drouth in the Northeast where in the urban complex on the Eastern seaboard at least 15,000,000 people have been threatened or actually affected by shortages of public water supply. The recent snowfall through the Northeast extending into the Southeast, where the drouth is also severe, helped a little. But a report of the Water Council soon to be released suggests that the water crisis will be more acute next summer than it was in 1965. The snowpack and precipitation in the spring must be well above normal to avert trouble.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall asks some long-range questions about the responsibility of the Federal government in the acute water squeeze. Should Uncle Sam be in the business of selling water to the people of Passaic, N.J.? Udall, who has excelled in the domain of conservation, must trim his sails to the wind that blows from the White House.

But the question begs the real issue as does the approach to a supply of pure water for America's cities. River systems cover a half-dozen states. Perhaps a coordinated effort can begin to clean up the rivers. But the Federal government must act to stop pollution by industrial waste flooding into streams once pure and swift-moving.

It can have escaped no one's attention, including the officials here concerned with water for the Northeast, that New York has a new mayor who is a bright hope on the Republican scene. In a city beset by the ills of urbanism run riot, one of John V. Lindsay's biggest headaches is likely to be water.

Nor can anyone have failed to learn that New York City teeters on the edge of bankruptcy. The increase in transit fares alone, with the state coming through with a grudging $100,000,000, puts the mayor in a box. To build up the water system — a metering service which would curtail use, for example — must take other hundreds of millions which are simply not in sight.

As state and municipal debt spirals at a pace far faster than the Federal debt, Washington's responsibility is correspondingly greater. But the two-way stretch in the budget scarcely reflects it.

CERTIFIED AUDITED CIRCULATIONS

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

For a memorable evening, Village Little Theatre's "Patterns," directed by Ed Talbert, should not be missed. Choosing arena style, Talbert keeps the audience in contact with every scene and character of this modern drama of executive intrigue.

As for characterizations, lack of experience is apparent. Portrayal of emotions and facial expressions by some tends to slow the pace. This shortcoming is offset by good performances by Bill Stesis as Ramsey, Helen Lias in the role of Fran Staples and Ada Scott and Gordon Gregg.

Performances are this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at First Community Church, 1320 Cambridge-blvd. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

The Bowery Opens Sunday

Beginning this Sunday, The Bowery will be open from 1 p.m. until 2:30 a.m. Manager, Gere Davidson, also announced spaghetti dinner for the entire family will be a Sunday feature. All one can eat for $1 is the policy.

Realizing the need for Sunday entertainment in Columbus, The Bowery has planned special events for Sunday evenings. This week, a big jam session is planned.

Packing the house weeknights, is the Geoff Tyus Trio. Booked for one week, this fabulous group has been held over two more weeks.

IPC Auditions

Frank Loesser's "The Most Happy Fella," will be the spring production of Independent Players. The club, in its 46th year announced the show is booked for Apr. 29-30 in the Veterans Memorial Building.

Auditions (except dancers) are set for Sunday, Feb. 6, 2:30 p.m. and Wednesday, Feb. 9, 7:30 p.m. Dancing auditions are slated for Thursday, Feb. 10, at 8 p.m. The club asks that anyone interested in acting, singing, dancing and stage work try out for this show. All auditions are held at 261 S. High-st, third floor.

Sandburg Works Presented

Capital University presents a Theatre - In - The - Round production of "The World of Carl Sandburg," 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 4, in the Toledo Room of Bexley Hall.

Under the direction of Dallas Hessler, the play consists of readings and pantomime of Sandburg's works with background music on a guitar.

Tickets for the performances, open to the public, may be purchased at the door.

Mershon Books Two

The OSU Concert Band, under the direction of Dr. Donald E. McGinnis, will present its annual winter quarter concert at Mershon Auditorium at 3 p.m Sunday, Feb. 6. Featured work on the program is the "Symphony for Band" by Morton Gould. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Also dated for Mershon is the brilliant young American pianist, John Browning. The fifth event of OSU's Great Artist Series is dated for Wednesday, Feb. 9. Reserved seats are still available in limited numbers.

Paris In Columbus

One of the most colorful lounges in the city is the Jacques Cafe, 4708 W. Broad-st. The Parisian atmosphere is so authentic one feels as if he were sitting in a parlour on the Champs Elysees in gay Paree.

The waitresses, although not from France, endeavor to provide the well-known French service and friendly hospitality to the patrons.

Selling all legal beverages, Jacques Cafe serves a variety of tempting foods. Their luncheon and dinner menu consists of choice of American, French, Italian and German specialities.

You're Invited

Owner Dave Schneider and Manager Mary McCabe invite all their old friends and new acquaintances to sample the warm friendly atmosphere at the Bon-Aire Cocktral Lounge, in the Hamilton Shopping Center. This is a very intimate room, serving the best in food as well as all legal beverages.

Youth Concert Planned

On Saturday, Feb. 19, at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., The Columbus Symphony will present an exciting and interesting Youth Concert in the Veterans Memorial Building. The regular symphony orchestra, under the direction of Evan Whallon, offers a musical program that promises to capture and hold the attention of their young audience. The primary emphasis is on the Polka.

All seats for children and adults are reserved at 50 cents. Tickets may be reserved by calling 224-7774, or writing the Columbus Symphony Office, Suite 502, 100 E. Broad-st.

Broadway Hit Tickets Ready

The Hartman Theatre box office is now selling tickets for the Broadway comedy hit, "The Owl and the Pussycat," which opens a one-week engagement in Columbus Monday, Feb. 7-12.

The sophisticated, laugh-packed show stars Eartha Kitt as the designing pussycat and co-stars Russell Nype as the owlish, intellectual book store writer-clerk.

In addition to the regular 8:30 p.m. performances, there will be a matinee on Wednesday and Saturday.

Vaud-Villities Dated

The Vaud-Villians are at it again! Rehearsals started early this month for the 24th annual production of Vaud-Villities, slated for Mar. 24 through 26, at the Veterans Memorial.

The 300-member cast give wholeheartily of their time and talent to make Columbus' oldest and largest musicale enchanting entertainment to an expected audience of over 12,000 persons. All profits go to charity.

South Battles East In Key City Game

By BOB WHITMAN

South's improving Bulldoga, now 7-5, will get a severe test Friday when they tackle league leading East in Tigerland.

John Colmery's crew will have to check the fast-breaking Bengals, now on a four game winning streak, to salvage some pride in the City loop.

THE BULLDOGS ditched Whetstone last Friday, 69-63 as Dick Rahn clipped Joe Hayes in a scoring battle between top City pointmakers, 28-18.

East powered Central, 83-57 in a surprising offensive show led by Gil Mathews' 25 points, Vance Carr's 17 points and Luther Curry's 21 markers.

Those are the three horses that South will have to stick a defensive knife into in order to take some of the ginger out of the Tiger attack.

MATHEWS (240 — 20.0), Carr (130 — 10.8) and Curry (133—11.0) have hung up the most scores for Bob Hart's squad thus far.

Hayes is currently the Bulldog point leader (253—21.0) and has been getting a good hand from John Cordell (134—11.2).

MARION - FRANKLIN snipped a three game losing streak with its 71-65 win over Brookhaven and 105-65 romp over Dayton Stivers last week. The Devils have a chance to boost the won-loss count over .500 tomorrow as they host North (5-7), led by Jack Clifford's 18.6 scoring average.

ST. MARY meets a rugged West Jefferson crew, who has nothing to do but play a spoiler role. The Roughriders (5-7) host the Rams (12-2) Friday night in County action.

While the Saints were trimming Dublin last week (63-35), Reynoldsburg hung to the top spot of the County heap with a 72-70 win over Canal Winchester.

That made the Rams date with New Albany important for at least a title slice.

WEST JEFFERSON uncovered another scoring ace in Tim White last week as he belted the cords for 35 points.

Rosary draws toughie New Albany (11-1) on the Eagles floor also Friday.

Canal Winchester Has Miles Duo In Sister Van And Brother Bill

By BOB WHITMAN

Canal Winchester center Bill Miles has his own personal booster. The 6-4 Indian sophomore is the tallest player on the team and is the brother of the shortest cheerleader.

BEING A SISTER of one of the players, Van has double duty on game nights. Her's is the task of cheering the Indians and encouraging her brother at the same time. So it isn't uncommon for a strain of "Hey, Hey Mr. Indian" to be broken with a firm "Come on Billy."

"It makes it nicer to cheer for your own brother," Van said, "of course, I don't think he ever makes a mistake."

"Van is so proud of him that it is popping all over her," Sarah Hockman, Van's cheering companion, said.

"She is proud of everything he does," Sarah added.

Bill does quite a bit for a sister to be proud of. The only sophomore on the varsity, Bill is the starting Indian center and is currently averaging near 10 points per game and as many rebounds.

BILL CAME off the bench during the opener with Groveport and paced the Indians to a 79-51 win with 13 points.

Indian coach Robert Miller beamed at the sophomore's performance by saying, "We needed something like that."

Besides the cage sport, Bill has time for other things including cracking the books to earn a honor roll rating. He also plays baseball for the school team and on a church team during the summer.

"He does all those things and is really sorta shy," sister Van added.

VAN, WHO prefers the shorter version of Vanessa, doesn't know what this shyness is all about. She had a leading role in the school play "Clementine" and also manages to hold a 3.67 school average.

Van probably couldn't afford to be too shy being the lone sister in a house with six brothers. She summed up her feelings about that at the same time she commented on St. Mary's 50-8 football win over Canal, "six brothers, then this."

Van's advise to girls with six brothers is that it isn't too bad if "you are the oldest."

YOU VAN ALWAYS tell how Bill is playing by checking Van. Her face is a better register than any scorebook. It usually has a smile on it, but as she admits "I really don't if he does anything wrong."

A few weeks ago after cheering the Indians to a 101-74 win over Amanda, Van was peppier than usual when she heard that Bill had scored his season's high thus far of 20 points. She was in that moment the overjoyed cheerleader and the proud sister.

Van and Bill are the oldest children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Miles. Van's other brothers are Roger, Ray, Tom, Jim and Robbie.

CRUSE 'N CRUISER — Walnut Ridge 175-pounder John Cruse (right) found himself up in the air Saturday in this semi-final match with Groveport's Bill Marshall at the Pleasant View Invitational. Cruse rebounded for a 6-0 decision, later nabbed finals win to stay unbeaten. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier.)

RAM ROBBERY — If Dublin cager Larry Henderson (30) looks a little shocked it could be due to the fact that the Shamrock basketeer has just found himself empty-handed—thanks to a steal by St. Mary's Denny Jones (42). Teammate John Shepard moves in at left to aid in the robbery attempt.

Kegler's Korner

It was good news (but no surprise) to hear that Chicago's Bett' Kuczynski was named Woman Bowler of the Year by the Bowling Writers Association of America.

Your columnist was privileged to share the TV microphone in Portland last year during Betty's win of the WIBC's Queen's Crown.

NOT SURPRISING either to see Bob Winkel, Sr.'s 300 game — a good bowler who just got better in one game.

Another good charity tournament is under way for three weekends at Amos for Aid to Retarded Children. Winner takes a color TV as grand prize in this headpin feature.

Someone said: "Heredity is something a father believes in until his son throws a gutter ball in a crucial game."

LANE LINGO: "Big Fill" —anything over eight on a spare.

Profile — Martha Merrill— current league average of 180, career high average 189, high game 276, high series 689, bowls for R. Wilke Meats in All Star League and Holiday Inns in Forest League, can boast 10 trophies and 30 medals for championships, bowled for 31 years, uses 16-lb. ball, member of PWBA.

Dick Weber, Bowler of the Year, joined Eagle Scout Henry Rees of Springfield, Mo., to pace a 759 which the Boy Scouts of America Exploring Service will compete against in 1966 national competition.

THIS IS a handicap competition but in 1965 a total of 1,203 scouts beat Weber's score out of 7,619 tries. This is sponsored by AMF.

In about the same degree as you are helpful, you will be happy. —Karl Rolland.

Otterbein's Carlos Is Running Out Of Cage Marks To Break

Color Otterbein College's ace basketball center, Don Carlos, fantastic!

In a little over two and a half seasons he's rewritten the Otterbein and Ohio Conference record books and is currently addin g three and four year career records to his long list.

THE 6'4", 195 pound center, who played high school basketball at Columbus Eastmoor, is currently heading the Ohio Conference scoring parade for the third straight year, is the conference's number one rebounder and is tops in field goal accuracy in the 15-team loop.

With 15 games of the 21-game schedule played, Carlos currently needs only 16 points to snap a 15-year-old three year conference career scoring record which was set up by Jud Millhon of Ohio Wesleyan during the 48-49, 49-50 and 50-51 seasons.

Millhon's 1643 points in three seasons has never seriously been threatened but at present Carlos has 1627 points to his credit and is a cinch to add this record to the many he already holds.

HE NEEDS only 277 points to snap the four-year career record set last year by Barry Clemens, now of the New York Knickerbockers.

This isn't as impossible as it sounds—if the Otters have success in the Ohio Conference tournament.

CURRENTLY his 57.1 percent shooting average is far above any other Ohio Conference regular and his 15.7 rebounds per game is also much greater than any other average in the loop.

Carlos, who as a freshman won honorable mention honors for Little All American, was named to the third team Little All American squad this past season. He's been on the All Ohio Conference first team for two straight years and is a cinch for such honors again this season.

Among the long list of records that Carlos already holds are: six of 11 possible season records, five of eight Otterbein single game records and in two years owns nine of 11 possible Cardinal four-year career records.

HE HOLDS three Ohio Conference single season records and could possibly add three more to this list yet this season if he continues his present pace.

Asked what's left to look forward to with so many honors and records already claimed by him, Carlos smiled and said, "Winning games . . . that's what I really play for . . . we want to win games and no one is worrying about how many points I get or anyone else gets as long as we win.

"I've been pretty fortunate but I couldn't have been half this good if it hadn't been for the other four men on the team — they are the ones who see me open."

AND CARLOS' coach, personable Curt Tong, is quick to add that unlike many scoring heroes, Carlos is not the type who worries about his scoring or rebounding output . . . "He really plays to win, and I can't think of a single game that I felt he was not giving everything he had for the team rather than for himself.

The most he's ever shot in one game was 30 times and he made 21 of those so that in itself proves he's not overshooting or taking unnecessary shots."

Carlos, a math major at Otterbein, is married and has a six-month-old son, Don, Jr. He played industrial ball in Columbus for two years before making up his mind to enter college and he attributes the experience in the amateur loop for his success.

"I WAS ONLY a fair ball player in high school; I think I was only over 20 points a couple of times."

In 59 games over the two and a half year span at Otterbein Carlos has had five games over 41 points including one 49 point effort. Twenty-two times he has scored between 31 and 39 points and on 20 occasions he's scored between 20 and 29 points.

Only nine times has he been "held" in the 12-19 point bracket and on two occasions under eight points, one of these because he played only two minutes.

DON CARLOS

GUEST PULPIT

In late winter, February or March, the deer sheds its antlers and grows new ones. It seems impossible that such an imposing rack of horns will soon loosen from their sockets and drop off.

The sight of a full antlered stag, standing stalwart against a silhouetted horizon, brings a sparkle to the eye, a glow to the cheek and a quickening of the respiration. The horns appear as coronal branches arching into every possible curve, expanding into other projections of exquisiteness, a tree of polished bone, uplifted in pride or swung down for awful combat. Such a sight appears indomitable.

The buck is proud of his horns. He depends on them. His masculinity is judged by his proud crown. Yet how easily they will be detached and disappear.

The Rabbinical writers allude to this resignation of antlers by the stag when they talk of a man who ventures his money in risky enterprises. A proverb in the Far East tells of a man who foolishly lost his fortunes to go and find where the deer sheds his horns. How often we attach ourselves to that which appears beautiful and strong! How easily we are deceived! How quickly our props are knocked out from under us.

The Master Teacher provides the solution for such potential catastrophe. He says: "Don't pile up treasures on earth, where moth and rust can spoil them and thieves can break in and steal. But keep your treasure in Heaven where there is neither moth nor rust to spoil it and nobody can break in and steal."

If we attach ourselves to that which is easily destroyed, we fall; if to that which is eternal, we stand.

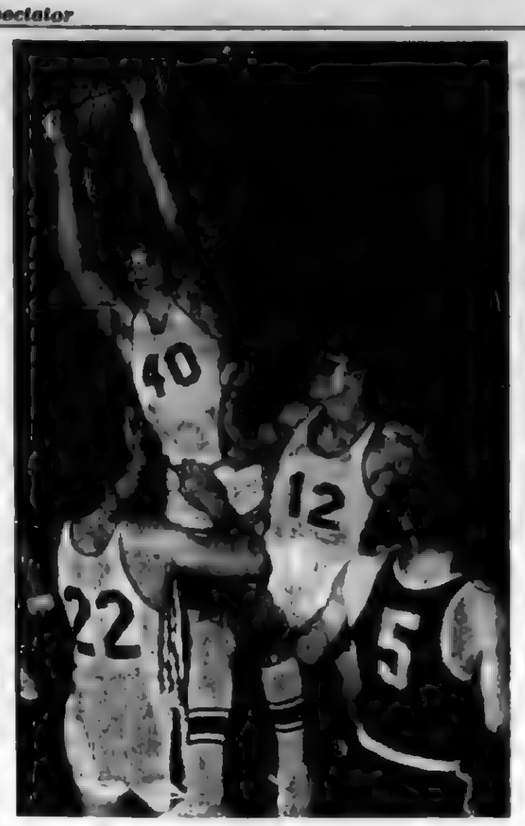
C-W, Teays Fives Fall

By BOB WHITMAN

The group of battle-worn Southeastern Spectator area teams try to get back in the win circle after rocky sledding last weekend.

The two teams that lost the most in Friday night games, Canal Winchester (72-70) to Reynoldsburg and Teays Valley (60-46) to Pleasant View, watched league title hopes fade.



THE INDIANS FAILED to grab the important rebounds (58-33 in favor of Reynoldsburg) and connect from the foul line in absorbing their second loss.

The Teays Valley crew who couldn't stop a slick shooting Pleasant View offense travels to Franklin Heights (4-10).

Groveport (1-11) meets Marysville and hosts Westerville (6-8) this weekend.

CARROLL AND Millersport battle Friday and the Bulldogs have a rematch with Canal Winchester (10.3) on Saturday eve.

MILES GRAB — Canal Winchester's 6-4 center Bill Miles (40) jumps high between Harris Windsor (22) and Vic Argobright (12) to spear this rebound Saturday vs. Reynoldsburg. Raiders won FCL thriller, 72-70.

Worthington, Brookhaven 'Invites' Saturday Head Area Mat Docket

By Jack Wittenmeier

Worthington and Brookhaven — two of the area's toughest mat squads this season — vie for local wrestling fandom this weekend, each school hosting strong Invitational fields Saturday.

Circleville, Franklin Heights, Whitehall and Arlington join the host Cardinals to carry Central Ohio hopes while Sandusky, Martins Ferry and Toledo DeVilbiss add Northern Ohio color to the Invite.

THE LATTER two schools would appear to be early favorites (tied for 14th place at state meet last March) although Whitehall (winner of Walnut Ridge Invite) and Worthington (Northside Invite champ) are sure to be in the running for honors.

Host coach Bob McMahan lists prelims for a noon starting time with finals expected to get under way at approximately 6:30 p.m.

Teams trophies will be awarded to the champ and runnerup with additional cups going to the top individuals, the tourney's "most outstanding wrestler" and the grappler earning the most pins in the least amount of time.

MEDALS WILL be awarded for second and third places with ribbons going to fourth and fifth-place finishers.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students (per session).

Other matches scheduled for the week include:

The Cruiser matmen added up 56 points as compared to winner Worthington's 90.

Other Groveport points came on Bill Nelle's fourth at 147, Jim Dill's second at 167 and Bill Marshall's consolation (third place) win at 177.

WOODWORTH defeated Worthington's Mike Russell for his finals win, the Cardinal grappler carrying a fine 7-1 mark into the Invite competition.

South made it two in a row over Marion-Franklin last week as the Bulldogs finished strong to win, 21-15.

M-F hopped off to an early lead with back-to-back verdicts by Charlie Forrest, Jim Humphrey and Bill Hopson.

SOUTH CAME back on Perin Moore's pin at 127 and a decision by Bob Vinson but those wins were cancelled out by consecutive decisions by the Devils' Hubert Moore and Bob Parker which provided a 15-8 M-F lead.

But the Reb wrestlers countered strongly with verdicts by Ed Ausborne, Louis Robinson and Roger Caldwell plus George Harper's pin to sew up the win.

Ready used the same format to down the Devils again, 27-13, after M-F had taken a 8-2 lead on wins by Forrest and Humphrey and a draw by Hopson.

THE KNIGHTS rolled up wins in seven of the next eight matches, however, with Elisha Washington's pin-win at 154 the Devils' only other victory.

Grocers Pick New President

Martin Godossky, owner of Martin's Kosher Market, 2992 E. Broad-st, has been installed as new president of the Retail Grocer's Association. He succeeds Fred Schiefer to the post.

Godossky was installed during a banquet Monday, Jan. 31, along with these other officers:

The new officers will be introduced at the association's annual Champagne Ball Monday, Feb. 7, 7 p.m. in the Southern Hotel.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

There are a great many sportsmen in Ohio that find their enjoyment in the great outdoors. There are over 800,000 licensed fishermen, 600,000 hunters, 300,000 licensed boats and motors and untold people who camp, birdwatch or what have you.

This represents a large slice of modern Ohio. More people each day are finding fun by participating in outdoor activities.

THE QUESTION arises quite often whether to join an organization or remain a loner with one's hobbies. I'll venture a guess that one out of every 25 outdoorsmen sooner or later "joins up."

Paugh

The organization might be a local conservation club or the National Campers and Hikers or the Ike Waltons. It might be any of hundreds of various large or small outfits.

There are many things to be gained by joining a group that is interested in the same avocations that enthuse you.

FIRSTLY, you get the companionship of the meetings where new and interesting ideas are introduced, secondly —you are no longer one voice in the dark when there is a protest to be made, thirdly you can venture out of the novice class into that of the seasoned veteran with a great deal more help than if you depended on your own experiences.

There are some liabilities too. You loose your individuality to some extent and you take a chance on having to go along with the majority when you feel differently.

The biggest and most famous outdoorsman's organization in Ohio is the League of Ohio Sportsmen. It is composed of member clubs and individuals from all over Ohio. It was formed in 1908 and chartered in 1912.

TODAY ITS roster includes 200 member clubs and tens of thousands of individuals. Whatever has been accomplished in Ohio in the way of better conservation practices, you can bet the League had something to do with it.

Its individual accomplishments are much too numerous to mention in one article but I'll present some of the more important items.

It has, in recent years, been responsible for more rigid control of the strip-mining menace, aided (and backed with concrete ideas) the study and reporting of pollution problems, been instrumental in bringing back the quail to Ohio's game list and served as clearing house for many noteworthy conservation projects.

IT FOUNDED the Brotherhood of the Junglecocks —an organization for the youth of Ohio who are interested in the fine sport of fishing, the Coonskin Cap Brigade — the first organization in the United States to promote the sport of hunting and the necessary sportsmanship and safety factors that must be taught along with it.

Although I am sure that not all their worthy projects have borne fruit as they originally planned, no other organization has done so much for the outdoorsman—whether he be member or not—as has the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

As a matter of fact, one League man — Ted Lee — has done more to instill the love of the outdoors in the hearts and minds of Ohio youth than all others put together.

HE HAS personally called on the public schools of Ohio and shown his excellent slide program to (by now) a quarter-million people.

All were youngsters in their prime formative years who were ripe to learn what the true concepts of sportsmanship and conservation meant.

He has so ingrained in them the love of the outdoors, he has been tendered every possible award a grateful state could offer.

IF FOR NO other reason, Ted is worth the price of a membership in the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

Back In States

Fireman Henry L. Green, Jr., USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Green, Sr., of 549 Fairwood-av, has returned from Viet Nam aboard the destroyer USS Henderson, homeported in Long Beach, Calif. During the six-month cruise to the Vietnamese combat zone in the South China Sea, the Henderson fired several naval gunfire support missions against Viet Cong targets.

Madison Boosts Beginning Salaries To $5,000

There was good news for Madison Local School teachers when the board met in special session this week.

The designation of $34,500 for improvement of faculty salaries allows the minimum scale for those with bachelor's degrees to be set at $4,800. (The $200 state subsidy granted all Ohio teachers brings the starting salary to $5,000).

At the same time, the board determined to maintain essentially the same ratio from top to bottom of the scale, which means all personnel are in for a boost. The only sour note was the reminder that to comply with state law, the 1966-67 school year will be 182 pupil days and another six staff days.

Curriculum changes were adopted for the high school. These include the addition of a senior speech composition class emphasizing creative and research for the college-bound student, adding French I to the foreign language program, and an adaptive physical education class for those with handicaps or physical limitations which preclude regular participation.

The curriculum approved two years ago to which the new junior high building was tailored was also adopted.

The board pulled a rabbit out of the hat with the creation of a new classroom in Groveport Elementary at a cost of $72.

The step, made necessary by the need for a fourth section of fifth grade, involves approval of the maintenance staff which will partition the art room to provide temporary student housing.

Personnel matters included accepting Dan Bravard's resignation at the end of the school year as junior high history teacher and employment of Mrs. Mary Myers of Columbus and Mrs. Sharon Sims of Groveport.

Mrs. Myers will be assigned to Asbury next year and Mrs. Sims will teach the new fifth grade section.

Mrs. Ruth McCollister and Pete Marinello, bus drivers, were given the additional routes demanded by an increase in Brice enrollment.

The local board, at a cost of seven cents a pupil, authorized membership in the Central Ohio Educational Research Council.

This group is one of five in Ohio enabling educational research, with the major expense born by federal grants.

Superintendent Phil Williams reported the construction on the new junior high is 24 percent complete with mechanical and electrical work slightly behind the general contract progress.

Businessmen To Hear 'Rhodes' Raider'

Healthy attendance at the January meeting of the newly vitalized Groveport Businessmen's Association indicate the group regarded for years as defunct, is really back on its feet.

The appearance of Gerold Raab, Jr., one of "Rhodes' Raiders," is expected to bring the membership out in full force at the next meeting Monday, Feb. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall at Front and Main.

The representative of the Development Department of the State of Ohio will talk on what it takes to bring industry to a specified community.

The new nominating committee, appointed by pro-tem President Kermit S. Alspach and headed by W. W. Haynes Minor, will present a slate of officers and trustees at the annual meeting scheduled for the third Monday in March at the Desert Inn. The meeting will be attended by members and their wives.

Other members of the nominating committee are Bill Minor, Jim Young, Dwight North, Wilson Richardson and Marvin Dutcher.

A spring auction is to be held annually to raise funds to promote the goals of the association. Ed Seymour was appointed to chair this committee, Gary Eubank, J. E. Patton, Dick Hamler, Mike Misko, Tom Hughes and Mrs. Betty Allensworth will serve with him.

With only 27 paid memberships to date, Alspach believes the membership committee, with John Wilken, chairman, has its work cut out. He will be assisted by Dwight North, Mike Misko, Bill Minor and James Thompson.

Consideration of the revision of certain areas of the constitution will be the first responsibility of the rules committee, made up of chairman Keith Harden, Ed Seymour, Bill Minor, Jim Young, J. D. Patton and Herman Kline.

Herman Kline will head the public relations committee and will work with Bob Williams, James Mosley and Ronnie Stambaugh. According to Kline, a welcome wagon sponsored by the association is under study and signs of welcome will be placed at the edges of the village.

Other committees are: finance, Dwight North, chairman and Bill Minor, Roy Simms, W. W. Haynes and Louise Haines; celebrations and activities, Dick Hamler, chairman and Jim Young, Wilson Richardson, Keith Harden and Ray Sims, Jr.

Baer Sees End Near To His 'Police' Duties

Describing the three applications on hand for the post of Groveport marshal as "hot" Mayor Bob Baer indicates the position can be filled this month.

"Unless something turns up that doesn't show on their applications, there's little doubt at least one will qualify for the job," he stated.

Baer apparently is as anxious as the safety committee headed by Bob Degenhart to fill the job. He explained that he is motivated not only by his interest in the police protection of the village, but by the knowledge that only when a marshal is hired will he be relieved of the semi-police duties that have become his responsibility.

Consideration of the revision of certain areas of the constitution will be the first responsibility of the rules committee, made up of chairman Keith Harder., Ed Seymour, Bill Minor, Jim Young, J. D. Patton and Herman Kline.

Herman Kline will head the public relations committee and will work with Bob Williams, James Mosley and Ronnie Stambaugh. According to Kline, a welcome wagon sponsored by the association is under study and signs of welcome will be placed at the edges of the village.

Other committees are: finance, Dwight North, chairman and Bill Minor, Roy Simms, W. W. Haynes and Louise Haines; celebrations and activities, Dick Hamler, chairman and Jim Young, Wilson Richardson, Keith Harden and Ray Sims, Jr.

Baer Sees End Near To His 'Police' Duties

Describing the three applications on hand for the post of Groveport marshal as "hot" Mayor Bob Baer indicates the position can be filled this month.

"Unless something turns up that doesn't show on their applications, there's little doubt at least one will qualify for the job," he stated.

Baer apparently is as anxious as the safety committee headed by Bob Degenhart to fill the job. He explained that he is motivated not only by his interest in the police protection of the village, but by the knowledge that only when a marshal is hired will he be relieved of the semi-police duties that have become his responsibility.

PROJECT 66 ATTACKS URBAN PROBLEMS

Teenagers Offered Chance To Fight With A Paint Brush And Understanding

God's Kingdom as seen in the heart of metropolitan areas today is not always a land of milk and honey.

Instead it often involves alcoholism, rats and garbage, absentee landlords, adolescent hoodlums and full-grown hoods, the despair of poverty, bill collectors and mutual distrust.

This August for the third summer, a work-study program is planned for teenagers designed to bring them face-to-face with these problems, to wage a pitched battle against these problems and to work together by accepting the need to share Christ's ministry.

It is called "Project 66."

Now led by an inter-denominational steering committee (it was begun in 1964 under Episcopal sponsorship) Project 66 is open to teenagers from every strata of society.

'Half of our goals" explained David Dunning, Trinity Episcopal pastor, who is, with Hugh Carmichael of St. Paul's, co-director of the project, "is the sharing of the difference of experience — to get the teenager away from the narrowness of his own back yard."

He added that youth from Upper Arlington (or Bexley or Canal Winchester) will work, study and play side by side with contemporaries from socially and economically deprived neighborhoods, that the Catholic will share God's work with the Protestant the Negro will join the White in shingling a roof, or at a Jet ball game.

Although the program for this summer is still in the planning stage, directors foresee that once again participants will move into a community for either two or four weeks.

Hours not devoted to field trips and seminars will be spent in sub-standard neighborhoods (Garfield Square and the American Addition have been target areas in the past) helping residents to help themselves.

Dunning emphasized that the exact location and nature of the work to be done will follow the suggestions coming from the people living in the individual communities.

Meetings scheduled during the the past two weeks in the Tri-Village—Northwest area and the South, North and East sides have been explored—the needs of the neighborhoods as expressed by those living there.

Although Project 66 will be guided by what the people want, basic philosophy and goals already have been set.

These involve working on community projects with full community participation, experiencing the richness of difference, searching for the answers to poverty and discrimination, shouldering the responsibilities of planning and decision-making, learning the dignity of hard work and understanding of the commitment necessary to achieve long-term social change.

Put more simply, the teenagers in Project 66 whether painting a house, collecting trash, studying the problems of the unemployable or attending a dance, will learn another way of life and be given the chance to accept people for what they are.

Buckeye Manufacturing Firm Finds Its Problems Ready-Made

A three-day strike, threat of a slander suit, and production's lagging behind sales are but three of the problems that piled up on the Buckeye Woodworks, Inc., of Columbus.

The company was formed at Buckeye Junior High School this fall with Charles Wells as president and Dave Conklin, industrial arts instructor, and Doug Hyer, general business teacher, as vice-presidents in charge of manufacturing and sales, respectively.

Stock was sold to members of two ninth-grade classes at 25 cents a share and they were in business.

With an eye on the holiday market, the woodworking class assumed the responsibility of producing coaster sets with racks to sell for $1 and name signs for homes at 80 cents each.

The general business class took over the book work, advertising and sales promotion and in a matter of days, white collar workers and labor alike found their dual roles as stockholders and employes were not always compatible.

The strike to obtain a contract that would insure acceptable working conditions, for example, put a temporary halt to production, and the demand for a quality product brought costs on the coasters up to the point where the profit margin was narrowed dangerously.

Engineering problems were solved by design of additional machine tools tailored to the company's needs but then problems arose with suppliers.

Posters ordered from the art class didn't come up to specifications and litigation was threatened when payment was withheld. Accusations flew back and forth when some teachers demanded what the sales promotion department considered highway robbery for advertising space.

And all was not calm and placid within the unions themselves.

Before the question of the use of collected union dues was settled, it had become a red-hot issue.

The company is currently being liquidated (semester end) and there are at least 46 students at Buckeye who are sold on the capitalist system.

They are getting back 75 cents on each quarter invested.

But, according to Hyer and Conklin, the profit was not the major benefit accruing to the stockholders.

In a manner that was accepted enthusiastically, the students learned first-hand the problems of management, labor and capital.

BUCKEYE WOODWORKS, INC., of Columbus, learned that a company capitalized at $25 can have almost as many problems as General Motors when it went into production of the signs and coasters displayed by company president, Charles Wells, 2816 Dolby-dr, left, and president of the production union, Tom Jones, 278 Schryver-rd. In the background are the faculty supervisors who served as vice-presidents, Doug Hyer and Dave Conklin. The president of the white collar union, George Leonard, was not available.

Lacking W-2 Form? Here's What To Do

Some taxpayers may have to file their 1965 Federal income tax return without having received from their employer a wage and tax statement, Form W-2.

Some advice to these taxpayers was offered today by District Director of Internal Revenue Paul A. Schuster.

He suggests: Try to get a Form W-2 from your employer. If the employer has gone out of business, contact him or the present owner of the business, and request Form W-2.

If you do not succeed, prepare your 1965 income tax return from the best information available, and file it before the Apr. 15 deadline.

Attach a note to your return explaining why the Form W-2 is missing.

Milk-Drinker Offers Best Glass Of Beer In Town

A dynamic chocolate milk drinker is pioneering the home draft-beer dispenser idea in Columbus — a trend rising faster than the head on a glass of hurriedly-drawn brew.

He's Phil LeRoy, head of Beverage Dispensers, Inc., 954 Livingston-av, who discussed the trend this week between gulps of chocolate milk.

"Fortunately, not everybody drinks chocolate milk like I do," LeRoy said with a grin. "And people who drink beer want the best . . . they want draft beer and we can give it to them."

LeRoy

Beverage Dispensers, Inc., has been recently named the national marketing organization for Kelvinator home beverage dispensers. Kelvinator has long been a leader in the appliance industry.

You can see the Kelvinator home beer dispenser in action Feb. 5 through 13 at the Marine Fair, Buckeye Building, Ohio State Fairgrounds, and at the Sports and Travel Show Feb. 12-20 at the Coliseum.

"Home dispensers will save the user more than half the cost of his drinks," LeRoy said. He adds that the dispenser could pay for itself within a year.

Beer drinkers have long savored the taste of draft beer. Bottle beer does not have the yeast which is present in draft. Yeast is taken out of bottle beer because the beer has to withstand various temperatures during shipping and storage.

Only beer distributors with cooling rooms can supply draft beer since it must be kept at the proper temperature. The corner carryout, by Ohio law, is unable to supply draft beer.

Kelvinator also has available a dispenser that will serve three soft drinks and supply soda water for mixed drinks.

LeRoy is assisted at Beverage Dispensers, Inc., by M. R. "Mike" Goldstein, a man who has had much experience in the franchise field.

Being the national distributor, LeRoy and Goldstein are spearheading a national marketing organization for Kelvinator. Already the firm has set up distributors and dealers to operate in Ohio and adjoining states.

Easy Credit—

of the National Association of Real Estate Board, annual maintenance budgeting which is only common sense is usually ignored in figuring the costs of home ownership.)

And he has bought the elevated credit status of a homeowner.

An FHA-insured mortgage is not extended to a man already deeply in debt.

But once the closing papers are signed, the lid is off.

The new owner often finds himself soon owing not only the butcher and the baker, but the wall-to-wall carpeting firm, the storm window salesman, the used car dealer and the purveyor of color television. A look at the credit reports on five persons whose homes—all less than two years old — were sold this month confirms this.

The $70 to $80 monthly payment "just like rent" that once looked so attractive becomes just one more of a torrent of monthly statements. For example, the monthly obligations of a laborer who recently lost his home through foreclosure included (in addition to house payment) a $45 auto payment, a $50 chattel payment, a $21 furniture payment and three payments to finance companies of $53, $10 and $12.

It doesn't take many months of dodging bill collectors before many a new homeowner is disenchanted with his new status — and often with his new home.

What looked like such a bargain well could have been. (Many of the homes involved in recent foreclosures were purchased comfortably under the $11 per square foot local builders consider a rock bottom price for residential building today.)

In addition, the buyer had the assurance his home had been built to FHA standards which he assumed is a guarantee of quality.

He might not have been so confident if someone had told him FHA standards are roughly those the federal government uses for military housing designed for a useful life of 10 years.

Payments are forgotten and in the period before the inevitable eviction, plans are made to make the best of a hopeless situation.

Foreclosure records show that the standard procedure is to file bankruptcy. This wipes out most of a family's assets, but debts, invariably much greater, are also off the slate.

Can you censor this procedure?

Easily, in the case of the man who boasted to his neighbors he had enjoyed free rent for seven months by putting $10 down, making one payment and masterminding "the big stall."

But not so easily the man (usually under 30) who bought in good faith, worked to improve his home and lost it by getting in over his head.

But the blame has to roost somewhere.

Interviews with homeowners, salesmen, builders, attorneys, public officials and bankers indicated there have been a lot of fingers in this particular pie.

Builders have been more-interested in profits than in the quality of their product.

Salesmen have been accused of high-pressure tactics and many purchasers believe they are the victims of misrepresentation.

Credit applications, if not actually falsified, have been written to "accentuate the positive."

Government-insured loans have mellowed steely-eyed bankers.

Who are the losers?

There's the FHA whose loss is ultimately that of the taxpayer. (Even the federal government finds it a job to unload second-hand merchandise when no farther than a long-iron shot away brand new houses can be bought on more attractive terms.)

There are the merchants who come to repossess the furniture and automobiles left behind.

There are the remaining homeowners who wonder if they are struggling to keep a home in what may become a ghost town or slum.

There are those who took the easy way out who will learn it will take years of evidence of financial responsibility before they will again be given the chance to sign a mortgage for a home—or anything else.

The situation in Sun Vall is not unique, but FHA officials claim the overall delinquency rate is not alarming and that eventually buyers will be found for its inventory.

However, some believe the cycle will not end with new owners and new mortgages.

They contend defaults will continue until more conventional down-payments are demanded.

Without an equity in the property, the temptation to say, "What do I have to lose?" and toss in the towel remains.

Scouts Plan

Tuesday, Feb. 8, will be Uniform Day for 21,500 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers who will be observing Boy Scout Week in the Central Ohio Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Many Scouts will also gather with their packs, troops, or posts, or in smaller groups at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday to rededicate themselves to the Cub Scout Promise, the Boy Scout Oath or the Explorer Code.

Adrift—

But there are also a half-dozen houses worth from $40,000 to $50,000 and a handful of substantial, comfortable homes lived in for several generations.

Young couples coming to the neighborhood don't always stay. But when they move away they take something with them.

From a retired dean some pick up a love of gardening; others a yen for learning.

From the wealthy family of a minority faith they learn how a group of deeply religious people live the Golden Rule seven days a week.

From a neighborhood storekeeper who can spot a truant youngster a block away, the children accept the discipline imposed by a watchful eye.

From a lively octogenarian young adults come to understand that life doesn't always end at forty.

And each couple knows by heart the success stories and the legends of those living in "the big houses."

What happens to these same young couples moving into a housing development? They are on their own. The social pressure of living up to the Joneses is gone.

There are no older and more experienced persons around to run to when Johnny gets a funny rash, to cry to when the going gets rough.

The standards of living settle down to a neighborhood norm. Keeping up with the Joneses is a cherished national hobby, but it seems to lose its zest when everyone drifts in the same boat.

BREAKTHROUGH FOR YOU

Congratulations to the Scouts of this community, and to their leaders, too. During Boy Scout birthday week, February 7th to 13th, we are proud to express a special salute in honor of Scouting . . . that great movement dedicated to building better citizens, a better community and a better world. Best wishes, Boy Scouts, and may you ever "Strengthen America's Heritage."

FEB 1966

The Campaign That Was—

Besides Ohio Labor leaders were reluctant to put their prestige on the line when no substantial economic issue was directly involved.

State Democratic Chairman William Coleman had one serious concern—his own candidacy for lieutenant governor. He let all concerned know he was willing to run with anyone, even DiSalle.

Those personally close to this writer knew for many months I was not inclined to be the candidate. At a dinner in Cleveland, after I knew Sweeney would not seek the nomination, I suggested Council President James Stanton as the nominee, in view of my reluctance to run.

Those who opposed my candidacy insisted I had been "a good governor and a lousy politician." I hope they never reverse the description. Weighing against my candidacy were commitments to the Hawthorne Publishing Co. which will bring out my latest book, "Second Choice," in August, long-term legal obligations in my practice and other business involvements.

But the actual decision not to run was speeded by two developments. First the possibility that J. Grant Keys might be available for the race. Secondly, word that Reams would accept the top spot, although actually preferring to seek the lieutenant governor nomination.

Those same political writers who had the nomination sewed up for Sweeney, King and DiSalle also have the state elections wrapped up by the incumbent governor.

It might be wiser to wait until the election is over.

In spite of the favorable image created for the present governor by a worshipping press and high-priced publicity agents, there are many disenchanted Republicans and independent voters who have a genuine interest in the state's real problems of deficit financing, costs of education and social problems.

President Johnson's lop-sided victory in Ohio demonstrated the potential here. Lack of Democratic organization cost the party legislative control.

But that same reservoir of voters is still there to be tapped. And who san say this far in advance that November, 1966, will not be the time. Or, that Frazier Reams, Jr., is not the man to give the incumbent the race of his life.

Patrol Ready To Take You For A Ride

Want a ride in a Highway Patrol cruiser?

This invitation was extended to young men of the Central Ohio area as the recruitment program is intensified.

Men who apply this weekend, Friday through Monday, will be driven to the Patrol Academy in highway patrol cars Wednesday, Feb. 9, for their written examination.

Capt. R. A. Jakmas said the trip to the academy in a patrol car will provide an opportunity for applicants to become acquainted with a Highway Patrol officer and see firsthand the operation of an officer in a patrol car.

Officers will be on duty around the clock at the London, Circleville, Delaware, Lancaster Post next Friday through Monday — Feb. 4-7 — to help young men with their applications and answer any questions about opportunities in the Highway Patrol, in which there are immediate vacancies.

Basic requirements for service in the Highway Patrol are: 21 to 30 years of age, 5'9" tall, weight at least 160 pounds, high school graduate, resident of Ohio, good moral character and top physical condition.

Clay Has Problems

Ashville is currently facing a dual police problem. It needs a new cruiser and a new deputy marshal. The latter need arose after the resignation from the $50 a month post by Bob Featheringham. Marshal Glen Clay explains the cruiser problem by 149,000 hard miles on a five-year-old vehicle. The marshal has been authorized to accept applications for the two-nights a week job of deputy and to go cruiser-shopping. However, with the village budget already badly bent and no one willing to finance the patrol car by making Ashville a speed-trap, village officials are currently thrown for a loss in finding the money to guarantee Clay won't be reduced to performing his police duties on a bicycle.

Dairy Store Nixed

With the only "aye" vote heard coming from Don Smurr, the Canal Winchester Planning Commission has turned thumbs down on the proposal to lease the acreage at the northwest corner of West-st and Groveport-to Harry Doan, Jr. Doan was seeking a 15-year lease on this plot to allow construction of an ice cream drive-in on canal land. The majority decision apparently was based on the belief that commercial zoning would be unpopular in that area. Smurr went on record as stating use of the area for city recreation (the only use which Ohio law permits of canal land by municipalities) is impractical because of traffic congestion. Planning's recommendation can either be continued or overridden when it is presented to city council.

Trade EDP For BA?

The data process instruction offered at Hamilton Local High School is about to pay off handsomely for at least two students. A representative of Ohio Wesleyan initiated interviews with a half-dozen college-bound students Wednesday, offering a combination of scholarships, loans and part-time work in data processing that will "guarantee" the participants a college education. In a letter requesting the interviews, it was stated, "Bluntly, we are looking for students who can offer us experience with electronic data processing equipment."

Yes, Bob, There Is . . .

After the meeting scheduled Tuesday night between developers of the new subdivision, planned for the north end of Canal Winchester, and local school board, the latter's faith in Santa Claus may be restored. At press time it was believed the board would be offered a school site within either gratis or considerably below the going price of similar acreage. (The price tag will probably depend upon how closely the board and the developer agree upon where the proposed elementary school should be located.)

Want To Elegize?

Mayor Bob Baer of Groveport is on the lookout for at least two new trustees for the Groveport cemetery. Resignations have left two vacancies and the term of Orin Hamler has expired. Baer indicates one of the posts is open to Hamler if he wants it, but he believes one of the other vacancies should go to a mortician. The terms of the trustees, when they are appointed, will run for two, four and six years to allow continuity without creating a permanent board. Plans to make a council committee responsible for cemetery operations have been abandoned.

Boss Will Be Away

The regular meeting of the Madison Local School Board has been postponed one week until Monday, Feb. 21. The change was made to allow Superintendent Phil Williams' attendance at the national convention of school superintendents next week. Among the items on the coming agenda is consideration of the proposal recommended by the state to make tuberculin skin tests mandatory for all students in the first, seventh and 11th grades. Currently the diagnostic tests are given only with parental consent.

Contest End Near

There are only five days remaining to enter The Spectator's high school journalism contest. All entries in feature writing and photo-journalism must be postmarked by midnight, Feb. 15. Winners will be announced Feb. 19 on WLW-C's "Dance-O-Rama" program. See your high school journalism teacher for details.

The Quiet Turmoil

Franklin County school teachers tell The Spectator that classroom violence is no stranger to them. Top Administrators in this area, on the other hand, tend to agree that cases of student offenders are "isolated" and no real problem at all. Is it a matter of the incidents never reaching the proper higher levels? Are violence cases glossed over by area principals? The answer lies somewhere and The Spectator examines both sides in this special, exclusive report.

—Spectator Photo By Harley Groom (Posed By Professional Models)

By The Spectator's
TOM SESLAR and KATHY MASON

One teacher in seven knows of at least one student who has committed an act of physical violence against a teacher or principal in his school during a single year.

This statistic was included in a recent report by the National Education Association, based on a survey of 1,125 high schools throughout the nation.

A Spectator random sampling of more than 50 high school teachers in Franklin County indicates that this kind of violence is no stranger here.

Most teachers said they believe Columbus has a serious problem involving harassment and physical violence inflicted on teachers by students. However, school administrators interviewed said they do not believe the "problem" is severe.

Dr. Harold Eibling, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools, said: "I don't think our problem is greater than that of any other major city, and it is less than that of most cities."

Eibling termed the recent bombings at the homes of the principal and four teachers at Whetstone High School as "an exception rather than the rule."

Thomas J. Quick, superintendent of the Franklin County Schools, agreed with Eibling.

But teachers point to court cases that tell of personal experiences involving harrassment, threats and violence.

One said: "A kid picked up a hammer. He said he was going to crown me with it. I told him he had better use it, because I was going to take it away from him.

"I went after him and he dropped the hammer and ran into the hall. I brought him back and shook him up a little. I didn't strike him, but I did tear his shirt."

The teacher said he later was "called on the carpet" about the incident by the school principal. "Administrators don't want publicity; they abhor it," he said. "I don't know why."

The man's complaint about fear of publicity appears to be one of the pet peeves of many local teachers.

A twenty-year veteran of the Columbus Public School system said: "I honestly believe most administrators would rather allow a problem to fester in the dark than to bring it into the daylight where it can be dealt with.

"Everybody—and I mean the teachers and parents too— seems to have a mortal fear of headlines," she said.

Another teacher said the school principal refused to take disciplinary action against a student who frequently sent her unsigned obscene letters.

She said she and her husband compared the handwriting on themes written by her students to that of the letters. "When we found matching handwriting, I went to the principal," she said. "He told me he would check into it."

She said she questioned the principal two weeks later and was told the case had been "dropped." She said he told her he could not "take the chance" of accusing the student because the parents "might try to cause trouble."

These are just a few of the incidents told to Spectator reporters. Most of the teachers who talked refused to permit their names to be used for publication.

Other incidents gleaned from newspaper files of the last five years revealed cases of local teachers who had been threatened, slapped, beaten, kicked, stoned, stabbed and "molested."

But apparently no one has put this violence into perspective. Eibling said the Columbus Board of Education does not have a compilation of the incidents "because the cases are so rare that statistics would be meaningless."

However, the incidents are serious enough to warrant legislative action.

Miss Clara Dutko Weds Mr. Zagelow

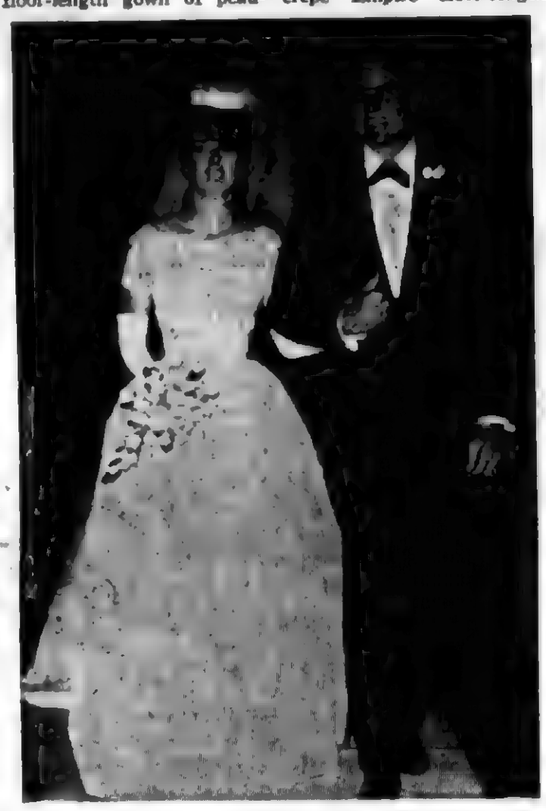
Clara Dutko became the bride of Larry Dean Zagelow in St. Ladislas Catholic Church, Nov. 25 at an 11:30 a.m. service. Fr. Ronald Arder officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Clara Barton Hubbard Dutko, 53 Delray-rd, and Mr. Walter J. Dutko, Sr., 2918 Fifth-av. Mr. Zagelow is the son of Mrs. Zagelow of Odessa, Wash., and the late Mr. Hugo Zagelow.

Bouquets of large white mums and Sweetheart roses decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a floor-length gown of peau-de-soie, the high-rise bodice offset by Alencon lace, a Sabrina neckline and short lace sleeves. The controlled belled skirt fell into a chapel train, enhanced with Alencon lace.

A peau-de-soie pillbox held a shoulder-length veil of silk illusion and she carried white Sweetheart roses and tiny pink rosebuds.



The bride's sister, Miss Rebecca Dutko, was maid of honor and Mrs. Barbara Coci, Canal Winchester, and Mrs. Judy Headlee and Miss Opaline Myer were bridesmaids. They wore cranberry crepe Empire floor-length gowns. The maid of honor carried cranberry carnations while the attendants carried pink carnations.

Lt. jg Wendell Hobson, New Jersey, was best man. Mr. Harmon Dutko and Mr. Milton Dutko, the bride's brothers, and Mr. Richard Zagelow, Yakima, Wash., ushered.

A reception followed at Stouffers University Inn and later Mrs. Dutko entertained the families and close friends. A reception was also held in Odessa, Wash., in December.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, the couple are residing on a ranch north of Odessa.

The bride attended Franklin and Ohio State Universities after graduating from Ohio State School of Cosmetology. For five years she was associated with the Union Beauty Salon here. Her husband graduated from Central Washington State College, School of Business Administration and served two years in the United States Army.

The Flickering Lantern

Students of journalism at Ohio State university are learning a hard lesson in newspaper reality, not in the classroom, but in the clinic of the newsroom of The Lantern.

The student journalists complain the university newspaper is being "censored" through economic pressure from faculty sources. If, indeed, this is true it is lamentable from an academic standpoint.

As long as the university administration holds the purse strings of The Lantern's operation such censorship is always latently possible.

It's a bitter fact of life that the chap who pays the piper has a strong influence on the selection of tunes.

But the piper, as well as the student journalist, has a choice. He can hang up his flute, or his typewriter ribbon.

Or, determine to struggle along without a generous patron.

A financially strong newspaper can even turn the tables on the patrons. There are those newspapers so economically entrenched that they can tyrannize the very people who support them.

Waterman Made Waves

Columbus Attorney Joseph Waterman is in the news again this week. He felt he spotted a discrepancy in revised election regulations and brought the matter of signatures necessary on a petition to the public's attention.

There are, undoubtedly, many critics who'll accuse Waterman of nit-picking. Let's hope not. Let's hope that the people of Central Ohio haven't slipped into such a state of apathy that they scorn alertness.

Whether Waterman's right or wrong is not the question. The thing that should be mentioned is the fact that Central Ohio has people who keep their eyes open and who will stand up and be counted.

Waterman is, himself, a candidate in the 62nd Ohio House District. If he is elected this sense of alertness is to be praised.

If there's anything we do not need in Ohio politics, it's elected officials who shy away from controversy . . . elected officials who "don't make waves" because they fear losing friends at the polls.

It's the only way taxpayers will ever get their money's worth.

He's the man who sits near the booths, watches, waits and pounces on the first unsuspecting slob he can find.

A customer walks in, parks himself in the booth, quietly orders a beer, stretches in contemplation and this character nails him right to the woodwork.

"Yesss there . . . say, I noticing you're drinking Blutz beer, fine beer, drink it myself . . . Ya' mind if I sit down, thank you . . . Now I'm not one to just butt in but I couldn't help noticing . . ."

And on and on through selling his car, through politics, through religior, through labor, through management . . . the guy's a regular talking machine. This bar hawk talks so fast he even orders your second beer for you without so much as a semicolon.

Faced with this situation recently, I tried insults.

"I don't think a man who works for the street cleaning department is qualified to revamp the workings of city management."

It was like trying to stop a forest fire with a quart of gasoline.

"Not qualified . . . now listen, young man . . ."

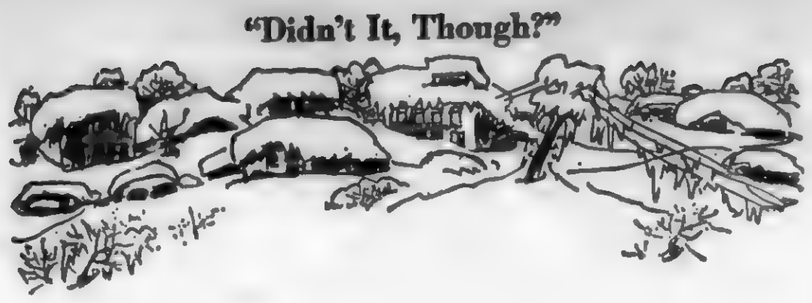
He was off on his entire life history, replete with emphasis on the responsible positions he had held.

The next stratagem was silence. It was then he brought into play the gimmick of force. "Now, I'm right here, aren't I, tell me if I'm not." Silence had all the quieting power of a sunrise bomb test.

The next gambit was to make him feel inferior. I mentioned a fictitious but fabulous salary. Undaunted by the attempt, he proceeded with a well-rehearsed lecture on enjoying life without money. Inferiority was impossible to sell.

In desperation, I pointed out some other people I'd never met. "He," I would say, "is a fine judge of that. In fact I think he's an authority. Perhaps he could help you."

Distraction had the effect of an aspirin on a migraine.



The talking machine droned on with the hypnotic effect of a shining, swinging object.

There was only one escape. While going out the door, I saw him perched on his stool, coolly waiting for his next victim. I remember him as a sort of idle-hour vulture.

They Said It

". . . doctors today are so loaded with cases that they are forced to limit their response to calls. If anybody has an idea that the situation is bad today, wait until medicare gets under way . . . Every hypochrondiac in the country (eligible for assistance under the new medicare legislation) will be insisting that he's sick, must have attention and that the government says he is entitled to it, must get it and the government will pay for it"—Gilbertsville (N.Y.) Bee-Journal-Chronicle.

"Didn't It, Though?"

Calling Ohioans

By The Spectator's
MICHAEL V. DiSALLE

Bill White was ruled out as a possible Republican primary candidate for governor. He has been a candidate for office several times before and, although it is possible that his petitions were not technically correct, it does seem that the incumbent's friends were overly anxious to disqualify him.

It certainly does not seem that White could've been considered a serious threat to the large, well-oiled political machine. However, it might well have given the anti-Rhodes Republicans a rallying point.

Perhaps the Republican organization people who had the rug pulled out from under them before the national convention might have cast a primary vote of displeasure as could have the Goldwater people who were also left high and dry.

If these two categories were joined by the educators who vote largely in the Republican primary, the total vote secured by Bill White might have been larger than his 1962 total. This might have damaged the invincibility myth that is now being circulated.

On the other front, there are also some interesting developments.

Most of the press was impatient during the period preceding the filing date.

Although most of the papers were already certain of supporting the incumbent,

The White Wash-Out

they could hardly wait to find out which Democrat they were going to oppose.

The technique now is to say that Frazier Reams, Jr., is a nice, young fellow and might be all right later on.

For some of these papers, the time will never be right to support a Democrat, whether he is a "nice, young fellow" or not.

However, reports coming in from around the state indicate that Frazier Reams, Jr., is catching on. The people who see him like what they see. He is warm, able and effective. He is willing to make public appearances and press conferences. He has nothing to hide. He knows the issues and he is able to articulate them.

It is interesting to watch the changes of technique when the awakening comes that this is going to be a real race and that Frazier Reams, Jr., is running to win.

In the meantime, the last-minute entry of Paul J. Lynch in the Democratic race for lieutenant governor is also causing a great deal of comment.

Lynch announced Saturday night (Jan. 29) and was able, by filing time on Feb. 2, to have circulated and returned sufficient petitions and signatures to qualify.

The fact that Bill Coleman's own Congressional district did not file a Democratic candidate for Congress—that his own county, Union, was one of the four in Ohio to support Goldwater and that the state Democratic organization has been in disarray for the last three years — was pretty well evidenced by the response that Lynch received.

The state chairman with 10 years of experience and exposure could hardly be considered an underdog in this kind of race. But this could, very well, be the surprise race in the Democratic primary.

'Great Society' Is No Bargain

For those who like it, the Great Society may be worth every penny it is costing. For those who oppose it, any price is too high. The trouble is that both sides of the argument usually have no idea just what the tab will come to.

This year's administrative budget was announced at under $100-billion by President Johnson. However, the best estimates as of now are that by the end of the fiscal year, on July 1, 1966, the Administration will have gone at least $10- billion over what was budgeted. This will give the Treasury one of the biggest peacetime deficits in history.

Only part of this can be dumped in the Great Society's lap. After all, close to $60-billion will go for defense alone — and there are such expenditures as foreign aid (a solid $3.3-billion) and other programs begun by previous administrations.

Great Society programs, for which the American taxpayer will be paying in the next five years, add up to some $111-billion in new authorizations.

Of that, $1-billion will go to the Appalachia relief project, $7-billion for a Federal aid-to-education step-up and a conservatively estimated $5-billion for the poverty war.

A $20-billion measure, for various Federal subsidies, sits on President Johnson's desk, awaiting his signature. The International Monetary Fund is scheduled to get $1-billion and Social Security will cost the Treasury $33-billion more than it did before this year.

This is one reason why the Administration is talking of increasing taxes. The Great Society may be great—but it's expensive to all of us.

Letters To The Editor

Liked Housing Series

To The Spectator:

I have just completed reading your second installment in the housing story ("Columbus In Crisis," Feb. 3, Spectator) and I am quite pleased in the way you keep Central Ohio enlightened.

Your reporters are doing an outstanding job in digging out stories that have laid dormant much too long in this city.

You mentioned in your story about the high rate of foreclosures and it might be pointed out that, I believe, very few foreclosures are made by savings and loan companies in the Franklin County area.

These organizations are, traditionally, very conservative. Many foreclosures, I'm sure, are made by banks in New York.

Mrs. Thomas Faye
Columbus, Ohio

(Ed. Note: Our gal, Jane Robinson, did the leg work on the housing series. She agrees with you on the foreclosure situation and thanks you for making your point.)

A Beacon Light

To The Spectator:

Your editorial "It's Time For Warnings" (Spectator, Feb. 3) stands out like a beacon light amid the numerous highway deaths Ohio — along with the rest of the nation — is experiencing.

It's indeed time for some hasty action and I sincerely hope that the Highway directors of this state heed your advice and post warning signs at the seven dangerous intersections in Franklin County.

Perhaps Franklin County can set the pace for other sections of the state to follow. It would certainly behoove the Capital City area to set a good traffic example.

I know that a sign saying "One Of The State's Most Dangerous Intersections" would certainly slow me down and cause me to give thought to the terrible death toll on our nation's highways.

R. B. McIntosh

Circulation Impresses

To The Spectator:

I am really impressed with your total circulation in Central Ohio. I think you people have done a tremendous job.

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Gets A Chuckle

To The Spectator:

I couldn't help but laugh when I read your editorial "The Freedom's Ringing (Spectator, Feb. 3). It's about time somebody poked some fun at this organization.

I believe the greatest gift we have as Americans is the ability to laugh and, believe me, I have laughed many times at those ridiculous recorded messages.

The Spectator has consistently reflected the views of the people of Central Ohio. It's refreshing to know that there is a newspaper in this city that isn't afraid to print the truth.

My hat is off to you. Keep up the good work.

Questions New Stadium

To The Spectator:

Why, in heaven's name, is the city still thinking about building a 54,000-seat all sports stadium on the banks of the Scioto River (Spectator, Feb. 3)?

I fail to see why Columbus can't make use of the Ohio State University Stadium. Why use an 80,000-seat stadium a few times a year and let it lay vacant the rest of the time? I know it's a state school but this shouldn't be that prohibitive when the need for a civic stadium is apparently so great.

And, if a new stadium is built (by taxpayer money) what happens to Jet Stadium? Or Vets Memorial? Let's not let the lure of drawing a major league team to Columbus cause us to act in haste in a matter of this magnitude.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

There can be no doubt of the profound sorrow with which most of the world received word that bombing of North Viet Nam was resumed and the enlargement of the war will now go forward. Inevitable as it may have appeared to the political and military strategists of the Johnson Administration, millions everywhere clung to the last-minute hope that this beginning of an attempt to find a peaceful solution would succeed.

CHILDS

To each side the terms offered had the look of a call for surrender. Certainly Hanoi's demand that the United States remove all military forces before any peace conference was unacceptable. Collapse of the fragile structure of the South Vietnamese government would have immediately followed.

In the 10 days of debate at the highest level over what source to follow, the President's top-level advisers were not unanimous. Under Secretary of State George Ball persisted in hoping that continuation of the bombing pause would bring either gradual de-escalation or a first tentative move toward the peace table. Shortly before the President launched his peace offensive Ball went to Florida for a much-needed rest. He had been there only three days when the President got him on the phone to say:

"You're a blankety-blank peacemonger. Now you get back up here and run this peace offensive."

Except for some initial Navy and Marine Corps interest there was no support in the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the limited holding strategy. Military commanders are always reluctant to support a static situation where morale deteriorates as in a state of siege. The entire countryside, including the rich rice-producing delta, would have gone to the Communists. A minority of Vietnamese who have not succumbed to terror or blandishments of the Viet Cong would have been overwhelmed.

President Johnson's conclusion was that this was a form of slow surrender which would result in turning the whole country over to the Communists.

Just as plans were all in readiness for resuming the bombing so preparations are complete for moving an additional 300,000 to 400,000 American ground troops to Viet Nam by the end of July or early September. This will make a total of 500,000 or 600,000. According to one Allied source, the major push to try to clear large areas currently held by the Viet Cong will not begin until late September or early October when a massive force will be in readiness.

With the prospect of escalation on such a scale the farthest hope officials working with the President in the difficult and tragic decisions of recent days hold out is as follows: The Communist regime in Hanoi will finally face the reality — that the United States cannot be driven out of South Viet Nam. This may come in a year or a year and a half after an unflagging drive to keep the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese constantly off balance.

Then with this realization one of two things may happen. The Communists will gradually without prior announcement begin to withdraw. Or they will agree to go to the peace table. It is a slim hope.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

From the title, "The Loved One," which is at Hunt's Cinestage, one probably thinks this is another run-of-the-mill Hollywood love story. Not true, this is one of the most unusual story lines to flash across the screen.

Based on Evelyn Waugh's celebrated satire on glorified mortuaries, the movie is about a fast-talking promoter, played by Jonathan Winters, who operates a fantastic memorial park and funeral home. He conceives the idea of transforming it into a more profitable Senior Citizens Retirement City.

With the help of top ranking space program chiefs, he rockets the "Loved Ones" with the slogan, "Resurrection Now!"

Liberace, Milton Berle, Barbara Nichols and many others who have bit parts add nothing to the movie, except box office appeal.

The producers advertise the show as "something to offend everyone." It does. There are corpses all over the place, some used as messengers of love notes between the embalmers. It is barbed satire on funeral directors, their practices, policies and costs in "laying away a loved one."

Comments from the audience after the show were, "it's a riot," "wild" and "grotesque." Promoted as a zany comedy, it just isn't so. There is comedy all right, but it is very morbid comedy.

If you are a sensitive person, DO NOT SEE "THE LOVED ONE."

Iceland Is Cool Fun

Iceland, the only commercial, artificial ice rink in the area, offers many extras to skaters. Located at 3270 Cleveland-av, the full-size hockey rink has special youth programs, qualified instructors and special rates for parties of 25 or more.

The ice rink is weather protected by a building with the sides partly open, to give the skater the feeling of skating outdoors.

Adjacent to the rink are two log cabins. These may be reserved, free, to groups of 25 or larger. The cabins have open fireplaces which are used for roasting hot dogs, marshmallows and warming up after a stroll on the ice.

In its third year of operation, Iceland is open daily, except Monday, for afternoon and evening sessions. Monday, the entire rink and facilities is rented to clubs interested in holding skating parties as a money-making project.

Teen Haven Has Top Bands

Sonny Palmer's Teen Haven opens Saturday, Feb. 12, from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Located at Westinghouse Union Hall, 3578 Grace-st, one-half block west of Great Western Shopping Center, Teen Haven features top teen bands and their Go-Go Girls, The Gidgets.

This week's band will be the exciting "Fugitives." Record albums are given away each Saturday. Admission is $1.

An Evening With Mathis

Last Thursday evening, Johnny Mathis played to an over-flow crowd at Capital University. Each member of the audience was held in the palm of his hand.

Mathis is not only talented, he is a master showman. Many of today's stars should take lessons from him, for Johnny understands stage presence, pacing and humility.

Musically, programming and production rate this revue as one of the best to play Columbus in a many a moon. The only weak aspect of the show was the choreography. Perhaps if the rest of the show wasn't of such excellent quality, this would not have been so apparent.

Sound wise, the Mathis show was superb. His orchestra and chorus had a perfect blend. The results produced a rich, mellow, beautiful sound.

Old National Road To Hold Tryouts

The Old National Road Company of Reynoldsburg will hold tryouts for its April productions of a series of one-act plays in a meeting to be held in Lex Mayer's Chevrolet "Ponderosa," 5055 E. Main-st, at 8 p.m. Monday, Feb. 14. Anyone interested in participating is welcome to attend.

'DEPUTY' HERE FEB. 14

Winners Named

Some 297 entries were received by The Spectator in the Mystery Celebrity Contest.

Ben Cowall will present a pair of tickets for Jose Greco's appearance at Veterans Memorial, Saturday, Feb. 19, to the following 12 people:

Louise Kent, 125 Stanbery-av; Robert Sayre, 3491 Clearview-av; Mrs. Ray F. Howard, 1062 Browning-av; Mrs. M. Tuttle, 4461 Hartwell-rd; Mrs. Barry M. Hall, 705 Leap-rd, Hilliard; Mrs. Donna Bullock, 892 Pleasant-dr, Reynoldsburg.

K. Darsene Crum, 1063 Holly Hill-dr; Mrs. Don Duncan, 942 Exeter-rd; Bruce Burnham, 2601 Lorain-ct; D. J. Henderham, 40 S. Eureka-av; Mrs. John E. Tindall, 441 Reinhard-av; Robert Zellers, 1936 Ridgeview-rd.

Pussycat' Steals Show At Hartman

Eartha Kitt, known as a singer, turns in a fine performance in the "Owl and the Pussycat." She is an excellent commedienne and a real spitfire on stage. Miss Kitt gets into her part fast and produces superb characterization.

Russell Nype is also good. He plays his part well, but he is only a patsy for Eartha Kitt.

This is her show.

The show itself is tremendous. One might think that with only two characters on stage it would be dull. This is far from the truth. The "Owl and the Pussycat" is fast, with lots of laughs. The old cliche in show business is true—there is a laugh-a-minute in this one. This is probably one of the best comedies to play Columbus in recent years.

The "Owl and the Pussycat" is appropriately named. Russell Nype is the wise, old owl who finally succumbs to the gay, wild life of Pussycat, Eartha Kitt.

It is a very smooth, well-rehearsed play. For honest entertainment, this one is a must.

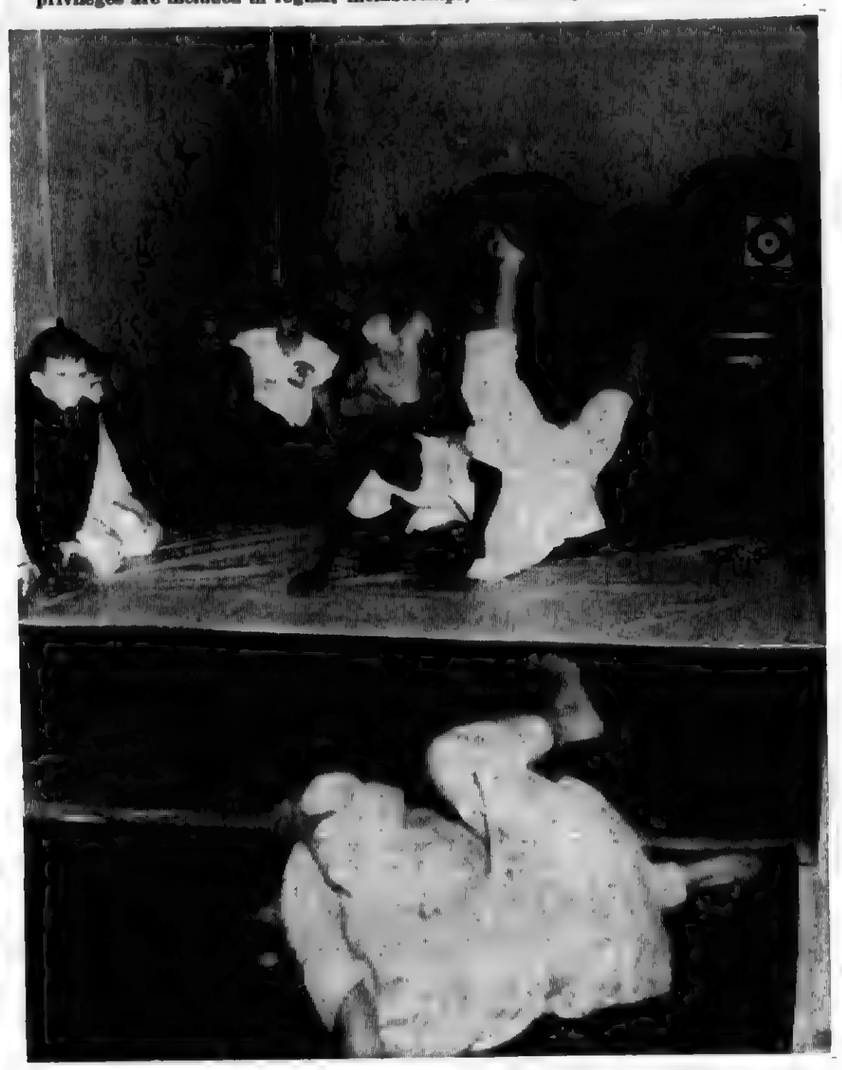
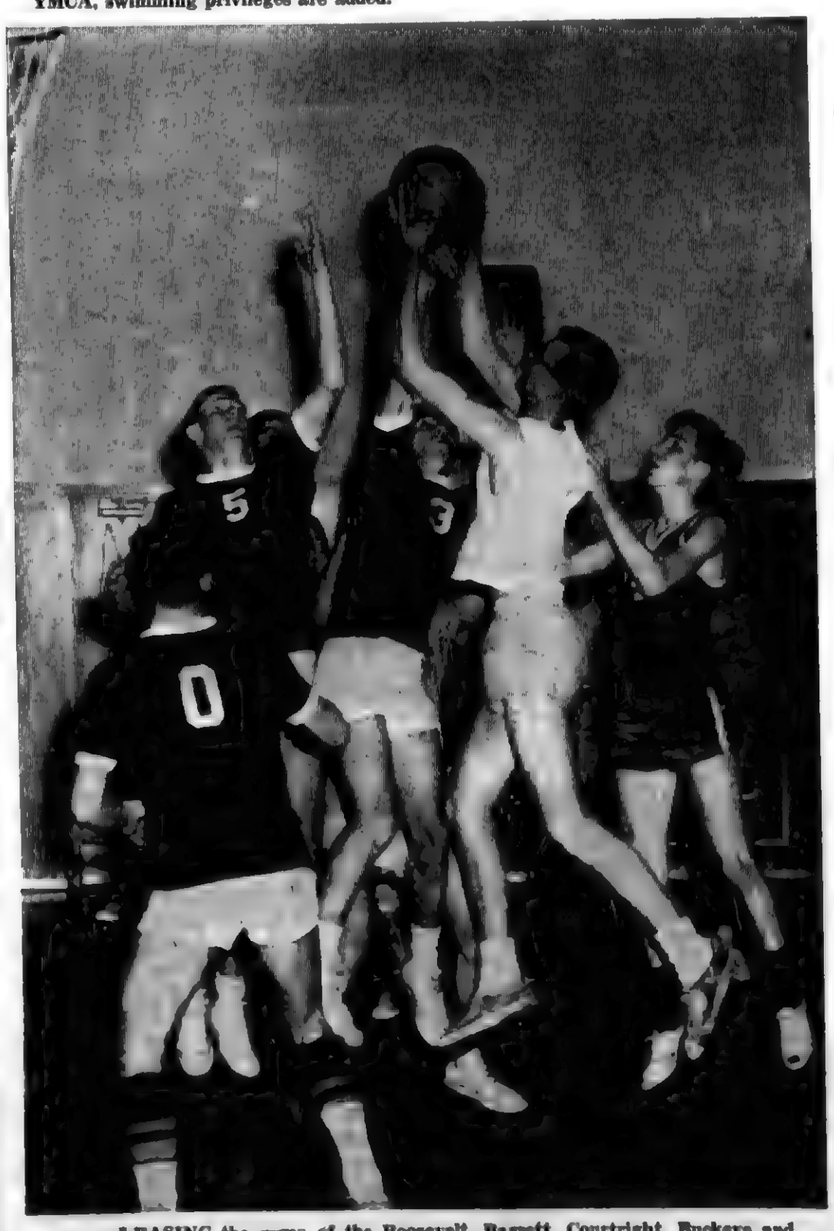
'Y': An Important Letter In The Southsider's Alphabet . . .



FAMILY PICNICS are enjoyed the year round by the Lloyd Perry family at the 68-acre South "Y" Park on Rohr-rd. Last year over 30,000 persons came to the park to take advantage of the athletic fields, barbecues, playgrounds and lodges and shelter houses provided for its guests. Although park privileges are included in regular memberships, "Park Only" cards are available.



1.—Working out on the treadmill in the exercise room of the South Side "Y" is Harvey Stahl, 23 E. Markinson. This is just one activity of the Senior Fellowship Club, made up of retired business and professional men who meet weekly for coffee, donuts and companionship. 2.—The antique doll exhibition owned by Mrs. Dorris Seifert was but one of the fund-raising projects of the "Y" Mothers Club, which contributes financially to the "Y" and donates members' time in the preparation and serving of meals to the "Y" groups. 3.—Charles Legg, 640 Bulen-av, who plans a career in astronomy, looks at the heavens from Borror Observatory in the "Y" Park. Use of the 10-inch telescope has been planned by the Center of Science and Industry. 4.—Stunt Night winds up the summer camp session with which boys of the Optimist Jr. Boys Club are rewarded for faithful attendance at rehearsals and concerts. Any youngster who enjoys carrying a tune is welcome.

WHO'S FOR JUDO? Or for gymnastics, the trampoline, wrestling, slimnastics, weight-lifting, archery or riflery? All are but a part of the schedule six days a week at the "Y." Through the Branch's affiliation with the downtown YMCA, swimming privileges are added.

IN 1963 a dream became reality with the dedication of the South Side Branch YMCA Center, 90 Southwood, at a cost of more than a quarter of a million dollars. It serves as the hub of the "Y" activities reaching into the local schools and churches involving the volunteer services of almost 1,000 persons who contributed approximately 12,000 hours to youth service last year.

LEASING the gyms of the Roosevelt, Barrett, Courtright, Buckeye and Beery public school buildings, the YMCA sponsors basketball leagues for junior and intermediate boys, girls and men. These and other athletic leagues of the "Y" include 226 teams with 2,377 Southsiders participating in 2,393 separate sessions last year.

Baltimore Woman Honored At LAFB

Mrs. Forona Hite, Rt. 2, Baltimore, was one of 14 employes named Civilian Employe of the Year at Lockbourne AFB where she is the secretary of the Command Squadron. The award, made by a board of officers after nomination by her organization, makes her eligible for the title, "Outstanding Federal Employe of the Year," which will be presented to a handful of the 10,000 federal employes in Central Ohio at a banquet at Lockbourne's Officers Club in March. She will compete with other non-supervisory personnel with a GS rating between one and four.

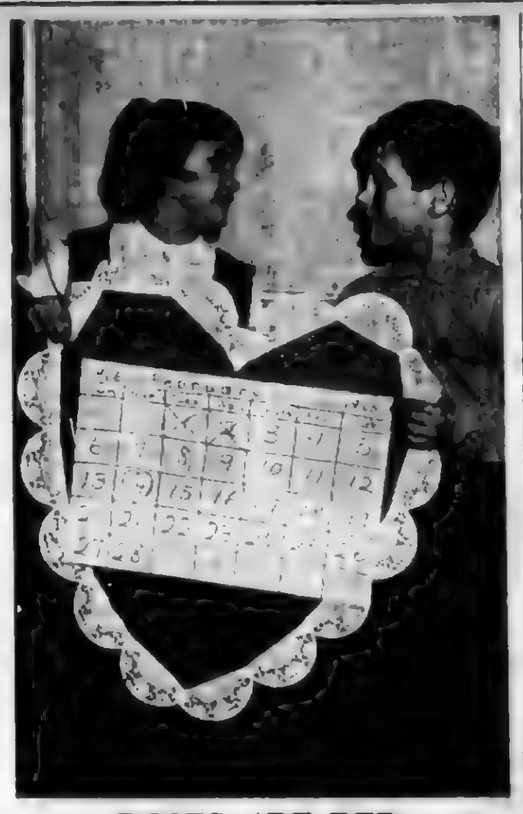
A new Post Office is not an everyday occurrence and plans are being laid to make the Sunday, Mar. 6, dedication of Ashville's new public building a community celebration. Frank Hudson has been named chairman of the event, which will be a joint effort of the Ashville Kiwanis and Community Clubs and Women's Civic Organization. Details are still incomplete, but in addition to ribbon-cutting and speeches, refreshments are promised.

Now, About DeGaulle



Geoffrey Hockman of Canal Winchester, special education instructor at Groveport-Madison High School will speak when the Ohio State University Agricultural Circle meets Tuesday, Feb. 15. Hockman, who was an International Farm Youth Exchange student in France last year, will speak on international relations with that country. Theme of the session will be "Golden Experiences For Farm Youth," and deals with the IFYE program sponsored by 4-H.

Deadline For Farmers Dated

Farmers who did not file a declaration of estimated federal income tax by Jan. 17 may have a tax deadline in February.

Paul A. Schuster, district director of Internal Revenue, said farmers who earned at least two-thirds of their 1965 gross income from farming but who did not file an estimate by Jan. 17 must file their final federal income tax return and pay any tax due by Tuesday, Feb. 15.

"Farmers Tax Guide," which furnishes more detailed information may be obtained by writing to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service.

ROSES ARE RED

AND AROUND Valentine's Day even little girls of kindergarten age get the idea that instead of being made of puppy dog tails young men are a wonderful source of admiration and heart-shaped boxes of candy. Barbara Haines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haines and Dennis Werner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Werner, who both attend Groveport kindergarten, had no difficulty in getting into the spirit of cupid's season.

Federal Grant May Help Ashville Run Trunk Sewer

Ashville is looking to Uncle Sam to lend a helping hand in extending sewer service to the newly-annexed area northeast of town.

With this in mind, Dick Peters of the consulting engineering firm, Burgess and Niples, and Dave Kraft, village solicitor, are studying federal grants made possible through recent legislation.

They are also attemping to come up with a tentative assessment rate for the 50 property owners who will benefit from the installation.

According to Mayor Charles Morrison, the fee will be graduated, with those closest to the trunk line paying a larger proprotion of its costs than those to whom it will not be so readily accessible. (The latter will have the expense of laying longer laterals to hook in).

Another matter of utility extension came to the foreground when Ellis Cline appeared before the council this week asking for sewer service to his property which lies behind the IGA store.

To comply with his request, the village must add about 150 foot of pipe. The extent to which Ashville will bear this expense is in the bargaining stage.

Other business at Monday's meeting included the first reading of an ordinance authorizing a four-year contract with Ohio Fuel, okay of the purchase of a second-hand street striper for $125 and reading of a resolution from the Pickaway Historical Society.

Stating that Pickaway County has long been known as the "Garden Spot of Ohio" the society is asking that no public monument or building of historical worth be remodeled or destroyed without its knowledge and advice. Council, which still regrets it was unable to save the old covered bridge, is agreeable to the proposal.

Clerk Ann Leatherwood warned council not to start spending the estimated $1,500 of village funds that will be saved in fire department operation by collection of the township-wide fire levy.

She explained that the first call on the money will be to make a dent in the deficit financing with which the village is now involved.

A representative of the Harry Morgan Co. of Columbus has been invited to attend the next meeting, Monday, Feb. 21, to submit proposals for furniture for the Municipal Building. With little cost and a lot of volunteer labor, the council chambers, long known for its 1890 decor, has been rehabilitated this past year. Improvements include a new floor, acoustical ceiling, fluorescent lighting, paint, storage cabinets and drapes.

The local Kiwanis Club, which contributed a Bible at Christmas time, has promised an American Flag.

Ashville May Hire Inspector

Among the recommendations of the new planning and zoning commission organized in Ashville is the proposal to employ a housing inspector on a fee basis.

Presently, Glen Clay, marshal, is serving without charge in this capacity, but it is believed someone with experience in wiring and plumbing problems should be secured. The possibility of a county-wide officer is under consideration.

Mayor Charlie Morrison and Clerk Ann Leatherwood automatically serve on the planning commission during their term of office. Harold Hartley was elected by his fellow council members to represent them. Other members, appointed by the mayor, are Paul Bosman who will serve for six years and is currently president. Guy Leatherwood was appointed to a two-year term and Nola Gulick was named to the two-year term.

S-E Districts Prepare To Fight To Keep Impacted Area Funds

Superintendents of Southeast schools attended a county-wide meeting this week in an effort to gird for the battle against curtailment of federal funds for children of federally employed parents.

Within the state, 142 districts now receive federal aid through enrollment of at least 10 students representing three percent of districts under 35,000 and six percent of larger districts based on 1956-57 average daily attendance.

President Johnson has proposed legislation by which the first six percent of students with federally employed parents and three percent of those whose federally employed parents live on federal installations would be absorbed by the local districts.

If such an amendment becomes law, the impact on Southeast schools would vary.

Superintendent Carl Miller estimates the Canal Winchester district would lose about $14,000 income from its half-million budget, and Madison Superintendent Phil Williams believes that district's loss would be around $40,000 from its general fund totaling nearly $1,500,000.

Although Hamilton Local Schools has the largest percentage of its students eligible for federal aid (40 percent), and its loss would hit around $60,000, the percentage of federal funds flying out that window would be relatively less than in other districts.

Bob Crabbs, Whitehall superintendent who is the contact man between Ohio and the national effort to conserve the support the government gives to "impacted areas," is attempting to have the 142 districts make a mass appeal to their congressmen.

Lockbourne News • Bertha Gray 491-1319

The February meeting of the Lockbourne WSCS will be held Feb. 10 at the Methodist social hall with Mrs. Earl Kissell, Mrs. Jack Brown and Mrs. Nathan Archer, Jr., refreshment hostesses and Mrs. Vance Blake, Mrs. Homer Thompson and Mrs. Foster Penn in charge of program.

The Young Adults Organization of St. Mathew's Lutheran Church has chosen Robert Peters chairman, and Walter Kuhlwein treasurer. They will meet the last Sunday night of each month.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thompsoon are on a southern trip. They are now visiting the George Ushers in Florida.

EYEGLASS EMERGENCY

If you wear glasses, you have a built-in emergency fire starter. Glass works as a magnifying glass, will focus sun's days to set tinder smoldering.

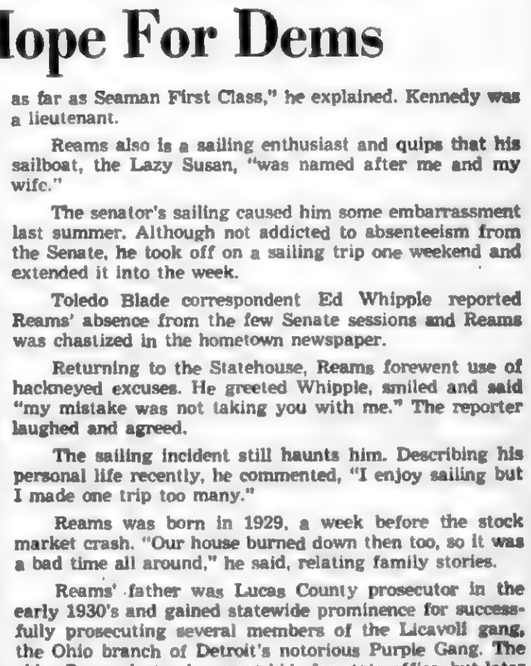
THEY'VE BEEN TALKING

GOLD RATINGS were earned by Clayton Coffey, left, and Don Werner of the Groveport-FFA chapter when they entered the district Public Speaking Contest held at Grennon High School recently with 21 chapters from six counties participating. Clayton's award was for prepared delivery on the topic, "Agriculture and the Freedom of Man." Don spoke extemporaneously on "What the Local Chapter Can Do to Promote Safety."

Wright Still At Large

The FBI has the face of the Earl Ellery Wright, wanted for the robbery of the Ashville Bank in November, they have a score of names for the face, but to date they don't have the man.

However, according to the information available to Ashville's marshal, Glen Clay, the trail on the suspected felon, now on the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted" list has not grown cold in the last two months.



Among the aliases carried by Wright, described as a "compulsive gambler" and an "excellent pool player" are Don Angel, Bill Bullock, L. C. DeLoach, Don Engles, Mike Younger, Carl Pritchard Joseph Lucas and Lenny Price, by which he was recently known in Columbus.

Wagnalls Lecture A 'Dutch Treat'

A "Dutch Treat" will be offered at the Wagnalls Memorial Auditorium in Lithopolis this Sunday, Feb. 13, at 2:30 p.m.

Narrated by Dwight Nichols, a color film lecture will be presented featuring the people of the Netherlands and documenting the features of the bustling, prosperous and vigorous country that Holland is today.

The program is given without admission charge.

NOW THEY KNOW

SEEING MAY be believing, but to the Groveport Lions Club "not seeing" brought understanding. At a recent dinner meeting, President Earl Watkins provided members with blindfolds which each wore while eating to bring home the problems of the sightless. The principal projects of all the Lions Clubs is their sight-saving programs.

Frazier Reams: New Face, New Hope For Dems

By ADRIENNE BOSWORTH
Spectator Special Correspondent

The telephone rang at State Democratic Headquarters.

The secretaries were out of the room and so the tall, young man answered it.

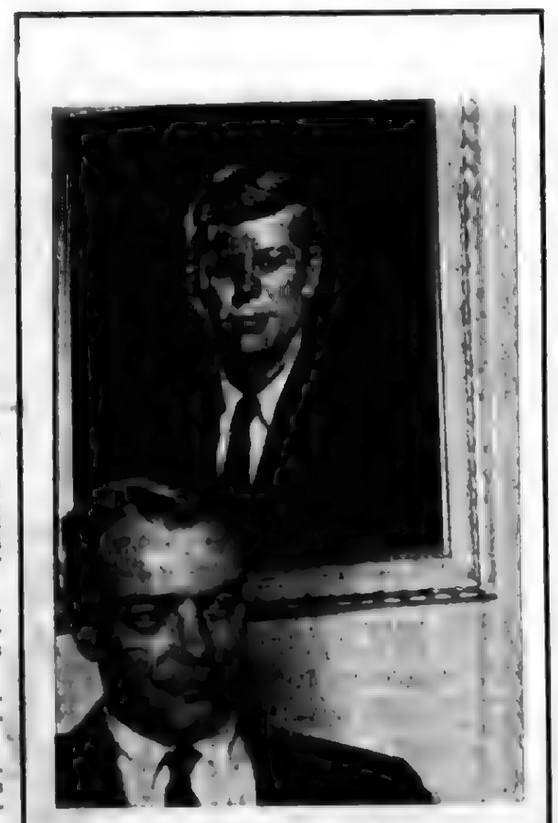
"No," he said, "this is Frazier." He paused. "Just a minute, I'll get him," he replied, pressing the intercom to bring State Chairman Bill Coleman to the phone.

The young man turned to the three reporters. "I said 'this is Frazier' and the guy said 'Who?'" The young man laughed. "That's the last time I'll answer the phone around here. It's bad for the ego," he said.

In the next three months, the young man hopes to let everyone know that State Sen. Frazier Reams, Jr., is running for governor at the top of a slate endorsed by leaders of the Ohio Democratic party.

The 36-year-old attorney and radio station executive faces a triple challenge.

First, Reams must defeat State Rep. Harry McIlwain of Cincinnati in the May primary. McIlwain, an announced candidate for the nomination since last spring, was passed over by the party's screening committee. But he has filed his petitions and is intent on getting the support of county organizations, or, at best, keeping them neutral.



After the primary, the Democratic candidate's troubles really begin. He must bring unity to the Ohio Democratic party and must try to beat Gov. James A. Rhodes in November.

At this point, all but the wearers of the rosiest-colored glasses consider beating Rhodes the equivalent of performing a miracle.

But pulling Ohio Democrats together is no small chore. The party is a very loose federation of individual groups run by county chairmen, rather than a strong state organization.

To Reams, the fact that a state screening committee was able to agree on a slate of candidates for 1966 is a step toward that necessary unification.

There's little doubt that Reams is an attractive candidate in an era that accents appearance, youth and energy. Prematurely grey hair enhances his good looks. He is six feet tall and well built, although he utters the almost national complaint of having gained 20 pounds since his marriage some two and a half years ago.

FRAZIER REAMS, JR.
... Outranked by his image

Reams married a young widow from Ann Arbor, Mich. He has adopted her three young sons and they have a 16-month-old daughter.

From the day of the endorsement, Democratic leaders have given Reams the "Kennedy image" label. Reams was in the Navy, as was the late President. "But I only got as far as Seaman First Class," he explained. Kennedy was a lieutenant.

Reams also is a sailing enthusiast and quips that his sailboat, the Lazy Susan, "was named after me and my wife."

The senator's sailing caused him some embarrassment last summer. Although not addicted to absenteeism from the Senate, he took off on a sailing trip one weekend and extended it into the week.

Toledo Blade correspondent Ed Whipple reported Reams' absence from the few Senate sessions and Reams was chastized in the hometown newspaper.

Returning to the Statehouse, Reams forewent use of hackneyed excuses. He greeted Whipple, smiled and said "my mistake was not taking you with me." The reporter laughed and agreed.

The sailing incident still haunts him. Describing his personal life recently, he commented, "I enjoy sailing but I made one trip too many."

Reams was born in 1929, a week before the stock market crash. "Our house burned down then too, so it was a bad time all around," he said, relating family stories.

Reams' father was Lucas County prosecutor in the early 1930's and gained statewide prominence for successfully prosecuting several members of the Licavoli gang, the Ohio branch of Detroit's notorious Purple Gang. The elder Reams lost subsequent bids for state office, but later went to Washington as Ninth District Congressman.

Reams, Jr., is a graduate of Washington and Lee University and the University of Michigan Law School. He was an assistant Lucas County prosecutor in the criminal division. Reams came to the Ohio Senate in 1963.

Adding to his attraction as a political candidate is Reams' apparent lack of political enemies. Although this qualification would ring negatively in most other fields, in politics it is a big plus.

Reams does not discount the formidable opposition presented by the incumbent governor, but he says "any candidate can be beaten."

Nor does he seem to exhibit illusions about the tough job ahead. "I'm not optimistic about getting the endorsement of the majority of newspapers," he said, referring to the Republican editorial viewpoint of most of Ohio's newspapers.

But Reams said he intends to carry on a campaign "that will be news. We will bring the issues to the people through the news columns."

IN RACE

ROBERT R. REED announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the House of Representatives from the 60th House District. Reed is married and resides with his family at 1320 Brookwood-pl. He is a practicing attorney, realtor and builder. He is a veteran of World War II. Reed graduated from Columbus public schools and is a graduate of Ohio State University with a bachelor of science in business administration and bachelor of laws.

HELP! — Carroll's Bill Frye (20) had good cause to call for a little assistance Saturday in this situation as the Bulldog cager found himself boxed in by Winchester's Jim Burke (21), Harris Windsor (35) and Dick Whitmer (15) after corralling a Carroll rebound. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

Indians Break Three Game Losing Skid On Smith's Free Throws At Carroll

By BOB WHITMAN

The last two Carroll basketball games were no place for the timid. The fast improving Bulldogs dropped a couple of cardiac capers last Friday and Saturday nights.

Carroll bowed to Millersport 71-69 in an overtime game and fell again Saturday to strong Canal Winchester, 67-66.

Carroll draws Fairfield Union (4-11) Friday while Canal has West Jefferson (6-7) in its Homecoming game. The Indians meet Fairfield County toughie Pickerington (9-4) on Tuesday.

In last Friday's game against Millersport, Carroll scoring leader Leon Hiles netted 17 points while the Bulldogs played without their other hot scorer Bill Frye. Frye appeared against Winchester getting 14 points while Hiles was clipping the cords for 11.

Both Hiles and Frye have paced the Dogs this season averaging about 13 points apiece. Carroll travelled the comeback route in the Canal game by cutting a healthy Winchester halftime lead (42-24) into a slim and shaky Carroll advantage 66-65 before Smith became hero with a nerve - wracking second showing.

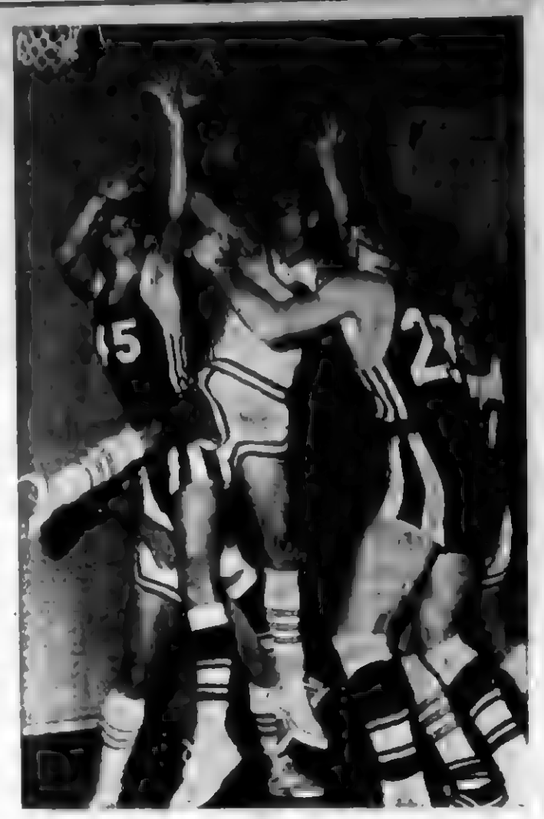
CANAL WINCHESTER (11-4) became untracked after Reynoldsburg handed them a 72-70 defeat.

"We have been running hot and cold," said Indian coach Bob Miller, "and haven't been hot at the right time."

The Indians' homecoming date with West Jeff will be a time that they will need a hot-hand. The Roughriders dealt St. Mary a 59-57 setback last Friday night on sophomore Mike Tyree's 19 point output. Granted that the Saints played without the services of 6-6 center Rod Webb (broken finger) but replacement Mike Shawver added 11 points which is Webb's average. The only place the Rams were hurting was on boards as Webb has eight inches on Shawver.

Canal point men will take a 74.0 offensive average to show the old grads against a 65.0 defensive mark. Jim Burke (218—14.5), Vic Argobright (195 — 13.0), Dick Whitmer (191—12.7), Steve Smith (143—9.5) and center Bill Miles (132—8.8).

They will have to outstoot a pretty handsome scoring block of West Jeff Roughriders. Chuck Herrnstein (179—16.2) leads the parade and gets good support from Tyree (194—15.0) and Tim White (197—15.1).



TUESDAY NIGHT'S game at Pickerington will be a good tourney warm up as Pickerington is currently in first place of the Fairfield County League.

The Indian defense will be called upon to cut off sweetshot Steve Mathews as he hit for 22 points in Pickerington's win over Lancaster Fenwick, 46-37.

Teays Valley will take a 9-7 mark against Hamilton Township (1-12) on Friday night, and Groveport (1-13) meets improving Gahanna Lincoln (5-10) in other area action.

HAPPY INJUNS! — C-W teammates Jim Burke (left) and Dick Whitmer congratulate Steve Smith (center) seconds after the latter's pair of free throws in the final second of play earned Winchester a wild 67-66 verdict over Carroll Saturday night.

BOARD SCRAMBLE — Carroll's Bill Frye (center) and C-W's Bill Miles (45) dual for possession of this rebound Saturday as Winchester's Vic Argobright (23) and the Bulldog's Ken Crago (40) await developments. Carroll overcame a 18-point halftime deficit but C-W won in final second of play, 67-66.

DeSales Hosts Big Eight Tourney— Season's No. 1 Mat Attraction

By Jack Wittenmeier

DeSales — by hosting Saturday's "Big Eight" mat tourney — nails down the wrestling season's number one, "can't miss" attraction.

Visitors to the Stallion mats will be Worthington, Walnut Ridge, Brookhaven, Franklin Heights, East, West and Eastmoor — or the top eight District finishers last spring.

AND WITH the exception of possibly a couple entries—that could well be the closing lineup at the '66 District tourney early next month.

The "top eight" dandy, which grew out of last year's DeSales Invitational (won by Brookhaven), hopefully will become an annual affair at the Karl-rd school.

Should the Stallions drop out of the first eight, another school would assume the host role.

HALF OF the entries (Worthington, DeSales, West and East) have already copped big tourney titles this season with the rest of the field usually close behind in their tourney tries.

Prelims open action at 11 a.m. with wrestling scheduled straight through until about 6:30 (finals should begin somewhere between 3 and 4 p.m.).

Besides a team trophy, cups will also go to the tourney's top 11 individuals with ribbons going to second and third place finishers.

ADMISSION for this dandy will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students (whole session).

You can pick the favorite (we wouldn't even try) but here's some of the top individuals:

103 — Branham (F-H, 9-0), Cox (East, 8-0), Donovan (Wo., 9-2); 112—Grambo (F-H, 9-0); 120 — Arnold (DeS., 12-1), Hill (F-H, 8-2), Burbacher (B-H, 7-2), Prendergast (EM, 5-0); 127 — Holloway (East, 8-0), Day (Wo., 9-2);

133 — Holley (W., 8-1), Von Eida (EM, 8-2), Nole (B-H, 7-2); 138 — Bennett (East, 7-0), Mahoney (DeS., 10-1), Russell (Wo., 7-2); 145 — Thomas (W., 10-0-1), Hall (FH, 9-2), Ziegler (Wo., 6-2);

154 — King (W., 9-1), Hiles (DeS., 9-3); 165 — Chrystal (Wo., 11-0), Mixon (EM, 9-0), DeAscentis (DeS., 11-1), Rogers (W., 9-2), McNeal (B-H, 8-2);

175 — Cruise (WR, 8-1), White (East, 8-0), Lowery (Wo., 6-1), Newpoff (EM, 3-0); HWT — Jackson (East, 7-0), Folk (Wo., 9-2). Records as of Feb. 1))

GROVEPORT climbed over every entry but one in the classy field at Brookhaven's Invitational Saturday, finishing in the runnerup spot (55 pts.) behind East (79 pts.).

Wrestling brothers Jeff (136) and Bill (148) Nelle nailed down a pair of firsts for the Cruisers—the former running his individual mark to 14-0 this season.

IN THE week's lone dual match, Pleasant View downed Hamilton Township, 29-5, with Eric Bomhard's pin-win at 145 accounting for the Rangers' lone points.

Pirates Host Junior High Cage Tourney

Reynoldsburg Junior High will host its second annual Invitational Basketball Tourney, Feb. 15-16 ,18-19.

Participating teams will be Indianola (defending champ), Whitehall, Circleville, Pickerington, Westfall, Watkins, Groveport and the hosts.

DRAWINGS FOR the tourney, under the direction of Ed James, were held last night.

Trophies will be awarded to the champion and runnerup quintet with an individual cup going to the winner of a foul shooting contest best of 25 shots).

Admission for the tourney will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students.

GAMES ARE scheduled for 4:15 and 5:30 p.m. on the 15th, 5:15 and 5:30 on the 16th, 7 and 8:30 p.m. semifinals) on the 18th and 7 p.m. consolation game. and 8:30 p.m. championship game) on the 19th.

T-V League Meets

The Teays Valley Youth Baseball League will meet tonight, 7 p.m. at Ashville Council House. Managers for both boys and girls teams are needed. Anyone interested in helping is urged to attend this meeting.

'Fearless Predictions'

The 1965-66 basketball season is headed for the home stretch with a couple of weeks before those nasty, won-or-else tournaments. If last Friday's results are any indication, the tournaments this year will be packed with surprises.

Fearless' overall record thus far is 235-82 for a .741 percentage.

The Quiet Turmoil

according to Mrs. Laura Lakin, president of the Columbus Education Association and a member of the Ohio Education (OEA) legislative committee.

"After meeting with an attorney all day Saturday, I became convinced there is little that can be done at present to deal with these student offenders," she said.

She stated she favored the resolution adopted last week by the OEA legislative committee.

The resolution, which still must be approved by the OEA executive committee, calls for Ohio General Assembly action in 1967 to increase protection of teachers and penalties against students found guilty of attacking teachers.

Last year's legislature apparently was aware of the need for action. It amended the Ohio Revised Code to permit teachers to exercise "reasonable" corporal punishment.

However, teachers still do not have much freedom to use their own discretion in punishing students, according to Carl Benedetti, president of the Columbus Federation of Teachers.

"There is practically a chain of command a teacher has to go through before he can paddle a student," Benedetti said. "This time element is important because the effectiveness of disciplinary action is lost.

"I am the kind of guy that handles most discipline problems in class, and once in a while it has to happen. I am a teacher, not a policeman, and I don't like to spend my class time for discipline."

"Corporal punishment of a student should be used by teachers only as a last resort," Benedetti said. "But sometimes it must be used, and teachers should not be afraid to use it.

"But they have to be backed by the administration in disciplinary matters, and the administration has to have the backbone not to be scared by complaining parents.

"After all," he continued, "teachers are not supposed to be contestants in a popularity contest. Students will respect any teacher who is just —that is all that is necessary."

Teachers who do not feel they can handle a disciplinary problem are instructed to seek help from the school's guidance counselors, Eibling said. He added that the Columbus Public Schools employ 15 psychologists, who operate from a central office, to handle extreme problems.

Undoubtedly the local schools are not faced with the magnitude of problems in some other cities. For example, police have to escort teachers to and from their work in some New York City schools because of the high violence rates. Chicago, Detroit, Washington and Los Angeles also are trouble centers.

However, since many Columbus teachers apparently are concerned about the local "problem," a thorough investigation could dig out "hidden" cases.

One danger such an investigation should avoid is the grouping of all youths into a single "delinquent" classification.

Edgar W. House, principal of North High School, said: "The majority of high school pupils in Columbus reflect good home training, display a high degree of self-respect and show proper regard for authority.

"In my personal opinion," he continued, "juvenile delinquency is 'lack of respect for authority'. The efforts of parents, school officials, the churches and all society in general must be concentrated in restoring that respect—by whatever method each individual case requires."

Roger Tracy Charged With 'Carpetbagging'

Gene A. Shepard, Democratic candidate for the 60th House District, leveled a charge of "political carpetbagging" at Roger W. Tracy, Jr., Republican nominee for the same house seat next spring. "Tracy fits the description of a carpetbagger in every way," Shepard said. "His recent denial of the charge indicates he is either intellectually naive or downright dishonest. Neither of these characteristics qualifies him for office in the state House of Representatives."

Shepard said that GOP chairman William Schneider has admitted a search went out for qualified candidates in each district. "It was a strange coincidence that in the 58th District, they found Tracy, who lives at 2757 N. Starr-rd, Upper Arlington. Tracy said that his renting of a S. High-st apartment for political reasons is a rumor. However, he did not rent this apartment until after the 60th House District was created. He can now be found living at both addresses."

Tracy was quoted as saying, "I chose German Village because I like the idea of private redevelopment." However, Shepard pointed out, "If Tracy's statement is true, which I doubt, he should have rented his apartment in the Village; his new address on S. High-st is not a part of German Village and, in fact, is a new apartment — not one that was redeveloped."

Shepard also quoted Republican Congressman Samuel L. Devine as saying he "deplored carpetbaggers jumping all over the county looking for a spot to land." In this respect, Shepard said, "Tracy is a carpetbagger of the worst sort and I trust the voters of the 60th district will feel the same way when they nominate their candidates in the primary election on May 3."

Huff Out; Gibbs Too?

Show-stoppers at the Hamilton Local School Board meeting this week included the resignation of Superintendent D'Alan Huff, offering contracts to three principals and the flop of a campaign to toss out the primary report cards now in use. As a climax Herbert Gibbs announced he was resigning as of Monday night. With such acts, the audience got its money's worth even if it was almost 2 a.m. before the curtain came down. A complete review is included on the inside of the Spectator.

Won't Be Long Now

If no hitches occur, Groveport will have a full-time marshal after next council meeting ,Monday, Feb. 28. The safety committee and Mayor Robert Baer are recommending appointment of Albert E. Whipple to the post. Whipple, who has 10 years of civilian work behind him, is currently a sergeant of the Gahanna Police Department and is acting as assistant to the chief as detective. His military records show eight years of assignment to the military police. In addition to training at the Franklin County Sheriff's School, he has completed courses at several FBI schools, including classes in criminal investigative and photography, firearms, and fingerprint science.

Is Tip-Top Scholar

Hamilton Local School District is wearing a new feather in its hat these days. For the first time, one of its students, Doug Huff, has been named a National Merit Scholarship finalist, a distinction earned by only one-half of one percent of the seniors in the nation's private and public schools.

DOUG HUFF

Doug, son of the superintendent of Hamilton Schools D'Alan Huff and Mrs. Huff will learn his final standing in March. He was selected finalist on basis of his scores on competitive tests, his high scholastic record and high school activities. These activities include presidency of Student Council, editorship of the year book, election to National Honor Society, in his junior year, delegacy to Buckeye Boys' State, offices in Key Club, Hi-Y, FTA and the French, Science and Chess clubs, and membership in the marching band. The versatile student who will begin his undergraduate work at Ohio University this summer has won Varsity H letters as captain of the tennis team and member of the basketball squad.

'Music Man' Coming

Remember Professor Harold Hill and "Marian the Librarian" from River City, Ia.? Well, the "Music Man" which earned the tribute of "The Show That Played Forever" on Broadway will be heard at Teays Valley High School at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 18. The musical is the joint effort of the vocal and instrumental music departments and the dramatics and arts departments of the high school. William Pangburn of the music department promises music, dramatics, comedy and all-around fun from the cast of 50 which ineludes a chorus, dancers, the 21-member boys' band, a strong grand finale band, and the pit orchestra of 25.

Twyford Endorsed

The Spectator learned this week that Reynoldsburg Mayor George W. Twyford has been endorsed by the Ohio Nationality Association in his bid as a Democratic candidate for Ohio's 12th congressional district. The announcement was made by Frank Kuboski, director of the association which is headquartered in Columbus. "We picked Twyford," Kuboski says, "because of his outstanding qualification. He has a distinguished background and he fully understands the many segments of community life in the 12th congressional district regardless of race, creed or nationality." Twyford's Republican opponent in the 12th roughly, eastern Franklin County) district is Samuel L. Devine.

Send In Those Letters

Have you ever wanted to get something off your chest? The Spectator is giving that chance to young adults in the greater Central Ohio area. We invite you to contribute to our new "The Student Prints" column which begins in next week's Spectator. It's a kind of forum where we are encouraging high school or college students up to age 21 to write a letter, on any subject. You will have the satisfaction of expressing an opinion for the benefit of some 150,000 readers. And, that opinion may lead to community or school betterment. Don't be satisfied with just one letter, either. Write as many on as many subjects as you like during the year. Include with your signature your school and home address. Address your letters to The Student Prints, Spectator Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, O.

Katy, Bar The Door

By The Spectator's
JANE ROBINSON

GROVEPORT, O.

You don't have to be conservative to live in this village — but it surely does help.

Yet, once a year, led by the Groveport Community Players Club, the villagers shed their traces, let their hair down — and it's "Katy, bar the door."

Have you ever heard "Queen of the House" as made famous by Jodie Miller, sung Cass Daly-style?

Or the Central Ohio version of Barbara Streisand's "Second Hand Rose?"

Well, you'll have the chance when Eva McCollister cuts loose with the former and Mrs. Marie Burns tunes up for the latter when the 21st annual minstrel show is staged this Saturday, Feb. 19, and next Saturday, Feb. 26, at the Groveport Elementary Auditorium.

The fun all started back in 1945 when a handful of local residents decided that the lively arts were being sadly neglected in Groveport.

The group met, assumed the moniker of "Groveport Players Club," elected Mae Kindred as president and hit upon the happy idea that a minstrel would be the vehicle which would best carry the hodge-podge of amateur talents, with which they were blessed.

And, as the charter members felt the need of "cause" as well as a little excitement, they immediately earmarked any possible profits (nobody knew before that first show whether anyone would show up for the second performance) for the benefit of the Groveport schools.

That decision has paid off handsomely for the schools since then with thousands of dollars spent for scenery, curtains, spotlights, audio visual equipment, band uniforms and even a piano.

A look-in at rehearsals which began as soon as the New Year whistles were put away revealed a cast of 50 plus. The voices of the Groveport Elementary choir will sing during intermission.

A run down on this year's acts by Eve McCollister and Lil Woodworth who are again directing, reports all the old favorites will be on deck, with some fresh talent making a debut, from the acrobatic comedy routine by Mrs. Lois Rosser and Mrs. Marilyn Roy (better known at the blackboards of their elementary classrooms) to the solo by Kim Hummell who has waited only six years since her birth to parade her talent. (Although membership in the Players Club is restricted to those over 18 or out of high school, anyone who can dance, sing, draw a guffaw or a tear, or make like a stage hand is welcome at minstrel time.)

The Nine Pussy Cats (from three to 11) will vie with Lil Woodworth and Ruth Bradshaw's soprano solos for attention, and Steve Callies will pit his talents as a folk singer against those of Donald and Marilyn Warner. Other vocal numbers will be those of the mixed octette and the girls' sextet an "Sparks and Callies" will present the Southeast's answer to the Smothers Brothers.

Mrs. Herb Poenisch who, with her three daughters, can draw the applause without taking a step, will again lead their tap routine and Linda Painter is another dancer on the program. Mrs. Vivian Bryan has the full-time job of accompanist.

To keep things from getting too noisy, Jon Mojar will present "Ten Sparks of Pantomime" and the interlocutor, Joe Worth, and the four end men, Pete Franks, Bob Degenhart, Steve Callies and Peewee Thompson will be on hand to keep the pace equal to that of a good harness race.

The verdict after last year's production was, "Well, that will be a hard number to follow," but the directors think they have done it again.

It may not pose any serious threat to the Great White Way but the stars are ready to throw an extra in. They'll give autographs behind the stage — and be gracious about it.

Gibbs Bows Out From School Board

After a prolonged executive session Monday night, the Board of Education of Hamilton Local School offered one year contracts to Jack Rumora, and Evan Evans, and a three-year contract to Dan Fulks. (Rumora is high school principal and Evans and Fulks the administrators at Central and Obetz Elementaries respectively).

Rumora's recent replacement by Edwin Nordin as administrative principal during Supt. D'Alan Huff's leave of absence made his contract somewhat surprising.

However the move made by Hubert Gibbs (after refusing to vote on any of the contracts) was a real bombshell.

He announced that he was resigning, as of that night.

William Lares regarded the statement as directed to the audience rather than the board, and the motion for adjournment which was under way when Gibbs spoke out was continued.

Thus it is doubtful the board considers the resignation official at this point.

It is a matter of conjecture whether offering any of the contracts were contrary to Gibbs' stand, as the executive session was behind closed doors.

However, several matters that came up in regular session indicated he was not exactly in accord with the thinking of other board members.

The first instance arose when a letter from Huff was read, asking that his resignation, effective June 30 be acted upon immediately.

Although the request was ultimately unanimously approved, Gibbs repeatedly questioned the effective date (which is a month before Huff's contract expires) but it was a matter the board chose to ignore.

The next discord came after Mrs. Shirley Eidsmoe, a local parent and candidate for election to the board in November, asked that the report cards in use in grades one, two and three be discontinued. (These cards are designed to reflect whether a child is working up to his own capacity rather than to compare his efforts with his classmates.)

Before the pros and cons were more than touched upon Gibbs moved they be abandoned immediately in favor of the more conventional ABC grading system.

After Lares seconded the motion with the statement he wanted to allow discussion, the principals and audience expressed their views. When it came to vote Gibbs was voted down, although board president Jim Strouse stressed that he believes the card leaves much to be desired in the matter of communication between the parent and teacher and wants further study of the matter.

Gibbs had also been overridden when he wished payment to a teacher for supplemental duties already performed be tabled until salary schedules of certain other teachers be reevaluated.

Less controversial business included the agreement to lease the farm land adjacent to South Elementary to Roy Anderson for $180 annually, and agreement to a temporary health insurance program until study compares it either favorably or unfavorably with others available.

Upon the suggestion of Strouse, it was agreed that boardmen attending the national meeting in Minneapolis in April must finance their own expenses until they file expense vouchers upon their return. (Last year those attending had been advanced money from the activity fund which was repaid after the clerk honored their vouchers).

Faculty resignations included that of two teachers at South, John Zimpfer and Martha Lindner. New teachers hired for the balance of the year to fill other vacancies at South are James Phillips for a fourth grade section and Mrs. Judith Kramer as a kindergarten teacher.

Who'll Pay For Play?

The Rev. Charles Titko is getting a taste of political buck-passing as he attempts to get the long-talked about recreation program of Hamilton Township off the ground. Serving as pro-tem president of the recreation committee he is trying to persuade a duly authorized group (in this case the school board or the township trustees) to place a half-mill levy on the May ballot. Apparently both groups, though sympathetic to such a levy, are reluctant to accept the administrative responsibilities that would come with their sponsorship. At the present, the school board has more or less promised to be the goat if the trustees can't be persuaded to do so, and if the issue is postponed until November when use of the money would be spelled out on the ballot. Trustees, according to Titko, are also "iffy" at this point. Titko also reported that the committee wants immediate funds to employ a professional to help with the planning of an appropriate recreation program and recommends a nine-man committee be set up including a school board member and a trustee.

Oops! He's Gone Again

There was bad news for the Groveport Board of Public Affairs this week — but the members are getting used to it. The resignation of John Wyatt has left them without a superintendent for the water works for the third time in the past year. Acording to Bill Niday of the board the help problem doesn't stem from their being hard to get along with, but from the fact that the part-time job requires four or five hours of work a week and can't be handled by anyone with any less time to spare. The board hopes to find someone with some water works experience so that Paul Raver, who is presently on a consulting basis, can break the new man in and be off to his duties as chief of the Madison Township Volunteer Fire Department. Paul Bartach, chairman of the board, is taking applications for the job.

Adult education courses will be offered at Hamilton Township High School for any of several courses for which at least 10 persons register.

The classes for which teachers are available include beginning fine arts, shorthand, typing, metal and woodworking, data procesing, key punch operation, sewing, drafting and physical education for both men and women.

Mrs. Nancy Potts, 491-8044 is accepting telephone registrations and the time of the 10-session classes will be arranged to the convenience of the students. The program is offered without charge to residents of the local school district.

But it will be a different story next fall when the band dons the 100 new uniforms on order at $85 a clip.

With only $4,200 already in the till (and it's taken eight years of fund-raising to reach the halfway point) the Groveport-Madison Band Parents who are footing the bill are sponsoring a headpin bowling tourney.

According to Fritz Reager, president of the parents' group, every penny of the proceeds from the tourney at Berwick Plaza Bowling Lanes the weekend of Feb. 19-20, Feb. 26-27, Mar 5-6 and Mar. 12-13 will go to pick up the tab for the uniforms.

Prizes will be given to adults, and the off-limits sign will be up for men with an average over 180 and women who regularly top 160.

Six trophies will be awarded to high-scoring students.

THE SPECTATOR

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Robert Burdock, Publisher | Don R. Buckman, Advertising Director | John Aubin, Jr., Managing Editor | E. H. Rogers, Business Manager

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, February 17, 1966

Going Steady

Next week, The Spectator will name its "High School Journalist of The Year." He, or she, will be $200 richer and so will Central Ohio for recognizing the accomplishments of youth.

The ability to condemn high school students by labeling them "teen-agers" and dumping them into a heap called "deliquency" is a growing tendancy in this country.

The chances given youths to "show their wares" is limited. The talented, crisp minds of young people are often shoved to one side where so-called adults frequently tell them to mature.

The Spectator knows the quality of high school students in Central Ohio. It is a quality far superior to most sections of the country and it is a quality that deserves long over-due public exposure.

In the Feb. 24 issue, The Spectator is including a large section entitled "Tales Out of Schools" which will serve, first, as an outlet for high school journalists and photographers and, secondly, will enable them to vie for valuable prizes.

It's just a start because, also the next week, The Spectator pioneers in this area with a letters-to-the-editor forum for young people (under 21) who are in school. It's entitled "The Student Prints."

All of these efforts are closely related. They're aimed at giving the young people of this community an outlet. A chance, if you will, to show the world.

The Spectator is proud to "go steady," in a sense, with the youths of greater Columbus. It should be a long, lasting and rewarding relationship.

Narrowing The Freedom

The Mid-America Bookstore, 162 N. High-st, is the kind of business that is destroying the freedoms responsible Americans expect.

In recent weeks, the store has offered for sale dozens of magazines — ranging in prices from $4 to $8 — aimed directly at homosexual readership. The prominently displayed magazines are filled with photographs showing front views of completely nude males.

Although a weak attempt is made by the magazines' publishers to masquerade the materials under "nudist" and "art study" categories, the real purpose of these publications is obvious.

The Spectator strongly supports basic American freedoms — including the freedom to publish and sell magazines. However, these publications being sold openly in downtown Columbus serve no informative, artistic or literary purposes.

Because of the erotic content of these magazines, they add fuel to the censor's fire and dangerously weaken the cause of responsible freedom.

The Plotters

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

One of the advantages of being a bachelor is to listen with a certain degree of smugness to the marital woes of friends.

According to a recent survey of three companions (all married under five years), the average young housewife is conniving, nagging, manipulating, a mediocre mother and a bad cook.

Hardly a recommendation for marriage.

The discussion started when one of the young men who was having trouble getting his shirts ironed mentioned this fact to another young man who was having difficulty in getting dinner. It seemed the wives had called one another and the one who didn't iron shirts was defended in her position by the one who didn't cook meals. Also, the one who didn't cook meals was defended by the one who didn't iron shirts. The third young man discovered that his wife who was negligent in keeping a supply of toothpaste, was being defended in the three-way society by the other two.

Sensing a conspiracy, the men put their heads together to somehow prevent the wives from comparing notes. It was difficult, one said, to come home to a stale bologna sandwich only to be scolded because one of his working companions was home a half-hour earlier.

It was concluded, after raking the poor girls over the coals in a manner which would be unusual for the wives even in a heated telephone discussion, that the three women should receive a lesson.

Since all were to attend a cocktail party that night, one man would bring a freshly ironed shirt to the man who was having trouble getting his shirt ironed. In return, the first man would bring a tube of toothpaste to the man who brought the shirt, since the shirt-bearer's main problem was getting his wife to supply that item.

And both the shirter and the toothpaster would bring a sandwich to the man who was having trouble getting dinner. It was a masterful plan. One which only three men with intelligence, cunning and distinct desire for revenge could concoct. Satisfied with that, they left with great expectations.

It was rather satisfying to think that if a bachelor needs toothpaste he goes to a drug store. And if a bachelor needs a meal he goes to a restaurant. And if a bachelor needs a shirt ironed he goes to a laundry.

Beside the furor of the young married life, bachelorhood seemed golden.

The thesis received even more ammunition when all three men appeared the next day with the sheepish grin and hangdog look that only a badgered husband can wear.

The plan had fizzled.

The thing that had caused the trouble was not the intended embarrassing insult, but the mere fact that the men had dared to discuss their wives in tones other than reverent.

Ah, the single life is paradise enow!

They Said It

"The concepts and ideas of this nation are the noblest yet conceived by man. Some may be showing signs of wear, but only because they have been tried and found true so often. We would suggest that the youth of today (and here the adult will have to lead him, if he can find the time), before striking out to find something new or more novel or more exciting, examine and re-examine those concepts and morals which have stood the rigors and the stresses of life."

Calling Ohioans

By The Spectator's
MICHAEL V. DiSALLE

State government is at the bottom of the news heap. The actual operation of the Federal government is news. Whatever the President says effects our very existence. What he says, where he says it, why, makes news when he chooses to so make it.

Local government is close to the people, traffic lights, street lights, location of express ways, zoning, sewers and water are every day problems to the citizens of a community. When the Mayor speaks out on these problems he also makes news.

City Councils usually meet weekly, people with immediate problems can obtain an immediate audience. Differences of opinion on the approaches to the solution of these problems produces controversy, and consequently makes news. As a result people are better informed on the operation of the Federal and local governments than they are on the state government.

On the state level, legislatures meet every two years, unless called for a special session which is usually a cut and dried affair before they come to Columbus.

The General Assembly convening in Columbus is away from home. Locally they are considered citizens from afar here on business. At home very few people know they are away or why. They meet for a relatively short period every two years. If the Governor is of one political party and the General Assembly of the other, there is enough controversy to make news while they are in session.

A fairly evenly divided General Assembly can also produce enough conflict to generate news. If the Governor and the General Assembly are of the same political party, party unity and success are the order of the day, little or no public conflict, discussion or debate and the result is an even less informed electorate.

Here the responsibility of the Chief Executive is clear. Sound programs sold to an interested electorate receiving solid support because they are necessary and serve the purpose of government. But there is very little real glamor in the functions of state government.

The Roar Of The Greasepaint

Highways must be built, but they are expensive and should be good. The public interest rests in the lack of or poor quality of highways if this should be the case. A case load of 30,000 mentally ill at one time does not stir up public imagination or sympathy unless it hits home. This problem is easy to neglect, for even should the patient complain, who's going to believe him?

The inmate of correctional institutions is, in the minds of a vast majority of citizens, unworthy of concern and certainly his complaints go unheeded. In fact, the public official who realizes the social implications and the long run financial benefits of a progressive platform is often times the victim of guilt by association.

The young are too busy with the problems of youth to become interested in the problems of the aged until Father Time taps them on the shoulder and says "you're next." The poor are too often described as the products of their own neglect.

This leaves education with numerous supporters, but very little opportunity to make a solid case, for there are millions to educate, and this is expensive.

Too often teachers are being asked to absorb this cost. They are expected to work for less than is paid other educated and professional people. There is no reason and there is no excuse other than we need too many teachers because some think we have too many children. This program also suffers in quality as a sacrifice to the quantity needed.

Faced with apathy, and lack of concern, the Chief Executive of the state finds himself in a dilemma.

If he does what he should do, he can be attacked for being a spender. If he fails to do what he should do, he can be attacked for not fulfilling his responsibilities.

What then does a politically ambitious Governor do? He sells tomato juice, eats sauerkraut bread, goes to Europe, visits parks and monuments, stays away from state institutions, fishes through the ice, cuts ribbons, reads nothing speeches to captive audiences, polishes publishers' egos and takes no position if there is someone with a conflicting point of view.

Letters To The Editor

Policy Limits Punishment

To The Spectator:

I'm very pleased that The Spectator is taking a closer look at the school discipline problem in this area ("The Quiet Turmoil," Feb. 10 Spectator).

Teachers in Columbus are not allowed to use corporal punishment on students which is a problem, I feel, relating to the over-all discipline problem. It's not a matter of using the punishment but just to know that the power is there would be a help.

Although the school board's official policy permits it, an administrative bulletin last year entitled "The Columbus Public Schools' Policy On Discipline" forbids it. The bulletin says, in effect, that a principal may use means not open to teachers to punish students. This is the policy statement that school administrators must adhere to.

Changed His Mind

To The Spectator:

Your editorial, "Waterman Made Waves," (Spectator, Feb. 10) gave me reason to sit down and re-evaluate my sense of values.

I, like many others, I suppose, usually criticize nit-pickers. As you pointed out, however, "If there's anything we do not need in Ohio politics it's elected officials who shy away from controversy . . . elected officials who 'don't make waves' because they fear losing friends at the polls."

I think, now, that Joe Waterman's alertness is to be praised and I thank you, the editors of The Spectator, for being alert enough to alert us on alertness.

Marvin Lieke
Columbus, Ohio

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Bring On The Girls

To The Spectator:

I certainly admire Mrs. Betty Knab's efforts in trying to revive burlesque in Columbus (Spectator, Feb. 10).

She hasn't got an easy job ahead of her but, if she sincerely believes in burlesque the way many of us do then, perhaps, her dream will come a reality.

I'm sure that even many of the city officials who worked so hard to keep burlesque from this "pure" capital would admit they have fond memories about the old days when burlesque was a fine form of entertainment.

And, I agree with Mrs. Knab when she says that a good, wholesome burlesque show would spell the demise of the smut movie houses that are contaminating Columbus.

An Old Showman
Columbus, Ohio

Suspects Scheming

To The Spectator:

It looks suspicious to me that Ted Brown and the GOP ringleaders are conniving and scheming to use every diabolical method possible to rule my petitions for governor invalidated.

Apparently Ted Brown ruled that I didn't have enough qualifying names on my petitions before the Knox County petitions containing 828 names had been received from the Knox County Board of Elections.

His letter informing me that he could not certify my name for placing it on the May 3 ballot for governor, was dated and postmarked Feb. 2, 1966. When I was in Mr. Brown's office on Feb. 3 the statement was made by one of his assistants, George Farris, that the Knox County petitions were late in being returned and had just arrived that morning. This statement was made in the presence of several newspaper reporters.

Later, I talked over the telephone to Bill West, who is also one of Brown's assistants, and he stated that the Knox County petitions arrived on Feb. 3.

If it is true that my Knox County petitions arrived in Ted Brown's office on the morning of Feb. 3 as stated by two of his assistants, then his dated and postmarked letter of Feb. 2, notifying me I didn't have enough signatures to qualify me as a candidate for governor, has every earmark of a frame-up to prevent me from running against James Rhodes for governor.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

(Editor's Note: Spectator Washington correspondent Marquis Childs is currently in Honolulu, where he covered the visits there by the President and Vice-President):

HONOLULU — From the long row of windows in Admiral U.S.G. Sharp's office the view is out over Pearl Harbor and the sunlit sweep of the Pacific. As Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sharp presides over an empire of 85,000,000 square miles, with American forces in the three services approaching the 600,000 mark.

CHILDS

So massive is the commitment to this empire that the Viet Nam war is seen as only one phase, if at the moment the most critical phase, of the thrust of American power. For better or for worse, the die has been cast. To reverse the drive for an American future in the vast area of the Pacific seems impossible short of a nuclear encounter.

Parallels are always dubious, but the central effort today is to do in the Pacific what the United States did in the Atlantic. That is to shape a new alliance and, to use a piece of government shorthand, build an infrastructure that will sustain it.

This is the chief objective of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey's recent tour of Asia. It is first to wrestle up another 20,000 to 25,000 troops from America's Asian "allies" for the war in Viet Nam. But for the long pull it is to lay the groundwork for an alliance of broader scope and sterner purpose than the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

South Korea is expected to provide a second division of upwards of 20,000 men. Australia will contribute a second battalion and New Zealand may add a second small contingent. If present expectations are fulfilled, the Philippines will come through for the first time with 2,000 engineer-service troops.

Following a meeting of commanders from all over the Pacific, which coincided with the Honolulu conference, a new kind of cautious hope colors the outlook for Viet Nam. For perhaps the first time, military men speaking privately believe they have the elements in readiness to do the job. By 1967 the Viet Cong will begin to fade away, not by seeking negotiation at a peace table, which no one expects, but by acknowledging they cannot win.

At that point the guerrillas may spill over into Thailand through the Laos corridor, the route today of up to 80 percent of the infiltration into South Viet Nam.

But it is in the thrust of the far-flung construction effort that the permanence of the Pacific empire is evident. Hundreds of millions of dollars are going into contracts with the great American engineering firms to build whole new harbors, docks, large military installations. And this is not in Viet Nam alone.

In type, Admiral Sharp is no imperial pro-consul. He has a quiet, reasonable approach to the diplomatic aspects, including the bombing pause, as well as the military responsibilities of his command. But there is no doubt as he takes off from time to time to inspect his remote outposts who is boss of this extraordinary undertaking.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Doris Day, America's reigning boxoffice queen, stars with Rod Taylor in the romantic-comedy, "Do Not Disturb," at Cinema East. Set in England, the film's cast also includes Sergio Fantoni and Hermione Baddeley with Reginald Gardiner, Maura McGiveney and Aram Katcher. Doris Day and Rod Taylor play an American couple who are transferred to England by Taylor's employers. There, the combination of British customs and business pressures head their marriage straight for Her Majesty's divorce courts. As can be expected, Doris Day turns in another sterling performance. While the comedy is pretty funny due to the many unusual situations that Day and Taylor become mixed up in, "Do Not Disturb" is primarily successful and entertaining because of Doris Day.

Continental Music At Normandy Room

Romantic music, a debonair troubadour and soft lights is the setting for exquisite dining in the Normandy Room at Stoney Creek. Spanish guitarist Alex Santiesteban's strolling background music is served for dining pleasure every Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Alex, who hails from Madrid, Spain, strums the guitar with continental flair. He sings in French, Italian, English as well as Spanish.

Manager Roger McElroy signed Alex following an enthusiastic reaction to the popular musician who was booked for one night at the resort restaurant.

Besides Alex, The Normandy Room offers the very best in food and service.

News From The Community Stage

In cooperation with the Arts Council of Columbus as part of its Winter Showcase of the Arts, the Gallery Players of the Jewish Center will present "The Glass Menagerie," by Tennessee Williams. This production will be given at the Jewish Center, opening Saturday, Feb. 19. The play will continue for 11 performances through Mar. 6.

Edythe Mendelson portrays Amanda Wingfield, Lillian Hubert plays the daughter.

Tickets are available at Central Ticket Office, 37 N. High-st, or at the Jewish Center, 1125 College-av.

Other items from community stages include The Little Theatre Off Broadway in Grove City, which presents Summer Arthur Long's "Never Too Late," Feb. 18, 19 and 25, 26 at 8:30 p.m. at Brookpark Junior High. Tickets are on sale at the door . . . Columbus Players Club is giving "Witness for the Prosecution," 8:30 p.m. Feb. 18, 19 and 24, 25, 26. Tickets may be obtained through club members.

With most community theaters operating, there are plenty of opportunities for amateur thespians. Contact one of the local community theatre groups now.

No Exploring At Explorers

The Explorers Restaurant, 1080 Dublin-rd, is undergoing several improvements. George A. Roberts, who recently acquired the Explorers, announced a complete redecorating program. Presently, the interior is being painted and new murals added. Next to come is carpeting of the entire restaurant. Serving excellent food for breakfast, lunch and dinner, at popular prices, the Explorers is open seven days a week. Roberts, who brings years of experience to the Explorers, has inaugurated many new policies. There is a special menu for children, and all pastries are baked fresh every day in their own ovens. A new, fast, convenient carryout service is offered. One can now drive right up to the kitchen door and pick up food. There is no exploring at the Explorers Restaurant. You know the quality of food and service that awaits you.

Monte Carlo Orchestra Schedules Visit

Monte Carlo is more widely known for its casino and Princess Grace, but it is also the home of a famous orchestra, which a Parisian critic has called "one of the five or six best in Europe." The Monte Carlo National Orchestra will give a concert at Veterans Memorial Thursday, Feb. 24, under the auspices of the Symphony Club of Central Ohio.

Conductor will be Paul Paray, and 26-year-old Michel Block, pianist, will be soloist. The program consists of Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, "The Spider's Feast," ballet music by Albert Roussel, and Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe." Block will play the last of Mozart's piano concertos, that in B flat major, K. 595.

Third Anniversary At Lake View Inn

The Lake View Inn is presenting the fabulous Danny Mann Trio, nightly for dining and dancing pleasure. Danny, long a favorite with Columbus patrons, has a romantic voice that really sells a song. His trio is as good for listening as for dancing. This week, the Lake View Inn celebrates its third anniversary. All of the friends and patrons of the inn are invited to take part in the big celebration. This is truly one of the nicest rooms in the city, serving delicious steaks and chops at popular prices. They are open daily with good businessmen's luncheons. One can enjoy good music and food at the Lake View Inn 9 p.m.-2 a.m. daily and 8 p.m.-12:45 a.m. on Saturday.

A Starr Shines At Nationwide Inn

Cal Starr, guitarist and singing troubadour, is appearing nightly in the Sabre and Saddle Lounge at Nationwide Inn. Cal just finished a two-year stand in Chicago clubs and theatres, where he recently appeared with Ernest Tubb at McCormick Place.

The latest album of Cal Starr is on Capaco Records entitled "New Voice in Town," which has been selling very well. Sharing the stage with Starr are the highly popular Go-Go Girls of the Sabre and Saddle lounge.

VERNON

Jackie Vernon Is Subtle Master

An evening at Danny Deeds' Maramor is a guarantee of a night of laughter with Jackie Vernon. With recent appearances on the Jack Parr, Ed Sullivan and other television shows, Vernon brings to Columbus comedy that sells. While many other comedians have "laid an egg" in town, it's not the case with the talent of Jackie Vernon.

He is no slapstick comedian. Nor is his material in the vein of sick comedy. The sustance of his act is subtle comedy that is so ridiculous and unsuspecting it is hum-

For good, plain laughter, Jackie Vernon must be included on one's calendar of events this week.

Anti-Commie Campaign Started

JOHN MADDEN

By The Spectator's
TOM SESLAR

John K. Madden, 31 E. Town-st, has launched a campaign to rid Columbus of "left-wing extremists." He told The Spectator recently that his prime target is the Spartacist Party, a group which recently opened an office and mailing headquarters at 1508 Summit-st.

Columbus Safety Director Frederick J. Simon also said he was concerned about the Spartacist activities. He said he investigated legal aspects of the group after reading an article in The Spectator Jan. 20.

The article exposed the local Spartacist movement and quoted one of its leaders who said, "We definitely are Communists."

"However, I learned," Simon said, "that the statements made of this group's desire to overthrow the American government are not illegal as long as they do not advocate that it be overthrown by force or violence.

Simon added that city government has no legal jurisdiction in matters involving "un-American" activities. He said he has asked Police Chief George W. Scholer to contact the FBI to advise it of city officials' concern about Spartacist activities.

But Madden plans to take a more direct approach. Already he has sent letters to President Lyndon B. Johnson, Gov. James A. Rhodes, Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and many newspapers.

"Now I want to bring together people and money for an opposition campaign to run the Spartacists out of the state," Madden said. "If somebody doesn't do something quick, these people are going to ruin the American way of life."

He said he believes the Spartacists' basic goal is to create turmoil on the Ohio State University campus and accused university officials of being "lax" in dealing with students who are members of the organization.

"I was in the U.S. Marines during the Korean War," he said. "I know what America stands for, and I think it is disgusting that we allow Communists to operate in our own backyards while Americans are fighting the spread of communism on the other side of the world."

Simon said he does not believe left-wing activities are increasing in Columbus, but only that the leaders are becoming "more vocal."

"I personally feel that our people are intelligent enough to deal with these groups," Simon said. "And the best way to deal with them is to ignore them because they thrive on publicity."

The higher the office, the greater the responsibilities. In other words, the punishment fits the climb.

Local Mother With Sons Serving In Viet Nam Pickets White House

By JANE ROBINSON

Among the 1500 women who picketed the White House last week with helium-filled black balloons and white doves of peace were five Columbus women.

They were Mrs. Doreen Wohl, Mrs. Eileen Colluchi, Mrs. Shirley Brustein, Mrs. Edith Smilack and Mrs. Magnolia Goodwin.

The delegation, known as "Women Strike for Peace," as a unit went with well-defined motives.

They are demanding that the war in Viet Nam be halted and are pledging their support only to those congressmen who will "uncompromisingly work" toward that end.

Among their specific demands are US recognition of the National Liberation Front in peace negotiations and Vietnamese government, the immediate end of air attacks on both North and South Viet Nam, stopping of troop and base build-ups and withdrawal from the theater in compliance with Geneva Accords and heeding to the "Pope's pleas for universal membership in the United Nations."

When The Spectator learned that Mrs. Goodwin of 175 Hinkel-rd, is the mother of three Marines, two of whom are serving in Viet Nam, she was interviewed.

Newspaper reports of protests of the United States' Viet Nam policies are common but for a mother of three Marines?

As might have been guessed, her living room was dominated by color portraits of her two sons, Pfc. Lawrence Goodwin, 1965 graduate of South High, and Sgt. Robert Goodwin, both serving in Viet Nam.

Her pride in these young men is unmistakable, as it is in another who, after dropping out from high school and entering the Job Corps, enlisted in the Marines this summer.

But her motives for being in Washington are not so clearly defined.

As all mothers through history's wars, she is concerned about her sons' safety and she sincerely questions that they should be called upon to fight an undeclared war.

Mrs. Goodwin inferred that she had some reservations when, after arriving in Washington, she learned she was actually going to picket public buildings.

And these reservations apparently were strengthened when, in the congressional office building, she found the pickets outnumbered by police.

She quoted one of her sons as saying before he left, "Momma, it's best for me to go see for myself what's going on," and she conceded also that she believes that her sons and others like them can bring physical aid and comfort to an impoverished and besieged people.

Senator Young met with 20 women from the delegation and heard criticism of the Tonkin Gulf Resolution.

Mrs. Goodwin was not with that particular group.

If she had been, she would undoubtedly have sincerely supported the deploring of the suffering of war. But would she have been a spokesman saying, "We deplore the suffering and misery our country is inflicting on a helpless people. We do not want our sons and husbands sent to kill or be killed in this savage war which in no way can settle Viet Nam's problems . . .?"

It is more likely that she would have quoted her minister who reminds his parish congregation that Biblical predictions are coming true, and that our leaders are confused.

Mrs. Goodwin speaks simply, and with an innate patriotism.

This reporter doesn't believe she ever belonged in that picket line — and wonders how many others were there knowing only that "War is Hell," but without any personal convictions on what should be done.

ON BEHALF OF the Junior Youth Group of the Southwood Church of Christ, Tim Donovan accepted the attendance award presented by his pastor, Ellis E. Wesner. Tim, president of the group, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Donovan, 297 Markison.

'Good Kids' Get The Publicity At Southwood Church Of Christ

With the theme "Hearts in Tune" and the thought that the deserving youth need the recognition that usually falls to the delinquent, the Mother's Club of the Southwood Church of Christ gave a banquet Sunday.

It was the closing event of National Youth Week and honored the youngsters of the church who had conducted an attendance campaign recently.

The three groups and their sponsors are the Juniors with Mrs. Richard Donovan who served as general chairman, Mrs. Ellis Wesner and Mr. and Mrs. Buddie Almond; Junior High with Vernon Banker and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wolfe; the Senior High group with Mrs. John Tope and Mrs. Geraldine Baughman and the Collegiate group with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meadows as its sponsors.

After the banquet, of which Mrs. Paul Barnhill was chairman, Ken Henderson, writer and editorial assistant for the teenage magazine "Straight," spoke. A program was presented by the Kingsmen Quartet, ministerial students from the Cincinnati Bible Seminary.

Tests To Be Given Pupils

Free tuberculin skin tests will be offered to approximately 700 students enrolled in grades 1, 7 and 11 in the Madison school district. They will be given at Asbury, Brice and Edwards Wednesday, Feb. 23, and at Asbury, Groveport and the high schools Monday, Feb. 28.

A harmless fluid is injected beneath the first two layers of skin on the forearm of the child which is examined two to three days later to determine if there has been a positive reaction.

"A positive reaction to a tuberculin skin test does not mean a child has tuberculosis," stated John Hofmann, community representative for the Tuberculosis Society.

SCOTTWOOD PLANS MARDI GRAS

POSTAL SUPERVISORS TO PARTY

WASHINGTON'S CHERRY BLOSSOMS will set the scene Tuesday, Feb. 22 at 5:30 in the Desert Inn, 3540 E. Broad-st, for the annual George Washington Birthday Banquet for Postal Supervisors and their families. Arrangements are being made by Auxiliary Branch 33. Mrs. John Meehan is general chairman assisted by Mrs. Frank Bower, Mrs. Carl Stalder, Mrs. Joseph Huffman and Mrs. Therman LeCrone. Making decorations for the event are Mrs. Stalder, standing, and from left: Mrs. Bower, Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. Meehan. All retired postal supervisors will be honored. (Foto by Firestone).

MOM'S IN HOT WATER

...SINCE SHE GOT HER NEW FLAME!

Matter of fact, the whole family's in hot water—because Mom's new flame is a modern, durable Gas water heater.

No more infuriating waits while a pokey flameless water heater recovers from the shock of delivering a tub-full of hot water. Their new Gas water heater, with its unequaled quick recovery, is always ready with all the hot water a modern family needs.

With a dependable Gas water heater, you'll be in hot water, too—and you'll love it. Especially when you think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

Girls Work On Highest Award

Tuesday, Feb. 22, Mary Farmer, 945 Studer-av, and Julia Robbins, 1614 Frebis-av, members of Girl Scout Cadette Troop 593, will make a pilgrimage to The Carmelite Monastery, 2065 Barton-pl, accompanied by friends and committee members of their troop.

An invitation to attend 11 a.m. Mass at the monastery has been extended by the extern sister there.

Mrs. Joanne Snyder, 1361 E. Gates-st, is leader of the troop.

Fr. Albert V. Kessler is the advisor and examiner of the scouts working to obtain the Marian Award. The Marian Award is the highest religious award that a Catholic Girl Scout can earn.

Anyone interested in making this pilgrimage please call Mrs. Joseph Farmer at 253-3676.

Canal Winchester Will Look Up At Tall New Albany Five; Hamilton Township's Hot Hand Doesn't Melt Hartley

By Bob Whitman

Canal Winchester gets its last tune up (before embarking on the stormy tournament seas) Friday night against impressive and height-conscious New Albany.

Bob Miller's Indians (13-4) tangle with Mort Willis' tall and veteran studded Eagles (14-2) on the New Albany crackerbox court at 8 p.m.

NEW ALBANY will be coming at the Indians with smoke in their eyes from the fire that St. Mary set under them last Friday night. The Rams, playing without 6-6 pivotman Rod Webb, stunned New Albany, 52-46.

Eagle scoring ace Randy Wickiser tossed through 18 points in vain as Willis' combine never led and offered little resistance to the Rams.

While New Albany was on fire, Canal Winchester was clipping West Jefferson 89-81 on the 24-point output of sweet shot Jim Burke.

THIS FRIDAY, the Indians will be at a height disadvantage, combatting a taller Eagle crew that goes 6-5 in the pivot, 6-4 at the forwards, and 6-2 and 6-3 at the guards.

The top Eagle point men are the wee guys, Dave Kellett (6-2) and Wickiser (6-3).

Canal Winchester will counter with 6-4 center Bill Miles (135 — 8.5), 6-2 forward Jim Burke (242 — 15.1), 6-0 guard Vic Argobright (203-12.7) and a pair of jumping jack 5-11 standouts in Steve Smith (159 — 10.0) and Dick Whitmer (205 — 12.7).

Probable starting lineups:

Indians (13-4)	Eagles (14-2)
Burke .....F.....	Brenning
Whitmer ...F.....	Haegele
Miles .....C.....	Marsh
Argobright G....	Wickiser
Smith .....G.....	Kellett

Hamilton Township came up with a pair of strong performances last weekend. The Rangers bowed to Teays Valley on Friday, 65-56, and gave their most exciting show of the year Saturday that shook rugged Bishop Hartley, whose power eventually was too hot for the Rangers to handle. The Hawks eked out a come-from-behind 72-65 win over Hamilton.

"A good shooting night helped us," said coach Eldon Malling. 'We seem to be moving well now. It is just a shame that the season is over."

Hamilton was paired against sixth seeded Newark in the Central District Class AA tournament and Hartley was tabbed eighth-seeded and meets Reynoldsburg, the FCL kings.

'Fearless Predictions'

"Fearless" came up with a 17-5 record Friday night and seems to have the knack once again.

And it was found almost too late as the teams go to the hardwood for the last time before tourneys.

HOLD THAT LINE! — Hamilton Township's Kenny Peck (left), who "held the line" with some authority (260 lbs. worth) during the past football season, presents an immovable barrier above for Hartley's Jack Geist (33) during Hawks' 72-65 win over the Rangers Saturday. Geist appears ready to yield while H-T's Charlie Hart (24) apparently doesn't even want to watch. (Staff photo by Jack Wittenmeier).

WHATZAT??

SPECTATOR Sports Editor Jack Wittenmeier registered slight surprise at this headline until he was told the paper was part of The Spectator's fun at Tuesday's meeting between WMNI radio and Cincinnati Reds officials. The meeting finalized plans for the radio station to broadcast all Cincy games this coming season.

City, SSL, Mid-Eight, CCL Stage Annual Loop Meets This Weekend

By JACK WITTENMEIER

School boy wrestling moves into its final pre-sectional warmups this weekend, sporting four big league meets which promise to serve as indicators for district favorites.

The City and Mid-Eight Leagues have scheduled Friday-Saturday tournaments while the South Suburban and Central Catholic loops (three and four teams respectively) jam all the action into one Saturday "basket."

THE CITY tourney (at South) features all 11 loop members (Central, East, Eastmoor, Linden, Marion-Franklin, North, South, Walnut Ridge, West, Whetstone and defending champ Brookhaven).

Prelims are scheduled Friday at 3 p.m. with an admission of 50 cents charged to spectators. Action resumes with semi-finals (noon) Saturday with finals getting underway about 3:30. Saturday's admission will be $1.

CITY MEET

TOP INDIVIDUALS CITY*

* based solely on seasonal records.

DUE TO the split-up of the Central Buckeye League there will be neither a CBL nor a BAC (Buckeye Athletic Conference) mat tourney this season.

"FEARLESS" FAVORITES

CCL — big edge to DeSales; SSL—big edge to Franklin Heights; MID-EIGHT—tossup between Groveport and Hilliard; CITY — East to edge West; Brookhaven, Eastmoor close behind.

Roger Caldwell took a second for the Bulldogs while Perin Moore and Bob Vinson nabbed consolation wins.

Elsewhere, M-F dropped a 33-16 verdict to Linden.

The Bulldogs' "fearsome threesome" (Robinson, Harper and Caldwell) closed with wins to provide the margin over Hartley.

KEVIN Childs and Vinson picked up the other Reb points on a pair of pins.

Robinson, Harper and Caldwell followed suit (with wins) vs. Grove City but this time it wasn't quite enough.

Childs and Bell took Reb decisions while Vinson added a pin for other South points.

DECISIONS by Tim Michael and Bill Marshall plus Jim Dill's pin-win at 165 supplied the thrust for Groveport in a 24-15 win over Bexley.

John Queen, Skip Musselman and Jeff Nelle provided verdict wins for the Cruisers while J. Woodworth and Bill Nelle got draws.

In the only other area dual meet, the same Lions spanked Hamilton Township, 48-3, with Darrell Wampler's decision at 145 providing the Rangers lone points.

—J. Nelle (GP); Herschler (M); 138—Bryant (H), Woodworth (GP); 145—B. Nelle (GP), Koontz (WV); 154—tossup; 165 — Dill (GP); 175 — Miller (H); HWT — Adams (H), Worthington (G-C), Hatcher (WV).

Class A Tourney Starts Saturday; Second-Seeded Rams Open Sections

By BOB WHITMAN

Columbus St. Mary (13-4), second-seeded in the Class A Ashville sectional, starts the gruelling 1966 tourney grind with a Saturday afternoon date against strong Westfall (11-3).

Ray DeCola's Rams were seeded behind Madison South (13-3) of the Darby Valley League in the drawings held at Williard's Restaurant on Monday, Feb. 7.

THE TOP-SEED drew Bob Miller's Canal Winchester crew (12-4).

Madison South, St. Mary, Westfall and Canal Winchester hold the best marks in the sectional. The St. Mary-Westfall winner meets Academy (7-8) while the South-Canal victor draws a second round bye.

Other Spectator area teams involved in the Ashville sectional to be held on the Teays Valley floor are West Jefferson (6-8), University (5-12), and Rosary (5-12).

DICK CLOSE'S Dublin crew (6-11), in the Westerville Sectional at Otterbein, draws a first round bye and meets the winner of the East Knox (4-12)-Big Walnut (15-2) game.

The Ashville Sectional parings:

FEB. 19 — 2:30 p.m. — Columbus St. Mary (13-4) — Westfall (11-3), 7 p.m. — University (5-12) — Rosary (5-12) and 8:30 p.m. — The Plains (4-12) — Ohio Deaf (2-12).

FEB. 25 — 7 p.m. — Logan Elm (11-4) — West Jefferson (6-8) and 8:30 p.m. — Canal Winchester (12-4) —Madison South (13-3).

FEB. 26 — 7 p.m. — The winner of the St. Mary - Westfall game meets Academy (7-8) and 8:30 p.m.—The Plains - Ohio Deaf winner meets the University - Rosary winner.

Upper bracket finals Mar. 4 at 8 p.m. and lower bracket finals Mar. 5 at 6 p.m.

T-V Baseball Registration Set March 5

All boys and girls wishing to compete in the Teays Valley Youth Baseball League this summer must register Saturday, Mar. 5 at the Ashville Elementary School (at 1 p.m. or 7 p.m.).

In other action at the league meeting last week, the loop:

—resolved that all league-purchased equipment must be worn by all members of any league team during league competition.

—voted to sanction the scholarship fund set up by the Waldon Youth Foundation.

—agreed to widen the age of boys allowed to register to 15 (now 7 through 15 years).

—decided to sponsor a dance on Friday, Apr. 22 at the elementary school from 8 till 11 p.m.

—voted to meet again Thursday, Mar. 10 (7 p.m.) at the Ashville Council House.

FREEZER BURN

Freezing experts say this method keeps fish from getting "freezer burn" over a long period of storage. Wrap fish in foil and freeze. Take out and submerge in water, refreeze immediately.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

February is traditionally the 'seed catalog month.' It's the time of winter when the tackle manufacturers flood the mails with toutings of great fishing trips to come, great new products and services.

I believe that every one who ever successfully fooled a fish begins to think of the ice-off time down on the creek. They remember with great clarity the big one that got away and what direction he was headed.

WHILE WE all wait for the ice-off, there is something very important to be done in the midst of our hibernation. Now is the right and natural time to check and repair our tackle, not when our buddy is honking impatiently out front.

All that clothing, boots and gear is probably stacked just the way you flung it last fall. Take your rubber waders for instance. If they are on the floor, they should have permanent creases by now.

To get the most years out of them, hang them upside down. Make sure they are no where near the heat.

They should be hung in such a way as to allow air to flow into them. If there are tears, get a patching kit and make the repairs now while there's more time.

AS FAR AS the tackle itself, dump the box upside down on a newspaper. Then with soap and sponge, clean out every nook and cranny. (I'm not sure what a cranny is but let's get is clean anyway.)

Lay out all the terminal tackle (leaders, hooks, swivels) and make sure they are clean and rust free. If the hooks are rusty, throw them away or sharpen them with a hook sharpener.

Check the ferrules (joints) of your rods and see if they come apart easily but not too much easy. If they are corroded, buff them with very fine steel wool and rub a lead pencil on them for lubrication.

Check the eyelets and if they are worn, replace them or they will cut your lines.

DE-GREASE and re-grease your reels with silicone lube. It won't wash away in use.

By all means, replace last year's lines, whether they be spinning or casting line. The cost is small enough that it makes cheap insurance. If your reels need spare parts, get them now before your dealer's supply runs out (and it surely will by May).

Make sure you have a few of each size swivels, hooks and sinkers on hand for that first warm day. If your tackle box has rusted a bit, paint it while it's clean.

If you use a boat, screw two strips of soft pine on the bottom of the box while it's empty. That'll keep it quieter in the boat.

WHEN YOUR wife's not looking, count up the money you have invested in that tackle box. (Scares you doesn't it?) It pays to protect that investment by cleaning up those lures.

If they have lost paint, nail polish will brighten them up again, steel wool will bring back the luster to spoons. If you fly fish, clean your lines and re-waterproof them, making sure you don't apply too much. Steam flies to pep-up the hackles.

While you're at it, go ahead and inventory your lures making sure you have all the favorite colors on hand. Even though you might prefer to take your fish in a certain way, always have other types of lures to try out if your "never fail" ups and fails.

WHEN ALL is right with your gear, get out your Ohio maps and start figuring where you should have gone and never got around to it.

I think that's half the fun of fishing — trying strange waters. You might be just the one to haul that Big Daddy Bass out that has escaped the locals for years.

Local Hearing Aid Sales 'Racket' Goes On Unheard

SIXTH IN A SERIES

Hard-of-hearing people in the Greater Columbus Area—some incurabley deaf—are falling victim to one of the most smoothly-operating, least noticed and most seldom challenged group of hucksters to hit town in several years. They've invaded a business which has opened doors for them by not licensing its dealers.

They sell hearing aids—over-priced and often worthless—and they rake in tens of thousands of dollars a year at it.

Unfortunately, the hearing aid business has the needed characteristics of a fast-cash racket.

It has an embarrassed, and generally desperate clintelle. Most people with hearing difficulties don't want to broadcast the fact. And they want desperately to keep a job and a normal way of life. This makes them easy marks for a campaign which promises a cheap, fast solution to their problems.

Medical matters bore the eye-teeth off the man on the street. Thus, the most unethical practices in hearing aid sales can continue under the noses of an uninterested public.

There are no self-governing forces within the business to keep it "clean." Oregon is the only state which requires licensing of dealers. The dealership, salesman and product are all free from the need of anyone's stamp of approval.

So what happens? This:

An elderly man is sitting at home a few hours after dinner. It's been a long day and he has removed his shirt, tie and shoes to relax.

The doorbell rings. It rings because some time ago he listed his hearing deficiency on a job application, or signed for a free drawing on a hearing aid, or answered an advertisement offering the "perfect" hearing aid.

He opens the door — and for him the battle's over, because in the next three or four hours the two well-dressed salesmen who barge in will pressure him to the point where he would be willing to sign a confession to membership in the Communist party just to get rid of them and get some sleep.

While they're in his living room, the salesmen are apt to use any one of a dozen shady sales techniques.

As one handles the sales-pitch, the other might take the "customer's" own hearing aid into the next room in order to "examine it under a stronger light." He will either stuff cotton down the throat of the instrument, to make it sound inferior to the one being demonstrated, or return with a handful of worthless parts, claiming the aid is defective (the hearing aid he took out of the room is in his pocket, completely intact, ready to be re-sold as a "used" model to someone else).

Meanwhile the other salesman has run electronic tests on the man's hearing, with impressive-looking equipment (his technical background consists of the ability to find three stations on a transistor radio). He punctuates his interminable pitch with scare-statements such as, "You'll be deaf within six months if you don't buy now!"

The real capper comes when the prospect finally agrees to buy. The terms quoted sound easy enough to handle, he really is concerned about his hearing — and besides, he's tired.

One of the two holds out a sheet of paper, with some very interesting fine print folded out of sight.

"Just a receipt," the salesman says, "to show the boss I was at your house tonight, and not goofing off on the job."

The customer signs, and doesn't realize he has placed his signature on what may be an agreement to pay fantastic interest rates, or a chattel mortgage—either of which will hold up in any court."

A few weeks later, he marches down to the dealer's office carrying the worthless hunk of junk he has purchased. He doesn't know it, but he is quite probably the proud owner of an obsolete used hearing aid, enclosed in a shiny new casing. And if he checks the fine print on his guarantee, he'll discover that it only covers those parts which virtually never wear out.

At the office, he is confronted with his own signature on a contract and the threat of lawsuit if he doesn't pay up. The fact that he is crippled without a functioning hearing aid means nothing.

This story is not an extreme case. It is average. You can hear worse tales, about people in your own area, from doctors or reputable hearing aid dealers.

For those who doubt that these men are more interested in profit than the welfare of their customers, an example:

There is one brand of hearing aid — a Japanese import — bought in large quantities at a factory cost of $12 each. Suggested retail price is around $29.50. You can get one in Columbus for the low, low price of $300 and up.

It is strange that barbers and beauticians must pass a licensing test in order to practice, and yet are not as closely associated with the health of their clients as are the hearing aid dealers.

Licensing is not as easy as it sounds. It must be done through the enactment of a law by the state legislature. Attempts to license dealers in states other than Oregon have been defeated by a determined and well-organized industry.

Business ethics are fine until they cut into the astronomical profit. No manufacturer or distributor will back a measure which would inevitably trim the land-office sales of his product.

And the dealers are told in their monthly bulletins that licensing would be too restricting and would subject them to the control of the medical profession. A recent edition of "The Hearing Dealer" suggests ways for local dealers to organize against attempts at passing a licensing law—offering "legislative kits" to be used as guides in state legislature procedure.

But despite the industry's insistence that it can clean its own house, the problem still exists. Innocent people are still being "taken."

The problem will be resolved when the business is cleaned up.

And the business will be cleaned up when enough local people who have been victimized by unethical dealers have the fortitude to write their state senators and representatives and tell them about it.

IN THE NEWS THIS WEEK...

From Spectator Area News Sources

Going! Going! Gone!

Can you spare a two-car garage for a couple of months? Or something similar? Ed Seymour announced at the meeting of the Groveport Businessmen's Association this week that the first annual auction will be held either the last Saturday in April or the first Saturday in May at the Big City Garden Center and that already storage area is needed. Proceeds will go to the first major community program planned by the reactivated group—that of a Fourth of July fireworks display which celebrations chairman Dick Hamler reports will cost about $500. W. W. Haynes, chairman of the nominating committee presented a slate for association trustees, eight of whom will be elected at the annual meeting the third Monday in March. The nominees are Herman Klein, Robert Williams, James Young, Richard Hamler, Marvin Dutcher, Thomas Hughes, Berman Thompson, Keith Harden Louis Haines, Mrs. Betty Allensworth, Kermit Alspaugh, John Whicker and Wilson Richardson. The trustees, in turn, will elect 1966 officers from their membership. One of "Rhodes' Raiders," Jarold Raab, Jr., spoke on how the village can attract industry. A report is included on the inside of The Spectator.

New Bank For C-W?

News that a building and loan association is seeking federal approval for a local branch and that $16,000 will be borrowed from the Huntington National Bank "in anticipation of the issuance of bonds" for improvement of the municipal swimming pool highlighted the meeting of Canal Winchester Council this week. Other money business included the rejection of all bids on the proposed storage garage for which modified specifications are being prepared and Mayor Mike Miller's request that a third police officer be employed. The complete council story is included on an inside page.

May Not Far Away

In Madison School District, bond issues often come with May flowers and this spring is no exception. When the local school board met this week, they laid the groundwork which will familiarize voters with the bond and operating levy which is necessary to support the proposed Joint Vocational School District and the Madison's own $1,080,000 construction bond issue. One page seven is other business included on the Monday night agenda.

Cleanliness Is Next . . .

D'Alan Huff, superintendent of the Hamilton Local Schools, gave the Junior High Student Council a pat on the back and the green light this week on its latest project. Amy Wong whose father is with the U.S. State Department of Foreign Service in Viet Nam, wrote home begging for soap for the 8,000 refugees from Communism for whom her father is responsible. After hearing his plea that no single item could do so much for so many, the council asked permission for a dance where a bar of soap would serve as a ticket. With Huff's okay, a junior high dance (usually few and far between) is scheduled.

Bexley Girl Wins

Mimi Deaton, a Bexley High School senior, has been selected The Spectator's "High School Journalist of the Year" in the Franklin County area. Other first place achievement winners include: Rita Conard of West (best editorial), Jane Henry of Grandview (best human interest story), Lance Lisle of Bexley (best general news story), Kenneth Marshall of Whetstone (best sports story), Margaret Hemphill of Linden (best personality feature), Lynne Tweed of Bishop Ready (best news feature) and William Rosser of Academy (best photography). All of the student efforts appear in Section B of this week's Spectator . . . the big "Tales Out Of Schools" issue.

Attention Carriers!

The Spectator is offering a chance for its carriers to get their Father's Day gifts now. How? From Tuesday, Mar. 1, to Sunday, May 1, The Spectator is having a subscription contest. And listen to the prize: For every five new paid-in-advance customer subscriptions the carrier turns in, he gets one free ticket (plus meal and transportation) to the doubleheader between the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Mets. Any carrier who gets 10 subscriptions can take Dad along because the game is held Father's Day, June 19. Check with your supervisor or call the Circulation Department (BR. 4-1155) for more details. Get busy and get that special gift for dad and yourself for June 19!

The Issues And The Men

For the first time in history, Franklin County is electing two representatives to Congress. Residents of the eastern half of the county, voters of the 12th Congressional District, will choose between incumbent Samuel L. Devine and the winner of the Democratic May primary election. These voters are centered in such communities as Worthington, Westerville, New Albany, Gahanna, Bexley, Whitehall, Reynoldsburg, Groveport and Canal Winchester. The Spectator has asked Devine and Reynoldsburg Mayor George W. Twyford (Democratic Party-endorsed candidate) to voice their opinions on seven major issues. Their answers, in this Spectator exclusive, appear herewith:

1. What is your opinion of the President's Viet Nam policy?

DEVINE — "Too many unqualified self-appointed 'experts' have too much to say without factual information. The Constitution places the responsibility with the President. Over 2,000 U.S. servicemen have been killed, over 170 missing, over 10,000 wounded, and Johnson's Defense Secretary, after three previous contrary statements now says 'We have stopped losing.' Preoccupation with creating an image in a dual peace-war concept, tailored to the demands of public opinion; making political rather that military judgments, demonstrates a badly confused if not an absence of foreign policy. MacArthur said 'There is no substitute for victory'."

TWYFORD — "At this time, the 'balance of strategy' position taken by President Johnson demonstrates our firm position yet does not jeopardize the possibility of a negotiated peace. As a responsible member of the world community, we cannot adopt a wreckless course of action nor can we pursue a policy of appeasement. This is consistent with the policy established during the Truman-Eisenhower-Kennedy administrations."

2. What do you think of the recent proposal to decrease Federal funds to schools attended by students whose parents are Federally employed?

DEVINE—"The President continues to push hard on an endless number of 'butter' proposals that are certainly not urgent and pressing during this war emergency. He admits to a continuing deficit. His vast spending policies are causing him to reverse his 'tax-cut image,' and in fact repeal reductions in excise, and yes, increase income taxes shortly. In order to place the responsibility on the public, he talks of cuts in the emotion-packed area of children and education, such as the school - lunch program, impacted school areas under P.L. 815 and 874, land grant colleges, etc. Then, when the public resists, he will go the tax increase route, by 'demand'."

TWYFORD—"This proposal meets with my general philosophy that federal aid should be given where the need is supported by facts and figures. I believe that the theory on which such aid is based has not been borne out by the facts as ultimately developed and that the aid should, therefore, be cut consistent with the the burden actually imposed."

3. Have you any criticism of the Federal Welfare programs? Can you offer any positive alternatives?

DEVINE — "Throwing billions of dollars bearing the federal label will not necessarily bury the problems. Bad, politically-oriented administration is clouding many of these programs. Employment will answer the overwhelming majority of the so-called poverty problems; accordingly I have consistently voted for and supported manpower retraining and vocational education legislation."

TWYFORD — "Yes. I am in favor of those programs which were established in response to a genuine human need that could not be met without federal intervention. However, I question the scope of federal participation and the economy practiced in administration of certain programs which waste tax dollars, stifle individual initiative and breed public apathy."

4. How effective is our current foreign aid program?

DEVINE — For whom? We pour over $100,000,000,000 into these international give-away programs, and in return we have our libraries pillaged, embassies burned, flag spat upon and trampled, and are counselled: 'Yankee Go Home' . . . The free world recipients of our aid are rendering pitifully small assistance in the Vietnam crisis, and many continuing shipping and trading with the enemy. By and large, the program is a failure."

TWYFORD — "Foreign aid programs are designed with long-range goals and effectiveness and, therefore, can only be measured in retrospect. Each country must be judged

Area Cagers Beware- Tourney Time Here

By BOB WHITMAN

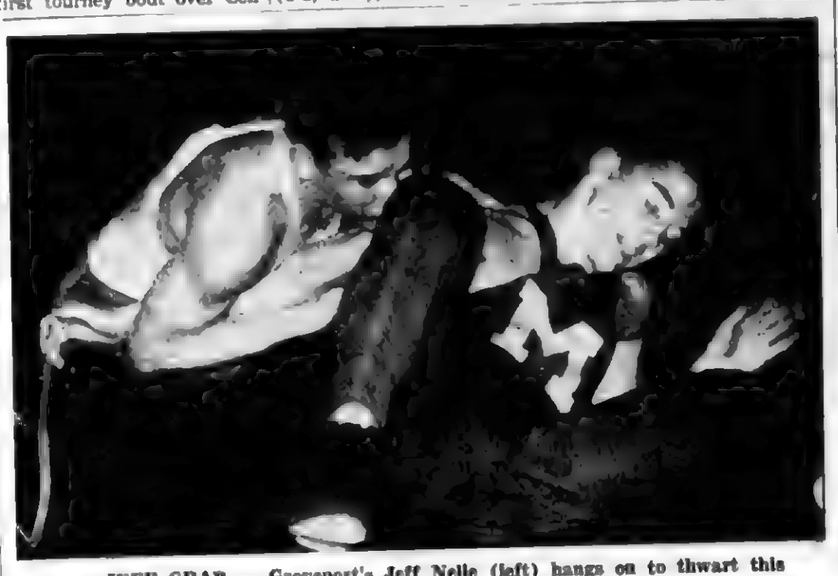
Robert Miller's Canal Winchester crew (13-5) meets top-seeded Madison South from Madison County (14-4) Friday night at 8:30 on the Teays Valley floor at Ashville in the Central District Class A Basketball Tournament.

With that the second session starts for the Indians, and the other Southeastern Spectator area teams.

Teays Valley (10-8) is matched with Whitehall (11-7) on Saturday night in the Central District Class AA tourney held at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Hamilton runs headlong into sixth-seeded Newark, a perennial tourney toughie, Monday night at 9:30, and Groveport 1-15) tackles Olentangy (1-15) tonight in the second game of a three game card that starts at 6.

CANAL WINCHESTER will be fighting an aggressive Madison South team after a 71-68 loss to New Albany. The Eagles, successful in their first tourney bout over Centerburg, 84-50, rode a torrid fourth period shooting hand to their 16th win of the season.



The Indians will match South on the boards almost evenly with 6-4 center Bill Miles yielding an inch to Lion center 6-5 Lynn Stoughton. Miles put together 15 first half points against New Albany and dropped 16 points against Pickerington a game ago to beef up his average and pose a pivot threat for Canal.

MADISON SOUTH offers power scorers in Steve Mitchem, Steve Stewart and Stoughton but will have to combat four double digit scorers in Winchester's Jim Burke (6-2, 15.0), Steve Smith (5-11, 10.2), Dick Whitmer (5-11, 13.1), and Vic Argobright (6-0, 11.3). Miles is a shade under the double figure mark with a 9.2 average.

Miller's elegant scoring balance is enhanced by a trio of first line subs in Dave Ferber, Harris Windsor and Joe Sayre. Sayre turned in a stellar performance in his first starting assignment against New Albany, netting 11 points.

TEAYS VALLEY will have to put the clamps on a trio of double figure men in its first tourney game against Whitehall.

Coach Russ Gregg sizes the Rams up as an "off and on" team, but "teams are always 'on' against us, it seems."

JEFF GRAB — Groveport's Jeff Nelle (left) hangs on to thwart this escape try by Mifflin's Max Herschler Saturday at the Mid-Eight wrestling meet. Nelle remained unbeaten in 133-lb. class with this 6-5 finals verdict and Cruisers won second straight loop mat crown. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

Matmen Vie For 88 District Slots In Sectionals At Whetstone, W-R

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Eight area grapplers in each of 11 weight classes will move one step closer to the state wrestling tourney (Mar. 11-12 at St. John Arena) this weekend with success at Sectional tourneys scheduled for Whetstone and Walnut Ridge.

The winner and runnerup in each class at the four sectionals will advance to district competition the following Friday and Saturday (Mar. 4-5) at Walnut Ridge.

ADMISSION at the sectional tourneys will be $1 for adults (students included) and 50 cents for children (under 12).

Here's the rundown of teams for the sectionals:

SOUTHWEST SECTIONAL (Sat., 1 p.m., at Whetstone)

Central, West, Bishop Ready, Franklin Heights, Pleasant View, Grove City, South, Hamilton Township, Circleville and the Ohio School for the Blind.

NORTHEAST SECTIONAL (Fri., 7 p.m., at Wal. Ridge)

Brookhaven, DeSales, Linden, Westerville, East, Mifflin, North, Bishop Watterson, Newark and Fairfield Union.

SOUTHEAST SECTIONAL (Sat., 1 p.m., at Wal. Ridge)

Whitehall, Bexley, Eastmoor, Walnue Ridge, Bishop Hartley, Groveport, Marion-Franklin, Watkins Memorial, Granville and Liberty Union.

SECTIONAL tourney managers are Tom Beck at Whetstone and Pat McMillen at Walnut Ridge.

SOUTH JUMPED from next to last (five pts. in 1965) to seventh place (29 pts.) in the City League Meet mat tourney last weekend on the Bulldog mats.

East edged West, 85-79, to take the title but George Harper got a first place for South at 175, Lewis Robinson added a second at 165 and heavyweight Roger Caldwell provided a fourth.

Bill Hopson's fourth prevented Marion-Franklin from slipping into last place—the Devils recording three points.

IN THE lone area dual match during the week, Drakirlick's pin-win at heavyweight and decisions by Terry Hopewell and Jim Brown were not enough to prevent a 32-11 M-F setback to Walnut Ridge.

GROVEPORT, making good in five of eight finals berths, nailed down its second straight Mid-Eight League wrestling championship last weekend on the home mats.

The Cruisers piled up 101 points to easily outdistance runnerup Hilliard (79 pts.).

Groveport's big push came between 122 and 165 where Skip Musselman, Jeff Nelle, Bill Nelle, Tim Michael and Jim Dill took championship decisions.

IN THAT span, Jack Woodworth also grabbed a second, losing a tight 5-3 decision to Hilliard's Larry Bryant (ran seasonal mark to 12-0).

Jeff Nelle's championship win ran the 133-pounder's seasonal mark to 18-0.

NEIGHBORING Hamilton Township was not so fortunate at the South Suburban League Meet — the Rangers failing to score and finishing at the other end of the ladder. Franklin Heights outdueled Pleasant View, 83-56, to repeat as SSL mat champion.

SSL Champion Panthers Dominate All-League Team

South Suburban League champion Pleasant View dominated that loop's last All-League basketball team this week at the annual banquet.

The Panthers, who turned in a perfect 6-0 loop log, placed junior Jim Geddes and senior Carl Salyers on the first team, added senior Jeff Coe and junior Marv Rousch to the second team and got an honorable mention for junior Monte Rhoden.

OTHER FIRST team selections were Teays Valley seniors Gerald Green and Rod Teets, Franklin Heights senior Ray Malone and Hamilton Township senior Charlie Hart.

Second team members included the Falcons' Rick Blout and Sherm Griffith, H-T's Russ Mobley, T-V's Butch Kinsell and P-V's Coe and Rousch.

Besides Rhoden, T-V's Gayle Fosnaugh and Gary Wilson and F-H's Mickey Pless gained honorable mention status.

THE SSL dissolves into the new Metropolitan League this spring.

Elks To Honor Marty Karow Wednesday

Elks Lodge No. 37 will hold an Appreciation - Recognition Dinner for OSU baseball coach Marty Karow Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the lodge, 1045 S. High-st.

The Value Of Exile

Last week Juvenile Court Judge John Hill banished a pair of local 16-year-olds from this city because they set off explosions at the homes of several teachers and the principal of Whetstone High School.

It's readily agreed that the youths deserved punishment for their act (which was not just a simple, harmless prank) but understanding the judge's logic in his "sentence" is difficult.

Surely the youths should not be wisked off to a penal institution but sending them to exile—requiring them to continue school outside the city — dovetails with the judge's reported statement that ". . . this court stands behind the schools and we demand respect for the authority of the schools and of the police."

Will this "sentence" or the resulting consequences make a lasting impression on the teenagers now? If the judge had imposed a fine (equal to the damages) payable only by the boys via manual labor, a more permanent impression would have been achieved.

The case brings to mind another youth who damaged a post office box during the depression days. His penalty was to be put to work paying damages at 50-cents a week. The tracks of this youth and the police never crossed again and the youth learned, first hand, the value of property.

If the purpose of the court is to rehabilitate as well as punish, it's hard to understand the lesson to be learned in Judge Hill's "exile" penalty.

Pledges Teacher Protection

Three weeks ago, The Spectator carried a report entitled "The Quiet Turmoil" which cited cases of violence in Franklin County area classrooms.

This week, a political candidate is announcing that he will support legislation "to protect teachers and school administrators from harassment and terror tactics instituted by juveniles and others."

"The Quiet Turmoil" was not meant to be a plank in a political platform. The Spectator is convinced that the candidate, Richard C. Sensenbrenner, who is seeking the Democratic nomination to the Ohio House of Representatives in the 61st district, did not view it that way, either.

Instead, Sensenbrenner is a single man in this community who has decided to come to grips with a cancerous problem. He recognizes the seriousness of the situation and believes in his own heart and mind that the classroom violence needs immediate attention.

"We must consider immediately those steps necessary to halt the invasion of school property, the threats and abuse, and the actual physical violence committed on the homes, property and persons of school teachers."

It's not the most popular political stand in the world, especially since Columbus school administrators in top positions in this city emphatically declare that classroom violence is practically non-existent here.

It's In The Book

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Getting a book published is like getting married: you don't know what you've gotten into until you're there.

Having a novel making the rounds, I have despaired of ever finding it even read, much less published.

One firm to which I sent the manuscript returned it in such mangled shape that the whole 647 pages had to be retyped. Another firm held the book up for four months until I had to ask for it back. And when it was returned they claimed the characters were "diffuse." Not quite sure how they arrived at that conclusion, I learned later. Seems they had dipped down some 250 pages, took out samples from 25 to 50 pages and distributed them to sundry editors. After which, without bothering to put them in order, they stuffed them in the approximate place.

Now how is one to judge characterization, with a random reading of 20 pages in a 647 page work? No wonder the characters were "diffuse."

Somewhere in a little office these people choose and judge what the public will read with no other qualifications than their own taste. "Lust for Life" bounced around for years, as did "Peyton Place" and a number of other best-sellers. Their problem was getting the first reading.

A friend of mine has a novel out, too. One publisher wrote him that he liked the work and that it had some of the best characterization he had ever read. It was, however, too weak in plotting to be of value. The next publisher who read the very same work claimed that the plot was among the finest he had stumbled across but that the characterization was bad.

Stories have been told of readers for publishing houses. One such reader who later became famous as an editor claimed he examined novels on his commuter train and if the manuscript kept him reading beyond his stop, he'd condescend to read it all the way through.

Not only are readers for publishing houses casual, they can be downright rude. I had one short story returned that had jelly and coffee stains on it.

To all aspiring young authors I would give this advice: Be prepared for anything. I once heard of a man whose manuscript was returned with a whole fried egg pressed neatly between the pages.

They Said It

"The Great White Father, LBJ, who is not the most adverse person in the world to publicity, was rather proud of his recent gall bladder operation as attested by the fact that many pictures were taken of the scar. One fellow, who lives down below Oxberry, said that it was a good thing that his operation was not for piles. Another wit quipped in and said that it mightn't have been too bad —the other pictures might have shown him for what many local people think he really is" — Andrew Whitaker in Grenada (Miss.) County Weekly.

"That's More Like The Good Old Days"

Calling Ohioans

By The Spectator's
MICHAEL V. DiSALLE

The threat of a world controlled by a Communistic atheistic philosophy is real and growing each day. It is fed by our impatience and our desire for a peace which we feel we are entitled as a matter of right.

To some, it means that all we need to achieve peace is to wave a magic wand or lay down our weapons. This was the thought behind the uneasy truce reached in Korea. Very few realize that peace has not been achieved there, almost fourteen years after General Eisenhower's dramatic announcement that he would go to Korea.

Perhaps we should begin to wonder where we would be involved next in the steady plan for world-wide Communist aggression if we accept Ho Chi Minh's ultimatum that we leave South Viet Nam. Incidentally, leaving the South Vietnamese to the "fair and impartial elections" promised by the Communists would be like leaving little Red Riding Hood to the fabled gentle wolf.

In Viet Nam, as has been true in other situations, the programmed take over has not been limited in method to just the obvious. The South Vietnamese and their allies have been subjected to attack through subversion behind the battle lines. World-wide propaganda (easily believed against a powerful nation) has been effective. The same people who have complained about "civilian" boombings do not hesitate to use every atrocity to frighten and destroy civilians who do not adhere to their philosophy.

A Matter Of Principles

The attempt to find a just peace formula has been an all consuming activity of President Lyndon B. Johnson. His historic all-front peace offensive is without precedent. Every possible avenue has been — and continues to be — probed. When world-wide opinion seemed to indicate that our bombings stood in the way of peace talks, they were halted. The result was a continuation of the take-over activities of the North Vietnamese, the Red Chinese and the Viet Cong.

One of the surprising developments is the evident willingness of so many Americans to believe the propaganda of the opposition and to doubt the good intentions of their own government. Can anyone believe that our involvement in Viet Nam is politically or economically a benefit to the President of the United States?

We have clearly and constantly indicated our desire for peace. In the past we have paid dearly for our concern for peace. In spite of our acknowledged position of wealth and strength we have not bullied others or sought unreasonably to use this concentration achieved through years of hard work and ingenuity.

Shouldn't those who doubt the good motives of their own government begin to put more belief in our objectives rather than let their judgments be swayed by the words of those who are clearly our enemies?

How long can democracy and free speech continue to exist if our very existence is threatened by partisanship in forming of judgments on our foreign policy? The President's efforts are being constantly slowed down by those who seek political benefits or who fear the political consequences of the war in Viet Nam.

It is about time that they begin to consider not only the political but the all-time consequences of a failure to achieve a just result in Viet Nam.

For a peace resulting from a surrender of principle today could very well mean a loss of freedom tomorrow.

A Time For CD Common Sense

Ohio Senator Stephen Young says that two 200-bed field hospitals have been stored for civil defense purposes at Oak Harbor and Port Clinton, O., since 1958.

The Senator went on to indicate that this situation is duplicated in other cities in Ohio and in other states.

It's hard to understand why officials of the Department of Defense are not making use of such hospital beds and equipment in Viet Nam, Okinawa and Japan where the hospitals of our armed forces are jammed with wounded and sick from Viet Nam.

Our servicemen are being afflicted with malaria and wounded in jungle "booby traps." When these men are injured they are usually placed on temporary cots.

The Civil Defense fallout shelter program, which accounted for storing the hospitals in cities in this state, has, the Senator says, "been a stupendous hoax and waste of taxpayers' money."

New York Mayor John Lindsay has abolished his city's office of civil defense. He said that scrapping it means a considerable saving for the city.

Maybe it's time for this kind of common sense action here.

Letters To The Editor

Did We Play God?

To The Spectator:

Your use of Herblock cartoons and columns by Michael DiSalle and Marquis Childs has led me to hope that The Spectator can take over as another badly needed progressive voice in this community.

But, although I laud its comments on freedom, I am disturbed by your editorial, "Narrowing the Freedom" (Spectator, Feb. 17). The store you mention may well be selling dirty literature and, of course, this is to be deplored. But I don't think a responsible newspaper should place itself in a role it apparently opposes — that of censor. I would think that if you feel you have evidence of law violation you would turn it over to the police and let the matter run its course.

It may be a painful fact of life for some but there is growing realization that nobody can really be a censor; it's too much like playing God. But you do this with your gratuitous comment that the store's offerings "serve no informative, artistic or literary purposes." This is opinion, not fact. And, what about the wants of the disturbed people who buy the publications?

Bob Krause
51 Chatham-rd
Columbus

Editor's Note: Our statement was meant to be one of opinion. That's why we placed it on our editorial page. If a responsible newspaper doesn't speak out when infringements of a community's moral code are made, then that newspaper is not responsible at all. We're progressive — but we're not blind. We don't think you really believe that turning "stool pigeon" or "police officer" is the answer, either.

'That Was No Lady...'

To The Spectator:

You made the statement that Betty Knab is "a lady accountant who's crusading to return burlesque to Columbus" (Feb. 10 Spectator).

Betty Knab may be an accountant but she can't be a lady. No lady would allow her name to be connected with burlesque . . . least of all to promote such filth.

Mrs. P. M.
Grove City, Ohio

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

A Hope We Can Cope

To The Spectator:

Your front page article, "The Quiet Turmoil," (Feb. 10 Spectator) is certainly a much needed one and very well written.

Only an educated, well-informed public can begin to solve the behavior problem in their schools. If only well-balanced, self-disciplined teachers were in the profession instead of being the ones to leave it . . . and if parents were better disciplined adults . . . then our children would have firm guidance and good examples in learning behavior limitations.

This is part of a larger social problem. This "accent on youth" and dominance of children in such affairs as how a large part of family income should be spent . . . these kinds of things reflect an immature adult society.

Could this be fear of publicity? We don't want to face the fact that we can't cope with our kids because we can't cope with ourselves?

An Ex-Teacher
Columbus, Ohio

'Not Hear,' He Says

To The Spectator:

You have, in your manner of writing, done a disservice to the hard of hearing as well as reputable hearing aid offices in our Columbus area ("Columbus in Crisis," Feb. 17 Spectator).

I have no doubt that practices such as you have noted are carried on in a number of areas . . . though I doubt that Columbus has been subjected to these abuses.

You must certainly realize upon reading your own article that it reads like a blanket indictment of all dealers in hearing aids, since you mention no names and offer no evidence whatsoever of these goings on.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON—Generals and admirals thinking in conventional terms of America's past wars have failed to grasp the meaning of limited warfare that would stop short of committing large masses of land troops in Asia. That is the conclusion drawn from the fact that the principal analyst-philosopher of the limited or littoral (coastal region) strategy has never had a serious hearing from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

CHILDS

He is Rear Admiral (Ret.) John D. Hayes, who in 1954 wrote an analysis of peripheral strategy, littoral tactics and limited war. This is an exposition of the kind of proposal made by Lt. Gen. James Gavin for limiting the war in Viet Nam to a series of coastal enclaves. Gavin testified before the Fulbright committee on how his theory could be applied.

Hayes would use ground troops to hold specific areas backed up by the full might of America's sea and air power. Updating his concept of littoral tactics, which he believes will eventually be adopted in Viet Nam, Hayes a year ago quoted from his original thesis in the conviction that its validity cannot be challenged.

"To effect a sound integrated strategy there must be a system of tactics which will fully employ all military specialties. Such a system of tactics for peripheral strategy is one that uses the littoral of the world as the new borders of the United States. The littoral becomes the line from which operations are projected in offense, the line on which defense is conducted."

Failure to understand the potential of the littoral strategy has proved very costly since World War II, Hayes believes. He cites China and Korea as tragic examples of what this failure has meant.

In discussing his littoral strategy Admiral Hayes points to what he believes was a fundamental misconception about China. While on a small-scale map it does appear to be a continental state like Russia, its history for more than a century proves that its great rivers and long coastline are the focus of its power. The coasts of China and Southeast Asia, Hayes observes, are directly exposed to the forces of sea power as continental Russia is not.

Influenced, Hayes believes, by our fixation on Europe we withdrew Marines from North China and two Army divisions from Korea. The last place the Chinese Nationalists abandoned was Hainan, the large island on the South China coast that forms the Gulf of Tonkin. "Almost immediately it was discovered that such a strategy deprived us of all freedom of action, both military and political. Within a year we were back in Asia but with only a foothold on the peninsula of Korea, and at what a bloody cost."

As the Fulbright hearings continue and the escalation of the Vietnamese war raises in acute form the threat of Chinese participation, the question of strategy and a limited war will be more and more to the front. The next step, according to private word from official sources, is to be the mining of Haiphong harbor in order to shut off the flow of supplies to North Viet Nam.

That could bring a showdown not only with China but with the Soviet Union as well. It is the strategy of those who believe "victory" in South Viet Nam can come in the pattern of the past.

Viveca Lindfors To Guest With Otterbein Cast

The Otterbein College Theatre announced today that lovely Swedish actress Viveca Lindfors has been secured as guest artist for this season's professional guest star production. Viveca will be the fifth professional guest artist to appear with the Otterbein College Theatre in as many years when she arrives to play the title role in "The Madwoman of Chaillot," Mar. 3-4-5 on the campus in Westerville.

Recent winner of the best actress award at the Berlin Film Festival for the motion picture, "No Exit," Viveca Lindfors has also received the special award at the Venice Film Festival for the two films, "Wedding and Babies," and "The Damned."

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

In trying to catch all of the entertainment in town, I cover several different types of shows and acts, from the proverbial soup to nuts. Now I would like to tell you about one of the most popular emporiums in town that serves everything from soup to nuts, with a menu containing delectable side dishes of belly dancers and European singers, and for dessert, a swinging dixieland band. Mr. Broad and High himself, Benny Klein, presents the finest, most exciting entertainment in Columbus. Known as "Uncle Benny," by most of his friends, Benny strives to please by serving the very best in food and amusement. Currently appearing at Benny Klein's is Princess Daleailah, an abdominal dancer from Lebanon and Segrid, a continental vocalist from Germany. Daleailah brings to the stage the true ethnic dance of the Middle East. Dressed in colorful, authentic costumes, this cute import presents an interesting act.

Fresh from another part of the world, Segrid adds European flavor to the entertainment at B.K's. Singing in French, German and English, the fraulein has personality and beauty to match her vocal abilities. Backing up the acts and providing the musical portion of the fare, Joe Dunlap and his Dixiecats, has to rate as one of the finest, most solid musical aggregations in the country. With Middle-East dancing, continental singing, dixieland music and Uncle Benny, there is something for everyone. Stop in, you'll have a good time.

National TV Producer Believes In Luck

The other evening yours truly attended a banquet of the Columbus Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. The Columbus Chapter, one of nine in the United States, votes each year for the "Emmy Awards." This award is given to various television shows, writers and producers. The Columbus Chapter contributes much to the community. Scholarships are given to outstanding college students in the field of television. Top professional men are brought to town to work with local TV people to help improve the quality of local programming.

One of the men in Columbus last week, and the feature speaker at the banquet, was John Gudel, the nation's leading television and radio producer. Gudel's three longest lived shows, Art Linkletter's "People Are Funny," (23 years) Linkletter's "House Party," (22 years) and Groucho's "You Bet Your Life," (17 years) have been simulcast via radio and television on a national basis.

During his 28 years as a producer, Gudel has recorded many firsts: singing commercials; summer reruns, and the first adult western, "Frontier Town." He has written for the movies and produced many well-known radio and TV shows.

Gudel believes the old axiom that no matter how much talent one has, it takes a lot of luck. A man loaded with talent, John Gudel is probably one of the funniest people to ever appear in town. He is a writer and producer, but this man is better than any night club comedian you've heard. Yet, with all his abilities, his successful career is based on being at the right place at the right time.

Symphony Preview

Another Columbus Symphony Preview will be given Wednesday, Mar. 2, at 10:30 a.m. at the Fashion. This is one of a series of public service lectures to heighten listener pleasure by increasing his knowledge of the music to be played at the next concert. Evan Whallon will be the feature speaker. There is a 50 cent donation asked.

Salute To TV-4

TV-4's "Dance-O-Rama" colorcast, for the young-at-heart, viewed Saturdays at 11 a.m. and hosted by Jerry Rasor, has been named the top TV bandstand show by Billboard Magazine. "Dance-O-Rama" won first place in competition with all other bandstand programs, including local and network productions seen in this area in a response-rating poll. Produced by Dick Murgatroyd, "Dance-O-Rama" features one of the "Top Ten" recordings across the nation, dance contest, cheerleaders from various high schools and live performances by top recording groups and guest artists.

At The Theaters

HUNT'S CINESTAGE — "THE LOVED ONE."

CINEMA-EAST — "DO NOT DISTURB."

GRAND CINERAMA — "BATTLE OF THE BULGE."

RKO PALACE — "OUR MAN FLINT."

The Community Stage

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

Delicate and tender defines "The Glass Menagerie" as done by Gallery Players. Tennessee Williams' fragile play is treated by director Harold Eisenstein with immense understanding of human qualities. Edye Mendelson's stirring portrayal of the mother is beautiful. Philip Wilson gives an excellent performance as the devoted brother. Bob Connors and Lillian Hubert give able performances in their respective roles as the gentleman and the daughter. This play can be seen through Sunday at the Jewish Center. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

* * *

Two stars move quickly and brightly across the Little Theatre Off Broadway's performance of "'Never Too Late." Complementing each other, Jim Hodges and Johnny Dollar capture every situation with deft humor. This cleverly written comedy is directed by Dick Grace. If one makes it through long scene changes a good play is enjoyed. Shows are this Friday and Saturday at Brookpark Junior High School in Grove City, 8:30 p.m.

Adds Entertainers

The Bowery is adding more, exciting talent. Besides the popular Geoff Tyus Trio, appearing nightly will be the Ravens and several Go-Go Girls direct from New York. Sunday you can still eat all the spaghetti you want and listen to the music of Harry Epp's Muskrat Ramblers.

OSU Students Want Old Books

The Student Education Association of Ohio State University is collecting textbooks to send to students in a remote section of the Philippine Islands starting this week.

The group has put receptacles around the campus and is asking students to donate their used texts rather than selling or keeping them. The main push for the drive will come at the break between quarters. The books will form a reference library for students at Urdaneta, Luzon.

The dearest hope of the parent for his child is that he become all that he is capable of being. This is precisely the goal of school and college and exactly what city, state and nation strive for.—Morris Meister.

Meet Stuart

This is Stuart, hero of the forthcoming "NBC Children's Theatre" production of "Stuart Little," based on E. B. White's book about a mouse born into a New York City family. Stuart, shown here riding on a see-saw in Central Park, is played by a stuffed animal though his parents and brother are portrayed by real people. The story, with Johnny Carson as off-camera narrator, will be presented as a one-hour color TV special on the NBC Television Network Sunday, Mar. 6, on TV-4.

Nagler Paintings On Display

An exhibit, "Thirty Years of Religious Painting by Fred Nagler," long recognized as America's foremost religious painter, is on view at North Broadway Methodist Church through Sunday, Mar. 6. On loan from the Midtown Galleries in New York City, the show consists of 34 works done in woodcut, water color and oil painting.

The public is cordially invited to see the showing in the church's large dining rooms from 1 to 5 p.m. daily. Groups desiring to make special arrangements for morning or evening visits should call the church office, AM. 8-8626.

Engineers Assume 'City Salesmen' Roles

Professional engineers, 17,000 strong—now observing engineering week in Columbus — are training their thoughts on new ways to bring industry into the city.

Engineering officials number 856 manufacturing plants in the city, with an average of 20 engineers each, and cite the city itself as a principal engineering employer with 50 in various departments.

Engineers' societies will devise ways in which their members can become public-relations minded in their dealings with engineers and industrialists in other cities, in order to attract them to Columbus.

The capital is called an "ideal environment" as an engineering, research and technical center:

• Big employers of engineers are already located here, such as North American Aviation, Western Electric, Ternstedt, Buckeye Steel Casting, Jeffrey Manufacturing, and Timken Roller Bearing.

• Ingredients are present for top research development, including Battelle Memorial Institute, Chemical Abstract Service, Ohio State University and Industrial Nucleonics.

• Also important are cultural factors — Columbus Symphony, Gallery of Fine Arts, Museum of Industry and Science, the city's colleges and university, and many other facilities.

The week-long engineering observance opened Monday with a display in city hall built by Western Electric Co. and Bell Laboratories.

Professional engineering societies actively engaged in the observance are, mechanical, electrical, civic, chemical and aeronautical organizations.

The societies participate in career day programs for 12 public high schools in Columbus, six parochial high schools, and a dozen more in the county.

NEED A HEARING AID?

Here's How To Avoid Being 'Swindled'

In answer to readers' inquiries concerning last week's "Columbus In Crisis" story on hearing aid sales racketeering, The Spectator offers the following guide to anyone considering the purchase of a hearing aid:

1. Be sure you have a proper evaluation of your hearing loss. Talk it over with your doctor and family.

2. Check the yellow pages of your phone directory to see if the company from which you plan to purchase is established locally.

3. Check the price by comparing it with those of brand-name aids.

4. Demand money-back privileges in case the aid doesn't satisfy you.

5. Ask for a trial before you complete and business agreement — if you can't hear with the aid when it's demonstrated, it is unlikely you'll hear with it a month later.

6. Beware of incomplete finance papers, or those not fully presented. Be sure of purchase price, interest rates and length of time allowed for payment.

7. Check your guarantee —it's only as good as the dealer who honors it.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Grodell Is 'Policeman Of Year'

Columbus Chief of Police George W. Scholer announced the selection of Patrolman Stanley Grodell for the award of Policeman of the Year. The award was presented by the Exchange Club of Columbus at their noon luncheon on Thursday, Feb. 17, at the Neil House Hotel. Officer Grodell was selected from a list of 11 nominees submitted by their immediate superiors. The selection was based on the officers' performance of everyday duties during 1965. Officer Grodell is a 15-year veteran of the Division of Police. He resides with his wife, Mary, and their four children at 4471 Kenfield-rd.

Women Voters Speak Out For '1-Man, 1-Vote'

The League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Columbus believes that the "one-man, one-vote" standard for apportionment of state legislatures should be maintained.

Members of the League of Women Voters throughout the United States have given intensive study to the issues involved in apportionment, and their nationwide consensus is in agreement with the position taken by the members of the Columbus League.

A statement of position on apportionment of state legislature was issued by the National Board of the League of Women Voters of the United States on Jan. 12, 1966.

Columbus league president, Mrs. Burton Schildhouse has written to Senators Lausche and Young and to Congressmen Devine and Sweeney, outlining the league position and asking them to join in opposition to any proposed constitutional amendment which would allow for consideration of factors other than population in apportionment of state legislatures.

Scientists Mark 100th Anniversary

Christian Scientists throughout the country begin today a year-long observance of their 100th anniversary, according to The Christian Science Board of Directors of The Mother Church in Boston, Mass.

There are three Christian Science churches in Columbus along with the Upper Arlington Christian Science Society. The churches are located at 457 E. Broad-st (First Church), 871 N. Park-st (Second Church) and 3989 N. High-st (Third Church).

Major events of the observance include a worldwide public speaking tour by Erwin Canham, editor-in-chief of The Christian Science Monitor.

Canham will not appear in Columbus. However, Christian Scientists here may attend his talks in Cleveland (May 7) and Cincinnati (June 3).

The centennial stems from events in 1866 which marked the turning point in the life of Mary Baker Eddy and began her pioneering of a world religious movement.

Better Drivers Deserve and Get Better Rates at Grange Mutual . . .

No. 1 As a better driver you deserve and get better rates from Grange Mutual. Why pay for the careless drivers when Grange Mutual's insurance is sealed to your individual record. The fewer accidents YOU've had, the lower YOUR rates.

No. 2 As a young married man (21 to 24 years) with children, YOU deserve and get special rates at Grange Mutual. We know that YOU, as a young parent, are a safe, responsible driver.

No. 3 Take advantage of our new drive-to-work rates. Why pay higher rates for driving over twenty miles to work?

No. 4 Grange Mutual is proud to award lower rates to young drivers under 21 who have successfully completed recognized driver-training courses. We urge all parents to suggest driver-training courses to their children.

No. 5 If you are a resident student over 100 miles from home and only drive the family car occasionally YOU receive the same low rates as married drivers pay.

No. 6 Grange Mutual recognizes the safe driving habits of farmers with much lower rates at much greater savings.

No. 7 Women drivers under 25 with good driving records pay less.

Grange Mutual Policyholders who are better drivers qualify in the above seven categories. The Grange Mutual representative will be happy to give you complete details and figure YOUR exact rates.

1,000 Trees By Spring

Canal Winchester's newest committee, that of Parks and Beautification, headed by Harry Doan, has had its immediate work cut out by the Planning Commission of the village. The planners have asked that at least 1,000 trees be planted before Arbor Day and recommends that that Doan's group immediately determine the types that are advisable, their cost, methods of purchase and distribution. Planners have also asked for guidelines concerning required distances from property lines and thoroughfares.

Colonel Wins Medal

Col. C. J. Jackson, 840th Air Division director of operations, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in the Dominican Republic. The medal, the nation's eighth highest decoration, was presented to Col. Jackson by Brig. Gen. Robert R. Linvill, commander of the U.S. Forces, Dominican Republic, during a recent ceremony. Col. Jackson's citation read in part: ". . . The professionalism and resourcefulness in which Col. Jackson carried out his responsibilities aided significantly in the fulfillment of national policies . . ."

Col. C. J. Jackson

He Answered The Call

With the theme "A Call to Leadership" Omer P. Bohl, 8210 Wright-rd, Canal Winchester, picked up the reins of the Southern Kiwanis Club when the new slate of officers was installed recently. Other officials for 1966 are the Rev. Ray F. Schutz, 276 Deer Trail-rd, Reynoldsburg, president-elect; Albert Braverman, first vice-president; Kenney Wohlforth, second vice-president; Michael T. Lower, secretary, and Albert S. Justus, treasurer. The club, organized in 1957, meets each Tuesday noon at Piketon Lanes.

It's Simply Symphonic

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Evan Whallon, will present two concerts for Hamilton High students in their auditorium, Thursday, Mar. 3. The first concert at 9 a.m. for senior high students will be followed by one for junior high boys and girls at 10 a.m. Mr. Peck, assistant instrumental teacher at Hamilton, will be on double duty that day, as he plays the bassoon with the Columbus Symphony.

AREA WOMEN TO ATTEND

World Day Of Prayer

Tomorrow, Feb. 25, marks the 80th observance of the World Day of Prayer sponsored in the U.S. by the United Church Women. Columbus and Franklin County churches will join Christians in 125 countries on six continents in earnest prayer for each other and for the whole world that righteousness and peace and love may prevail.

This year's theme, "Ye Are My Witnesses," stresses the importance of the laity witnessing by action in the life of the world. The service was prepared by church women in Scotland and is used in all parts of the globe.

Twenty churches on the South Side will join in a World Day of Prayer service at South Congregational Church, 16 E. Stewart-av, at 7:45 p.m. Participating are: Mrs. Delbert Eseman, Wagner Avenue EUB; Mrs. George Evans, Clair Methodist; Mrs. Robert Nitsche, St. Paul's United Church of Christ; Mrs. Karl Dawson, Obetz Christian; Mrs. Anthony Christ, Mrs. Robert Adams, Thurman Avenue Methodist.

Mrs. Connie Humphrey, Mrs. Harold Call, Washington Avenue EUB; Mrs. Paul Starrett, Gates-Fourth Methodist; Mrs. Maggie Smith, Hosack Baptist; Mrs. James Nelson, Ohio Avenue EUB; Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, Hope EUB; Mrs. Frank Moore, South Methodist; Mrs. Wilbur Smith, South High EUB; Mrs. C. E. Boyd, Mrs. Robert Ailing, host church.

Mrs. Ulysses Scarver, Clair Methodist, is guest soloist, Mrs. George Goodfleisch, host church, is organist, and Mrs. Ray Kuehner, Gates-Fourth Methodist, will accompany on the piano.

Mrs. Merle Kenny, 407 Siebert-st, is area chairman.

At David's United Church of Christ, corner Columbus and Washington-sts, Canal Winchester the service is at 8 p.m. All four local churches are cooperating in this service with special music by the host church choir and meditation by the Rev. Willis Alspach.

In charge of planning this service are: Mrs. Guy H. Porter, chairman, host church; Mrs. Dale Miller, Evangelical United Brethren; Mrs. Russell Bachman, David's Ltheran, and Mrs. Harry Lewis, Methodist Church.

At Lockbourne Methodist Church, Plumb-rd, Lockbourne, the service is at 8 p.m. The Rev. Charles Hill, host church pastor, will bring the meditation. Others participating are: Mrs. David Zinks, St. Matthew Lutheran; Mrs. Lloyd Zimmerman, Groveport Methodist; Miss Jennie Caylor, Shadeville Methodist; Mrs. Ida Potts, Obetz Methodist; Mrs. Raymond Hann, Walnut Hill Methodist; Mrs. Ruth Painter, Groveport Lutheran, and Mrs. Frank Peters, of the host church. Mrs. Edson Doersam is chairman.

IN MOTHER'S DANCE STEPS

GO THE THREE RHYTHMICAL daughters of Mrs. Herb Poenisch, 3034 Courtright-rd, perennial favorites at the annual Minstrel Show sponsored by the Groveport Community Players Club. From left are Linda Sheila and Mrs. Poenisch with little Terri up front. The 1966 show made its debut last week and the curtain will go upon the final performance this Saturday night in the Groveport Elementary auditorium at 8 p.m.

Although Canal Winchester Council members agree that the latch string is out, as far as they are concerned for all new business, they declined the invitation to back a specific lending institution.

The decision was made when a building and loan association which wishes to establish a bank in the village asked for a favorable letter for presentation at the hearing in Washington Feb. 28 on the request.

Bids will be opened at noon Mar. 11 for the improvement and enlargement of the municipal swimming poool. No additional taxes will be levied and at least for the present, it will be financed by a note bearing three and one - half percent interest granted by the local branch of the Huntington National Bank. The Canal Winchester Bank offered like financing.

This rate is regarded as lower than the cost of bonds which will be issued if the notes are not retired in a relatively short length of time.

With the bids received recently for the proposed municipal garage rejected as too far above estimates, council will meet in special session next Monday to consider the recommendations of the building committee headed by Gilbert Guyler on how to modify specifications.

Unwilling to pay more than $22,000 for the facility to store and repair village equipment, councilmen believe costs can be pared by including alternates, and postponing some improvements, such as the concrete flooring.

At the same meeting details for remodeling of the new municipal building will be considered. It has been determined that the old bank building is not adaptable for a library and for the present local residents will use the facilities of Wagnall Memorial and the city officials will move into their new home.

This fact became clear when a representative of the Board of Public Affairs dittoed a previous council recommendation that the rates be studied in view of the present limited revenue.

Both groups realize that the peak period of bond retirement payments is coming up in 1970, and feel the crisis must be met now.

Council girded itself for a wrangle with local businessmen when it generally agreed with Mayor Mike Miller that angle parking on High-st is a safety hazard and must be discontinued. (Previous attempts to require lateral parking has brought howls of protest from the merchants.)

The mayor's request for 100 new speed zone parking signs (25, 35, 50 MPH, Reduce Speed, Stop and Radar) and the employment of an additional part-time policeman were referred to the traffic committee.

An ordinance was passed setting up the board of zoning appeals with two members serving one-year terms, and three others two-year terms. Approval was given to Miller's appointment of Kenneth Argobright and Kenneth Duffy to fill the former, and Paul Harmon, Robert Wood and J. Howard Artz to fill the longer terms.

This was passed in accordance with the recommendation of planning commission as well as another amendment to the zoning ordinance governing rezoning application fees.

In the future, in addition to a $25 flat fee, applicant will be charged for all advertising and other expense.

Other business included the okay for installation of four new street lights and the study of blanket insurance coverage which promises to reduce premiums on the annual $2500 bill by one-third.

Dams Eyed To Halt SE Floods

It's only an "infant" but the Little Walnut Water Shed District is born.

The idea was conceived by Pickaway County farmers plagued by floods and Franklin and Pickaway County residents quickly got on the bandwagon.

This week the county steering committee chairmen (Art McCollister of Franklin, Thornton Smith of Fairfield and Everett Beers of Pickaway) met at Wagnalls Memorial with the extension and conservation agents with whom they are working closely.

Primarily interested in solving Walnut flooding problems, they are considering dams as a direct answer.

However other water users (Lithopolis suffers from too little rather than too much water), general flood control practices and possibilities of aquatic recreation are under study.

The problems of the Little Walnut, which originates near Buckeye Lake and empties into the Scioto River in Pickaway County, particularly affects the villages of Groveport, Canal Winchester, Ashville and Baltimore.

Asbury Addition Construction

Winning Race Against Time

Madison Local School Board received some unexpected good news this week, and, according to superintendent Phil Williams, it's just in time.

The news came from the contractors that the Asbury Elementary addition is better than half-completed and the classrooms will be ready for occupancy late next month or early in April.

The timeliness of the announcement was underlined when Williams reported that enrollment has jumped almost 70 students in the last three weeks, Brice (which has previously taken the Asbury overflow) is practically filled, and pupils are coming in daily as new homes in Blacklick Estates are being occupied.

The board adopted the policy of making tuberculin tests mandatory for first, seventh and 11th grade students, effective next year.

In the past and during the current program, it is an optional test with written parental permission required The drawback to this procedure, Williams explained, is that only about half of the students elect to take the tests and the diagnosis of the TB rate in the district is limited.

Mrs. Ann Reichelderfer was appointed to take the annual school enumeration at a salary of 10 cents a child. To enable more efficient planning, all children up to age 17 will be included instead of only those between five and 17.

With the district eligible for better than $30,000 in federal funds to develop "communicative skills," among the students, a project is under way to develop libraries under the senior high level and to plan a remedial reading program this summer. Yet incomplete, the program will be submitted for board approval as soon as possible.

A plan through which the high school library can be brought up to minimum state standards and headway made in establishing a library for the new junior high with matching federal funds will be submitted in March.

The resignation of Arthur Johnson, seventh grade English teacher, was accepted, effective at the end of the current school year.

Businessmen Warned Industry Demands Hard Facts, Not Fancy

Groveport businessmen were warned this week that industry is not gullible and has a thousand questions before it considers moving into a new area.

The warning came from Jarold Raab, Jr., one of "Rhodes' Raiders" (more specifically, a group manager of the sales division of the Development Department of Ohio).

He had been invited to speak before the Groveport Businessmen's Association to bring them up-to-date on the serious business of attracting industry to the community. (Of the city officials invited to attend only Robert Rohr of the planning commission and Mrs. Opal Rohr, city clerk, were present).

Raab advised the group that before inviting industry, land should be properly zoned and available, utilities established and exhaustive statistics be gathered. (These should cover churches, schools, recreation facilities, housing, communication media, civic organizations, transportation, taxes, census figures, climate, government and so forth).

He suggested a brochure, not necessarily elaborate, be compiled.

"A community must be prepared to answer the questions management itself must ponder before making the final decision," Raab explained.

He stressed that the effort pays off well to a community with every new industrial job providing three additional non-related jobs.

The state representative also brought out that Ohio communities have a head start in their pursuit of industry. This is because that within 500 miles of the state are 120,200,000 potential customers; Ohio enjoys the lowest state and local taxes of any comparable industrial state: the human resources and education facilities are unexcelled, and interstate highways and air facilities are tops.

The Issues And The Men

on its individual merits. The history of our programs shows some notable successes such as the Marshall Plan in Europe. We should not, however, give foreign aid a blank check. We must, nevertheless, help certain countries to help themselves in cases where there is a reasonable basis to anticipate success in stemming the tide of Communism."

5. Where do you stand on the question of fluoridation?

DEVINE—"This is a local problem to be determined on a local level, not another area for Federal intervention."

TWYFORD — "Although this is strictly a local issue and not one to be determined by Congress, I accept the vast majority of responsible medical opinion which favors fluoridation at this time. However, certain unknown factors may alter their opinion as experience develops."

6. Are you for or against the repeal of Section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Law?

DEVINE — "I opposed and voted against repeal of 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Law. The issue involved here is whether the several States may retain the right, freedom of choice, to determine whether their people or legislatures want a compulsory union membership or 'right to work' laws. The people in Ohio made their choice in 1958. Nineteen other States made the opposite choice, but the key issue is that they had the right to make the choice, and exercised it. Repeal of 14(b) would erase the State laws on the subject and deny the freedom of choice."

TWYFORD — "I believe that it is in the best interests of both labor and business of Ohio that Section 14(b) be repealed. The integrity of the labor movement in this country must be maintained if we are to preserve our free enterprise system. Since the Ohio voters overwhelmingly rejected the right-to-work law, Ohio businessmen are at a distinct disadvantage competitively with sister states who have enacted a right-to-work legislation."

7. What are your feelings concerning the reapportionment of the State of Ohio?

DEVINE—"This has already been done and the question is moot unless there is a Constitutional Amendment. By and large, however, I don't look for too much favor on big-city political machine control of either branch of our State Legislative bodies, and I believe you will find that will happen as a result of the recent reapportionment."

TWYFORD — "The Supreme Court has spoken on this issue and upheld the current reapportionment plan. I believe that the one-man, one-vote rule as a basis for the plan is democratically sound. Since the courts have upheld the mechanics of the implementation of such rule, I shall abide by their decision. Certainly Franklin County benefits in relationships to the former apportionment in which rural counties enjoyed this proportionate representation."

Engineers Assume 'City Salesmen' Roles

Professional engineers, 17,000 strong—now observing engineering week in Columbus — are training their thoughts on new ways to bring industry into the city.

Engineering officials number 856 manufacturing plants in the city, with an average of 20 engineers each, and cite the city itself as a principal engineering employer with 50 in various departments.

Engineers' societies will devise ways in which their members can become public-relations minded in their dealings with engineers and industrialists in other cities, in order to attract them to Columbus.

The capital is called an "ideal environment" as an engineering, research and technical center:

• Big employers of engineers are already located here, such as North American Aviation, Western Electric, Ternstedt, Buckeye Steel Casting, Jeffrey Manufacturing, and Timken Roller Bearing.

• Ingredients are present for top research development, including Battelle Memorial Institute, Chemical Abstract Service, Ohio State University and Industrial Nucleonics.

• Also important are cultural factors — Columbus Symphony, Gallery of Fine Arts, Museum of Industry and Science, the city's colleges and university, and many other facilities.

The week-long engineering observance opened Monday with a display in city hall built by Western Electric Co. and Bell Laboratories.

Professional engineering societies actively engaged in the observance are, mechanical, electrical, civic, chemical and aeronautical organizations.

The societies participate in career day programs for 12 public high schools in Columbus, six parochial high schools, and a dozen more in the county.

NEED A HEARING AID?

Here's How To Avoid Being 'Swindled'

In answer to readers' inquiries concerning last week's "Columbus In Crisis" story on hearing aid sales racketeering, The Spectator offers the following guide to anyone considering the purchase of a hearing aid:

1. Be sure you have a proper evaluation of your hearing loss. Talk it over with your doctor and family.

2. Check the yellow pages of your phone directory to see if the company from which you plan to purchase is established locally.

3. Check the price by comparing it with those of brand-name aids.

4. Demand money-back privileges in case the aid doesn't satisfy you.

5. Ask for a trial before you complete and business agreement — if you can't hear with the aid when it's demonstrated, it is unlikely you'll hear with it a month later.

6. Beware of incomplete finance papers, or those not fully presented. Be sure of purchase price, interest rates and length of time allowed for payment.

7. Check your guarantee —it's only as good as the dealer who honors it.

Women Voters Speak Out For '1-Man, 1-Vote'

The League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Columbus believes that the "one-man, one-vote" standard for apportionment of state legislatures should be maintained.

Members of the League of Women Voters throughout the United States have given intensive study to the issues involved in apportionment, and their nationwide consensus is in agreement with the position taken by the members of the Columbus League.

A statement of position on apportionment of state legislature was issued by the National Board of the League of Women Voters of the United States on Jan. 12, 1966.

Columbus league president, Mrs. Burton Schildhouse has written to Senators Lausche and Young and to Congressmen Devine and Sweeney, outlining the league position and asking them to join in opposition to any proposed constitutional amendment which would allow for consideration of factors other than population in apportionment of state legislatures.

Scientists Mark 100th Anniversary

Christian Scientists throughout the country begin today a year-long observance of their 100th anniversary, according to The Christian Science Board of Directors of The Mother Church in Boston, Mass.

There are three Christian Science churches in Columbus along with the Upper Arlington Christian Science Society. The churches are located at 457 E. Broad-st (First Church), 871 N. Park-st (Second Church) and 3989 N. High-st (Third Church).

Major events of the observance include a world-wide public speaking tour by Erwin Canham, editor-in-chief of The Christian Science Monitor.

Canham will not appear in Columbus. However, Christian Scientists here may attend his talks in Cleveland (May 7) and Cincinnati (June 3).

The centennial stems from events in 1866 which marked the turning point in the life of Mary Baker Eddy and began her pioneering of a world religious movement.

1,000 Trees By Spring

Canal Winchester's newest committee, that of Parks and Beautification, headed by Harry Doan, has had its immediate work cut out by the Planning Commission of the village. The planners have asked that at least 1,000 trees be planted before Arbor Day and recommends that that Doan's group immediately determine the types that are advisable, their cost, methods of purchase and distribution. Planners have also asked for guidelines concerning required distances from property lines and thoroughfares.

Colonel Wins Medal

Col. C. J. Jackson, 840th Air Division director of operations, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in the Dominican Republic. The medal, the nation's eighth highest decoration, was presented to Col. Jackson by Brig. Gen. Robert R. Linvill, commander of the U.S. Forces, Dominican Republic, during a recent ceremony. Col. Jackson's citation read in part: ". . . The professionalism and resourcefulness in which Col. Jackson carried out his responsibilities aided significantly in the fulfillment of national policies . . ."

Col. C. J. Jackson

He Answered The Call

With the theme "A Call to Leadership" Omer P. Bohl, 6210 Wright-rd, Canal Winchester, picked up the reins of the Southern Kiwanis Club when the new slate of officers was installed recently. Other officials for 1966 are the Rev. Ray F. Schutz, 276 Deer Trail-rd, Reynoldsburg, president-elect; Albert Braverman, first vice-president; Kenney Wohlforth, second vice-president; Michael T. Lower, secretary, and Albert S. Justus, treasurer. The club, organized in 1957, meets each Tuesday noon at Piketon Lanes.

It's Simply Symphonic

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Evan Whallon, will present two concerts for Hamilton High students in their auditorium, Thursday, Mar. 3. The first concert at 9 a.m. for senior high students will be followed by one for junior high boys and girls at 10 a.m. Mr. Peck, assistant instrumental teacher at Hamilton, will be on double duty that day, as he plays the bassoon with the Columbus Symphony.

AREA WOMEN TO ATTEND

World Day Of Prayer

Tomorrow, Feb. 25, marks the 80th observance of the World Day of Prayer sponsored in the U.S. by the United Church Women. Columbus and Franklin County churches will join Christians in 125 countries on six continents in earnest prayer for each other and for the whole world that righteousness and peace and love may prevail.

This year's theme, "Ye Are My Witnesses," stresses the importance of the laity witnessing by action in the life of the world. The service was prepared by church women in Scotland and is used in all parts of the globe.

Twenty churches on the South Side will join in a World Day of Prayer service at South Congregational Church, 16 E. Stewart-av, at 7:45 p.m. Participating are: Mrs. Delbert Eseman, Wagner Avenue EUB; Mrs. George Evans, Clair Methodist; Mrs. Robert Nitsche, St. Paul's United Church of Christ; Mrs. Karl Dawson, Obetz Christian; Mrs. Anthony Christ, Mrs. Robert Adams, Thurman Avenue Methodist.

Mrs. Connie Humphrey, Mrs. Harold Call, Washington Avenue EUB; Mrs. Paul Starrett, Gates-Fourth Methodist; Mrs. Maggie Smith, Hosack Baptist; Mrs. James Nelson, Ohio Avenue EUB; Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, Hope EUB; Mrs. Frank Moore, South Methodist; Mrs. Wilbur Smith, South High EUB; Mrs. C. E. Boyd, Mrs. Robert Ailing, host church.

Mrs. Ulysses Scarver, Clair Methodist, is guest soloist, Mrs. George Goodfleisch, host church, is organist, and Mrs. Ray Kuehner, Gates-Fourth Methodist, will accompany on the piano.

Mrs. Merle Kenny, 407 Siebert-st, is area chairman.

At David's United Church of Christ, corner Columbus and Washington-sts, Canal Winchester the service is at 8 p.m. All four local churches are cooperating in this service with special music by the host church choir and meditation by the Rev. Willis Alspach.

In charge of planning this service are: Mrs. Guy H. Porter, chairman, host church; Mrs. Dale Miller, Evangelical United Brethren; Mrs. Russell Bachman, David's Ltheran, and Mrs. Harry Lewis, Methodist Church.

At Lockbourne Methodist Church, Plumb-rd, Lockbourne, the service is at 8 p.m. The Rev. Charles Hill, host church pastor, will bring the meditation. Others participating are: Mrs. David Zinks, St. Matthew Lutheran; Mrs. Lloyd Zimmerman, Groveport Methodist; Miss Jennie Caylor, Shadeville Methodist; Mrs. Ida Potts, Obetz Methodist; Mrs. Raymond Hann, Walnut Hill Methodist; Mrs. Ruth Painter, Groveport Lutheran, and Mrs. Frank Peters, of the host church. Mrs. Edson Doersam is chairman.

Council Takes Hands-Off Stand On Building And Loan's Proposal

Although Canal Winchester Council members agree that the latch string is out, as far as they are concerned for all new business, they declined the invitation to back a specific lending institution.

The decision was made when a building and loan association which wishes to establish a bank in the village asked for a favorable letter for presentation at the hearing in Washington Feb. 28 on the request.

Bids will be opened at noon Mar. 11 for the improvement and enlargement of the municipal swimming poool. No additional taxes will be levied and at least for the present, it will be financed by a note bearing three and one - half percent interest granted by the local branch of the Huntington National Bank. The Canal Winchester Bank offered like financing.

This rate is regarded as lower than the cost of bonds which will be issued if the notes are not retired in a relatively short length of time.

With the bids received recently for the proposed municipal garage rejected as too far above estimates, council will meet in special session next Monday to consider the recommendations of the building committee headed by Gilbert Guyler on how to modify specifications.

Unwilling to pay more than $22,000 for the facility to store and repair village equipment, councilmen believe costs can be pared by including alternates, and postponing some improvements, such as the concrete flooring.

At the same meeting details for remodeling of the new municipal building will be considered. It has been determined that the old bank building is not adaptable for a library and for the present local residents will use the facilities of Wagnall Memorial and the city officials will move into their new home.

This fact became clear when a representative of the Board of Public Affairs dittoed a previous council recommendation that the rates be studied in view of the present limited revenue.

Both groups realize that the peak period of bond retirement payments is coming up in 1970, and feel the crisis must be met now.

Council girded itself for a wrangle with local businessmen when it generally agreed with Mayor Mike Miller that angle parking on High-st is a safety hazard and must be discontinued. (Previous attempts to require lateral parking has brought howls of protest from the merchants.)

The mayor's request for 100 new speed zone parking signs (25, 35, 50 MPH, Reduce Speed, Stop and Radar) and the employment of an additional part-time policeman were referred to the traffic committee.

An ordinance was passed setting up the board of zoning appeals with two members serving one-year terms, and three others two-year terms. Approval was given to Miller's appointment of Kenneth Argobright and Kenneth Duffy to fill the former, and Paul Harmon, Robert Wood and J. Howard Artz to fill the longer terms.

This was passed in accordance with the recommendation of planning commission as well as another amendment to the zoning ordinance governing rezoning application fees.

In the future, in addition to a $25 flat fee, applicant will be charged for all advertising and other expense.

Other business included the okay for installation of four new street lights and the study of blanket insurance coverage which promises to reduce premiums on the annual $2500 bill by one-third.

Methodists Meet

Dams Eyed To Halt SE Floods

It's only an "infant" but the Little Walnut Water Shed District is born.

The idea was conceived by Pickaway County farmers plagued by floods and Franklin and Pickaway County residents quickly got on the bandwagon.

This week the county steering committee chairmen (Art McCollister of Franklin, Thornton Smith of Fairfield and Everett Beers of Pickaway) met at Wagnalls Memorial with the extension and conservation agents with whom they are working closely.

Primarily interested in solving Walnut flooding problems, they are considering dams as a direct answer.

However other water users (Lithopolis suffers from too little rather than too much water), general flood control practices and possibilities of aquatic recreation are under study.

The problems of the Little Walnut, which originates near Buckeye Lake and empties into the Scioto River in Pickaway County, particularly affects the villages of Groveport, Canal Winchester, Ashville and Baltimore.

Asbury Addition Construction

Winning Race Against Time

Madison Local School Board received some unexpected good news this week, and, according to superintendent Phil Williams, it's just in time.

The news came from the contractors that the Asbury Elementary addition is better than half-completed and the classrooms will be ready for occupancy late next month or early in April.

The timeliness of the announcement was underlined when Williams reported that enrollment has jumped almost 70 students in the last three weeks, Brice (which has previously taken the Asbury overflow) is practically filled, and pupils are coming in daily as new homes in Blacklick Estates are being occupied.

The board adopted the policy of making tuberculin tests mandatory for first, seventh and 11th grade students, effective next year.

In the past and during the current program, it is an optional test with written parental permission required The drawback to this procedure, Williams explained, is that only about half of the students elect to take the tests and the diagnosis of the TB rate in the district is limited.

Mrs. Ann Reichelderfer was appointed to take the annual school enumeration at a salary of 10 cents a child. To enable more efficient planning, all children up to age 17 will be included instead of only those between five and 17.

With the district eligible for better than $30,000 in federal funds to develop "communicative skills," among the students, a project is under way to develop libraries under the senior high level and to plan a remedial reading program this summer. Yet incomplete, the program will be submitted for board approval as soon as possible.

A plan through which the high school library can be brought up to minimum state standards and headway made in establishing a library for the new junior high with matching federal funds will be submitted in March.

The resignation of Arthur Johnson, seventh grade English teacher, was accepted, effective at the end of the current school year.

Businessmen Warned Industry Demands Hard Facts, Not Fancy

Groveport businessmen were warned this week that industry is not gullible and has a thousand questions before it considers moving into a new area.

The warning came from Jarold Raab, Jr., one of "Rhodes' Raiders" (more specifically, a group manager of the sales division of the Development Department of Ohio).

He had been invited to speak before the Groveport Businessmen's Association to bring them up-to-date on the serious business of attracting industry to the community. (Of the city officials invited to attend only Robert Rohr of the planning commission and Mrs. Opal Rohr, city clerk, were present).

Raab advised the group that before inviting industry, land should be properly zoned and available, utilities established and exhaustive statistics be gathered. (These should cover churches, schools, recreation facilities, housing, communication media, civic organizations, transportation, taxes, census figures, climate, government and so forth).

He suggested a brochure, not necessarily elaborate, be compiled.

"A community must be prepared to answer the questions management itself must ponder before making the final decision," Raab explained.

He stressed that the effort pays off well to a community with every new industrial job providing three additional non-related jobs.

The state representative also brought out that Ohio communities have a head start in their pursuit of industry. This is because that within 500 miles of the state are 120,200,000 potential customers; Ohio enjoys the lowest state and local taxes of any comparable industrial state; the human resources and education facilities are unexcelled, and interstate highways and air facilities are tops.

The Issues And The Men

on its individual merits. The history of our programs shows some notable successes such as the Marshall Plan in Europe. We should not, however, give foreign aid a blank check. We must, nevertheless, help certain countries to help themselves in cases where there is a reasonable basis to anticipate success in stemming the tide of Communism."

5. Where do you stand on the question of fluoridation?

DEVINE—"This is a local problem to be determined on a local level, not another area for Federal intervention."

TWYFORD — "Although this is strictly a local issue and not one to be determined by Congress, I accept the vast majority of responsible medical opinion which favors fluoridation at this time. However, certain unknown factors may alter their opinion as experience develops."

6. Are you for or against the repeal of Section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Law?

DEVINE — "I opposed and voted against repeal of 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Law. The issue involved here is whether the several States may retain the right, freedom of choice, to determine whether their people or legislatures want a compulsory union membership or 'right to work' laws. The people in Ohio made their choice in 1958. Nineteen other States made the opposite choice, but the key issue is that they had the right to make the choice, and exercised it. Repeal of 14(b) would erase the State laws on the subject and deny the freedom of choice."

TWYFORD — "I believe that it is in the best interests of both labor and business of Ohio that Section 14(b) be repealed. The integrity of the labor movement in this country must be maintained if we are to preserve our free enterprise system. Since the Ohio voters overwhelmingly rejected the right-to-work law, Ohio businessmen are at a distinct disadvantage competitively with sister states who have enacted a right-to-work legislation."

7. What are your feelings concerning the reapportionment of the State of Ohio?

DEVINE—"This has already been done and the question is moot unless there is a Constitutional Amendment. By and large, however, I don't look for too much favor on big-city political machine control of either branch of our State Legislative bodies, and I believe you will find that will happen as a result of the recent reapportionment."

TWYFORD — "The Supreme Court has spoken on this issue and upheld the current reapportionment plan. I believe that the one-man, one-vote rule as a basis for the plan is democratically sound. Since the courts have upheld the mechanics of the implementation of such rule, I shall abide by their decision. Certainly Franklin County benefits in relationships to the former apportionment in which rural counties enjoyed this proportionate representation."

HAVE YOU EVER WONDERED

WHY MOST TEMPORARY OFFICE WORKERS CHOOSE MANPOWER?

Five Reasons:

1. They like the friendly treatment they get — no red tape — no waiting — IMMEDIATE assignments for qualified girls.
2. They like the pay — top rates according to your skills.
3. They like the respect and recognition that Manpower "White Gloves" bring them.
4. They like the assignments — top firms in the city use Manpower "White Glove Girls" — 93% of all qualified applicants in the past 90 days were working within 1 week of coming in.
5. They like the FREE CTP Program — a brush-up course designed to sharpen their office skills.

If you want Temporary Office Work — join up with the group that wants you!
